Saga Resumes After Plane Leaves Havana

Switzerland Next for the Skyjackers

By United Press International
A Southern Airways jetliner with 29 hostage passengers, an exhausted crew and three hijackers holding a reported $2 million in ransom, roared away from McCoy Air Force Base at Orlando, Fla., Saturday night despite a barrage of gunfire that blew out four tires.

The jetliner under the guns of three hijackers and an exhausted crew at the controls, left Havana Saturday night, stopped in Key West for fuel and took off for the north—asking for a "vector to Switzerland."

Federal Aviation Administration officials said the DC-8, loaded with aluminum boxes full of ransom money for the hijackers, who demanded $10 million, could not reach Switzerland without several refueling stops.

The jetliner, carrying a Tennessee crew of four plus 26 passengers and three hijackers armed with guns and grenades, took off from Key West at 7:54 p.m. EST. It was the seventh stop in the weird, 24-hour odyssey of Flight 49, hijacked Friday night over Alabama. It has since landed at Jackson, Miss., Cleveland, Toronto, Louisville, Chattanooga—where the ransom money, along with bullet-proof vests and crash helmets, was taken aboard—Havana and Key West.

There was no immediate indication why the hijackers did not leave the plane at Havana as expected.

A spokesman for the State Department in Washington, which apparently suspected that Havana might not be the hijackers' final destination, said it had asked the Cuban government through the Swiss embassy "to hold the plane for the time being."

Havana authorities were apparently unable to do so.

The money was loaded aboard the Southern Airways jetliner in Chattanooga, Tenn., at 2 p.m. EST—climaxing a 22-hour aerial rampage which took the jet to Canada and back and kept it hop-skipping among more than a half dozen cities. The big ship finally set down at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 4:49 p.m. EST.

The hijackers did not take time to count the cash, but they had been insisting on a full $10-million. At one point they also demanding a letter under the White House seal, stating the funds were a federal "grant."

Officials did not disclose the exact amount turned over, but all the money reportedly came from Southern, and no government funds were involved.

In addition to the three hijackers, the plane carried 26 passengers and a crew of four. One of the passengers, an 80-year-old man, suffered a heart attack during the night, but the hijackers would not permit him to leave the plane.

Before departing Chattanooga for Havana, seven bullet-proof vests and crash helmets were put aboard along with food and the money.

While the loading was underway, the big blue and white jet—with the "smiling face of Southern" painted on its nose—sat at the end of the runway with lights blinking.

The Chattanooga terminal area was bedlam, with hundreds of persons crowding all available windows for a glimpse of the hostage craft. Scores of agents raced from vantage point to vantage point, the coats of their business suits sometimes flapping open to reveal guns strapped to their sides, but none got a shot.

While the Southern plane was being flown in with the money, the hijackers radioed it in flight and asked the pilot how much money was aboard.

"We don't know how much money you've got aboard and the people want to know," the pilot of the hijacked aircraft said.

"We've just loaded up and we're on our way," came the reply.

"Are you checking the amount?" the hijacked plane persisted.

"We have the amount requested on board. Repeat the amount requested."

The hijackers, all blacks, were tentatively identified as Henry D. Jackson, 25, Lewis D. Moore, 27, both of Detroit, and Melvin Cale, Alis Melvin Curd of Oak Ridge. Authorities said Jackson and Moore are wanted on rape charges and Cale, who was free on a trusty-educational program, had been serving time for larceny.

Before the scene shifted to Chattanooga, Cale's wife and two daughters were taken to the Knoxville airport so they could try to talk the hijackers into surrendering.

The three sky pirates hijacked the Memphis-to-Miami jetliner shortly after 7 p.m. Friday after an intermediate stop at Birmingham, where they boarded. Officials said hijacker detection gear was in operation at the airport at the time, but the three slipped through.

Armed with rifles, revolvers and hand grenades—on which they pulled the pins to keep them in a ready position—they forced the jet to land at Jackson, Miss., for refueling and then took the plane on a rambling flight to Detroit, Cleveland, Toronto, Canada, Knoxville, Lexington, Ky., back to Knoxville, and on to Chattanooga.

While at Toronto they turned down the offer of a half million dollar ransom—which apparently was all Southern could raise in the dead of night.

While the plane was circling Detroit, one of the hijackers radioed:

"I don't have any more time—really. Get the money together, because I'm gonna crash it into Oak Ridge."

In view of the threat, Oak Ridge closed down all of its nuclear reactors and evacuated all but emergency personnel from the compound.

A spokesman said, however, that even had the hijacker carried out his threat, no massive nuclear explosion would have occurred. He said some radiation might have been loosed, but expressed confidence that it could have been confined to the compound. An 80-year-old man aboard the hijacked flight reportedly suffered a heart attack, but the hijackers would not let the crew remove him from the plane.

The hijackers did permit the pilot to radio ahead and tell Knoxville authorities to have a doctor and equipment for treating a cardiac patient ready, but then flew to Chattanooga.

Widen Peace Mission To Talks in Cambodia

(Combined Wire Dispatches)

SAIGON — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. widened his mission as special White House peace envoy today, flying to Cambodia for talks with President Lon Nol after two days of meetings in Saigon with President Nguyen Van Thieu on a proposed Indochina settlement.

Haig's unannounced trip to Phnom Penh coincides with a disclosure by U.S. officials that the proposed peace package has been broadened by the United States to include millions of dollars of additional American military aid to Cambodia in advance of a cease-fire.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman characterized Haig's talks with Thieu as "cordial and constructive," but would not elaborate. Haig made no statement to the press.

The Embassy said Haig flew to Phnom Penh for a luncheon conference with Lon Nol. It said that from the Cambodian capital Haig would go to Bangkok, Thailand, to pick up his Washington-based jet and then go to South Korea for talks with President Chung Hee Park. Korea has nearly 40,000 troops in South Vietnam.

The Embassy announced Saturday night that Haig would leave this morning for Washington to report to President Nixon, but did not mention the side trips.

It was reported, meanwhile, that President Nguyen Van Thieu told White House peace envoy Gen. Alexander Haig that Saigon would not oppose any U.S. move to win release of U.S. war prisoners, even if it meant Washington had to sign a bilateral cease-fire accord with Hanoi, Vietnamese sources said Saturday.

The Vietnamese sources also said Haig delivered a letter to Nixon's letter, in general, Thieu from President Nixon containing assurances that the Hanoi-Washington draft treaty does not impose a coalition with the Communists on South Vietnam.

The sources said the letter urged Thieu to "recognize the trends of peace in the world."

The Paris newspaper France Soir, in a dispatch from Saigon, said Saturday that South Vietnam has agreed to sign the cease-fire agreement with the Communists. The newspaper reported the signing would probably come sometime before Nov. 20 and said Washington has placed before Thieu the choice of waging the war alone or signing the accord.

Thieu, Haig and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met again Saturday for three hours and 20 minutes.

An embassy spokesman said Haig told him afterward, "I'm going to have a quiet evening and go to bed." There was no official comment on Saturday's talks.

The spokesman said Haig was scheduled to leave Saigon for Washington this morning.

The sources said President Nixon's letter, in general, "urges Thieu to consider the spirit of the nine-point draft agreement" between Hanoi and Washington and assured him that the Council for National Reconciliation and Concord contained in the draft treaty was merely an administrative body, the sources said.

Code Enforcement Continuing

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The city's concentrated code enforcement (Home Improvement) program, supposedly set for completion on Nov. 22, will continue on into next spring. The Freeman has learned.

On Friday Mayor Francis R. Koenig confirmed reports that an extension had been granted by the federal government and that the program would continue until March of next year, possibly until June.

A new director has been hired, replacing the former director Frank Cardinale, who quit and went to work for the Poughkeepsie Urban Renewal Agency on Sept. 25. Peter Anderson, rehabilitation officer in the Kingston project, who was reportedly headed for Newburgh, is back in Kingston as project director at $14,100 a year. Steve Szymanski is now rehab officer at $11,000 a year.

Stanley J. Petro, a former city treasurer in the Garraghan Administration, has been hired as loan officer at an annual salary of $11,000. Petro replaces Charles Hafemann, loan officer, who is now project director in Newburgh.

The appointments of Petro, Anderson and Szymanski were effective Oct. 16. They will work out of the Home Improvement offices at 672 Broadway.

A Freeman story (based on statements from Cardinale) published on Sept. 13, shortly before Cardinale left for Poughkeepsie, indicated that the program had met most of its goals and would be completed by Nov. 22 with Cardinale staying in a sort of non-paid "advisory capacity." Such, apparently was not the case.

Although one six-month extension had previously been granted (originally the three-year program was to run out in May of this year) another one was granted, apparently in early October.

The city, Koenig said, had hoped to wrap up the program with Cardinale in the "advisory" capacity, but, according to the mayor, the federal government refused to grant an extension unless the program were staffed with a full-time project director, rehabilitation officer and loan officer.

Koenig said that the reason the federal government has been amenable to extensions well beyond the original deadline is that the program was late in getting started.

Approved by the federal government as a three-year program in May of 1969 during the Garraghan Administration, it didn't get started until Koenig took office in January of 1970 and hired Cardinale a month later.

Anderson, Szymanski and Petro will be involved in more than just "wrapping up" the program, according to the mayor. They will also be accepting new applications for home improvements in the three code areas.

No additional funds were required from the federal government, Koenig said, just additional time. When Cardinale left, he said the city would be returning more than $100,000 to the federal government in unspent funds from the original $33,652 allowed for it. That $100,000 will now be used to cover expenses from now until the program is finished next year.

The main project area is bounded by the rear lot lines along Broadway and St. James Street and by Greenkill Avenue and Clinton Avenue. Project Area Two is bounded by Tompkins Street, Yeoman Street, Abruy Street and East Strand and Project Area Three is bounded by Cordts Street, Willow Street, North Street and Delaware Avenue.

Veterans Day Observance

The traditional date of November 11 was observed as Veterans Day on Saturday during a ceremony at Joyce-Schrick Post, 1386, VFW headquarters. Guest speakers included Mayor Francis R. Koenig (L) and Sheriff William B. Martin (R). They flank Martin Stoutenberg, representing the Kingston Indian Drum and Bugle Corps. The Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger, retired rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, gave the invocation and benediction at the service forced indoors because of inclement weather. The service was originally scheduled at the Memorial Tablet in front of the old City Hall.

Foreign Film . . . Some Scenes Shot in Kingston

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON
A corner of the Governor Clinton Hotel dining room becomes Sardi's. The Community Theater is a Broadway backstage, the scene of murder.

Kingston has been a few bits and pieces of New York City without the knowledge of local residents.

The not-so-mysterious transformation is all part of a movie production destined for the flaxximeventualefiogd eventually for the foreign film festivals and -hopefully an award winning vehicle for sparkling cast under the direction of a veteran movie and theater personality.

Shooting was completed this past week and plans are underway for the early spring release of HOLDING ON. A suspense drama with in-depth personality studies and a wealth of psychological overtones, the movie is from an original screen play. Karen Leslie plays the rising young star; Michael Higgins the aging actor turned theater doorman and Jim Keach, the Mad. Ave. drop out, writing the Great American Novel as Karen's live in boyfriend.

Arthur Storch with incredible directing and acting achievements to his credit is directing the film with Joe Lyttle as producer.

Over a recent lunch break in the shooting schedule, all parties involved bubbled with enthusiasm for the film vehicle. It was the last day of filming on location in Kingston and all that remained were wrap up scene shots in New York and weeks of editing.

The actors for the first time had been allowed to view the rushes of the film the night before. For weeks they had been doing scenes, half scenes, quarter takes, over and over again — never really putting it all together. The response of instant response from live performance of Long Days Journey into Night, the O'Neill classic.

Meanwhile, her reaction to HOLDING ON is one of great satisfaction. When she thought the role was a great departure from her previous work she indicated it was completely within her scope. "I feel I have all those people in me, these roles to be."

For Karen Leslie, with extensive stage experience in the realm of comedy for the most part, the dramatic role on film was a totally new experience. She said detailing some of the technical aspects of movie making were a bit disconcerting after live stage, she found. The rehearsals, then take after take before a usable segment was possible followed by fragmented shooting were a sharp departure from the whole of a stage production.

"But there is where your years of training come in," the actress noted. Your instincts learn to cope with the technical aspect of boom and strobe light him, he is well equipped to play distractions of passing trucks or out the final scene of HOLDING ON, an identity mix of Desdemona, mother, ex-wife and rising star. In costume for the part of the theater doorman, he mentions quietly that he played the lead opposite Helen formance to restore prospective Hayes in her farewell performance of Long Days Journey into Night, the O'Neill classic. Jim Keach, a bright and charming young man who plays the part of the would-be author in the film is an author or rather playwright in real life. He has just completed a musical based on the saga of the James Brothers to be presented Off-Broadway in the near future. A Yale Drama School graduate, he continues to pursue his craft with off-stage reading during the shooting breaks. His brother, George C. Scott in the current award in Venice; an Obie for the lead in Arthur Miller's The Crucible Off Broadway production. With a wealth of Shakespearean theater behind him, he is well equipped to play the part of the theater doorman, an identity mix of Desdemona, mother, ex-wife and rising star. In costume for the part of the theater doorman, he mentions quietly that he played the lead opposite Helen processing centers, plus privacy, plus adaptable facilities were the answers. On the last point, it was noted that the Community Theater is "just like a Broadway Theater" and was easily adapted to the scenes of HOLDING ON. The Governor Clinton Hotel, which also served as home base for the cast while on location, cooperated in "redecorating" to suit the needs of a brownstone apartment, and a rundown boarding house room for the two principals as well as becoming Sardi's for a luncheon scene.

The manager, loaned his own apartment as the brownstone digs of Miss Leslie in the film. Extensive redecorating was needed and there was a degree of comedy in the transformation which shocked the donor with its speed and completeness. At the last report working girl decor had been resored to wall-to-wall elegance.

Michael Higgin's boarding house room, dominated by theatrical mementos and huge portrait of his mother, inherent to the theme of the film was created at the Governor Clinton drama teaching stints. It all shows to his advantage when he details the development of HOLDING ON with its psychological ramifications and it shows with his masterful urging on a bit of on film action being captured on the Community Theater's empty stage.

Why Kingston as a location for a film set in contemporary New York was a burning question. Economics, plus an award winning classic. And proximity to New York it all started right here.

Patrolmen Will Honor Trio

KINGSTON Three officers with a combined total of 75 years of service with the Kingston Police Department will be honored Thursday night, Nov. 16, by friends, relatives and fellow police officers at a dinner in the Walnut Grove Restaurant.

Being honored at a silver anniversary dinner sponsored by the Kingston Patrolmen's Association are Deputy Police Chief Francis J. Fagan of 47 Merlina Avenue, Lieutenant Charles A. Hoehing of 303 East Chester Street and Sergeant Thomas Tomshaw of 64 Florence Street. All three officers joined the department in 1947.

Fagan, a native of New York City, served in the U. S. Army with the 240th Military Police Battalion from May, 1943, to February, 1946. He served a short time with the New York City Board of Water Supply Police in Modena before joining the Kingston Police Department as a patrolman on June 1, 1947. Fagan was promoted to sergeant on Feb. 17, 1955. While still a sergeant he was named acting chief on Aug. 15, 1958, and served until Nov. 10, 1958, when he reverted to his permanent rank of sergeant. He was promoted to lieutenant on Aug. 21, 1959, and to chief on Feb. 1968, heading the department until Jan. 9, 1971, when he reverted to his present rank of deputy chief.

He is married to the former Helene Rosenberger of New York City. They are the parents of two daughters, Kathleen and Maureen, and a son, Francis. Hoehing left Kingston in September, 1940, with Battery A, 156th Field Artillery, as a sergeant, and later transferred to the 220th Field Artillery Battalion of the 44th Division, with which he served in the Northern France, Rhineland, and Central Europe campaigns in the European Theater of Operations during World War II.

He was discharged Oct. 9, 1945, with the rank of first sergeant and served as a heavy equipment operator with the Kingston Board of Public Works for a short time before joining the police department as a special officer on May 1, 1946.

Hoehing was given a regular appointment as patrolman on Aug. 1, 1947, was promoted to sergeant on Sept. 18, 1953, and to lieutenant on Feb. 16, 1968.

He is married to the former Ida Mazzuca of Kingston. They are the parents of three children, Mrs. Kathryn Schichter, Jayne and Charles Hoehing Jr.

Tomshaw served with the U. S. Marine Corps through several campaigns in the South Pacific Theater of Operations during World War II. He was discharged May 10, 1946, with the rank of staff sergeant.

He joined the Kingston police department on Sept. 1, 1947, and was promoted to sergeant in 1955. He is married to the former Frances Tierney. They are the parents of a daughter, Frances.

Police Start Fund For Coffey Kin

KINGSTON Kingston police have started a memorial fund to aid the wife and children of a fellow officer who died Aug. 30 after a long and expensive illness.

Canisters have been placed in public places throughout Kingston to collect funds for the Thomas J. Coffey Memorial Fund. Police said they hope to collect at least $7,500 for Coffey's widow and five children.

"We're asking the public to help because Tom Coffey was a public minded citizen himself," Chief Julius Glassman said of the fund drive. "He was a good, conscientious police officer."

Coffey was in and out of the hospital for a year before he died and ran up heavy medical bills. Police said that $1,500 of the funds collected would go to pay off hospital and doctor bills and that the remainder of the funds collected would be put into a trust fund for Coffey's five children. Gerald, 10, is the oldest of the children now dependent on Coffey's widow. Kelly, who was seven years old Saturday, Joseph, 5, Thomas, 4, and Allison, 2, are the others left fatherless by Coffey's untimely death at the age of 33.

Coffey, a native of Yonkers, worked as a milkman before joining the Kingston Police Department April 1, 1960. He was commended by the Board of Police Commissioners for efficient police work several times during his 12 years' on the force, Chief Glassman said.

Meg LeFever Assumes Coach House Helmet

KINGSTON Coach House Players, the local community theatre group, has a new director this season, and for the first time in its 22 year history, its not a mister but a Ms.

She's Meg LeFever, a native Kingstonian who for many years has lived away from the mountains she loves, and who now works at Ulster Community College. And, yes, she's related to a slew of other LeFever's, notably former resident and general practitioner Dr. Kenneth H. LeFever (her father) and local optometrist and golfer Dr. Harry LeFever (her uncle).

This autumn started rather peacefully with Meg. To finish a thesis for her Masters Degree in Directing, she decided to fulfill her requirements at the State University at Albany and base herself in Ulster County for the duration. Since 1971, she had been working as a "floating administrator" at UCCC. "When someone goes on a sabbatical or educational leave, I fill in," she says.

Through a colleague she learned that Bill Skilling, the Coach House's long-time respected director, had resigned and that the group was actively seeking someone to pick up the reins. The big fall musical, "Fiddler on the Roof" had already been cast and 43 people were waiting to get on, with it.

After some lengthy interviews, Meg was given the nod and quickly assumed the multiple responsibilities inherent in directing a complex production involving music, singing, acting, dancing, costumes, sets and makeup, to name only some of the components.

As Meg LeFever sees the show's progress, "The chorus knows what it's doing, the characters know their roles and we're proceeding on schedule, each night."

We had to add a fourth night of rehearsals per week but we got a great bunch of people and we're all working hard."

As for being back home: "I love living back in Ulster County. I really am turned on by the mountains."

What turns Meg on most of all is the theater. Warned in childhood that "the theater is only for loose women," she pursued other careers. After she studied education at Florida State University she worked in various non-theatrical jobs including advertising.

In 1965, Meg got involved with community theater in Rochester, starting out with prompting and ending the season with a leading role.

"I finally decided then and there that my avocation should truly be my vocation and I was just wasting my time elsewhere," affirms Meg.

It was back to school next at the State University of New York's College at Brockport where she majored in Children's Theatre and minored in Speech, subsequently earning a B.S. degree cum laude.

In 1969, she began earning credits toward a master's degree in directing. She is currently writing the thesis to complete these requirements.

In between she has worked in more than thirty dramatic productions in capacities such as director, stage manager, costumer, and technician for lights sound, make-up and construction. She has been on stage in half of these efforts.

On a scholarship award from the Association for Cultural Exchange, she studied contemporary British Theatre and Acting at Oxford and in London.

Meanwhile, Meg is "fiddling" for that big opening night of "Fiddler" at the J. Watson Bailey School come Thursday night, Nov. 16. Performances also will be offered Friday and Saturday, with curtain time 8:30 we're proceeding on schedule, each night.

SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE

EDMUND PURDOM

THE GOSSIP COLUMN by ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

QUESTION YOU DIDN'T ASK: Do those two arch-enemies, Aristotle Onassis and Stavros Niarchos, always imitate each other? They make a stab at it. For instance, marrying the same woman (Tina Livanos) or marrying young famous women who land them in the headlines (Niarchos once wed Charlotte Ford; Onassis wed Jackie Kennedy) or buying private islands and yachts, etc. Now Niarchos' life is imitating that of Onassis in a way that worries Stavros. Niarchos' son, Philip, 20, is pursuing English actress Viviane Venture, an older divorcee and mother of a 5-year-old child. This gives Niarchos the same kind of headache Onassis has over his son Alexander's predilection for older women.

Q: Please let us wives of America in on the secret of the hold Martha Mitchell has over her husband. How can a man of his importance have to retire from public life because of his wife's big mouth? — D. W., Columbus, Ohio.

A: John Mitchell seems to enjoy his wife's "big mouth" and he is genuinely devoted to her. At parties in New York he smilingly introduces himself to strangers as "Martha Mitchell's husband." We don't believe John Mitchell had to retire because of Martha. We believe — along with informed Washington sources — that the former Attorney General welcomed an excuse to get out of government. John just let Martha hurry things along.

Q: Can you tell us where Edmund Purdom is these days? — E.G., Edgartown, Mass.

A: Purdom lives in Rome where he produces classical records. He's 45 and is planning soon to marry a 39-year-old Swedish woman. The former actor would like to forget his days of notoriety when he was married to Linda Christian, but she keeps writing her memoirs in which Purdom always plays a villain.

Q: Can you tell us who paid for Senator William Proxmire's various plastic surgery — his eye uplift and hair transplant? Did the taxpayers get stuck for this? — H.R., Baltimore.

A: The Senator says he has never had any surgery whatsoever done at government expense and that the only time he even goes into a military hospital is for his annual physical examination. Proxmire is a physical fitness buff. He now works standing up, as Hemingway did, at a special desk to improve his stamina.

Q: Have just finished reading "Too Much, Too Soon." Would appreciate your letting me know whether Diana Barrymore died or is still living. — L. L., Jackson Heights, N.Y.

A: Miss Barrymore, the talented but doomed child of actor John Barrymore and the poet Michael Strange (yes, a woman), died a decade ago in New York. Her death was an accident resulting from a combination of alcohol and pills. At the time she was struggling valiantly to make a theatrical comeback. At her funeral her co-author, Gerold Frank, spoke the oration that ended "Good night, sweet princess."

Q: Do you think Raquel Welch's ex-husband, Patrick Curtis, feels that Raquel would have been nothing without his behind-the-scenes guidance? — C. B., Floral Park, N.Y.

A: Quite the contrary Curtis firmly believes Raquel would have made it without him. He admits that his reputation rests on what he did for his former wife, but as he points out, "Darryl Zanuck put all his girl friends in movies when he was head of 20th Century Fox and none of them got anywhere. If he couldn't do it with all the power of a studio behind him, it can only mean one thing. They were the wrong girls. Raquel was the right girl."

Getting It Together

By TERRI F. JACKSON

JUST THINKING: There are so many ways in today's lifestyle, for "blowing" one's mind... and/or getting "high"... some people get high on drugs, some with alcohol, some get their "kicks" from food, others get high when obtaining power, or an elevated position... there is even a spiritual high derived from religion... but I learned last week that one can get high on the sights and sounds of accomplishment, one can "flip out" over progress; my mind-shattering, soul-uplifting came at the Black Expo '72 at N.Y.'s Americana Hotel. I unashamedly admit I got "drunk" on all I saw and heard and felt, and I really don't ever want to find a cure for this monumental "hangover" of pride.

Did you know that there are Black-owned Investment Companies? Fuel Oil Services? Seven banks and Savings and Loan Companies? There also is a unique and informative publication called the Black Pages... Raymond Somerville, general president, has put together a listing of all Black-owned businesses in New York City, and he plans to introduce an edition for N.J. in the Spring. (His N.Y. book covers everything from abortion clinics, addict control centers to a licensed Black Airline Pilot, and a complete listing of Public Services). There were daily Sensitivity Seminars, Lecture Series, Operation Breadbasket Meetings... and an Art Exhibit to end all exhibits: the Sculptures, paintings and photographic displays were simple fabulous... There was a reception and dinner that attracted every imaginable luminary (with Richard "Shaft" Roundtree hosting the affair it just had to be great, right?). The entertainment scene was out-of-sight with appearances by Linda Hopkins, Melba Moore, Grady Tate, Donald Byrd (he filled us in on all the good news about the Rev. Jesse Jackson's Black Expo in Chicago) Ruth Brown, Jimmy Castor, Carolyn Franklin and "The Queen" ARETHA; Johnny Nash, the Reflections, the Main Ingredient, Ghetto-Fighters, Rick Ashford and Valerie Simpson, The Persuasions and Robin Kenyatta... The Theatre... Dance... Poetry aspects of Black Arts were well represented by National Black Theatre, La Roque Bey Dance Co., Afro-American Singing Theatre, Poetry Workshop, Movements Black, George Faison Dance Co., Negro Ensemble, Black Vibrations, Advanced Theatre Workshop, New Federal Theatre, Rod Rogers Dance Co. and the not-to-be-forgotten showing of "300 Years of Fashion" and the fantastic Children's Theatre productions. THEN, there was the wall-to-wall exhibition area covering the entire lower level. One could purchase fabrics from Africa, jewelry from the West Indies, African Published Magazines, African spices, Black books and music, free makeup done by Black cosmetologists using Black oriented cosmetics, African perfumes, paintings, posters, decals, Leathercraft and so many other articles made—designed and marketed by Black firms... We were especially impressed with the Bedford-Stuyvesant Restoration Corporation's booth. Superior Data Processing, The Historical Research Corp. The Ethiopian Sunrise, Universal National Bank, The "fab" Wilday Co. (they have really gotten it all together with their various programs) Insurance broker, E.G. Bowman, N.Y.C.T.I.'s William H. Stafford, Vince Jordan's African Fabric Prints—I literally drooled over his creations)... African Magazine — "African Progress"... Afram Securities Corp... The Black Game Co. (we got their Freedom game, it's great)... The Tri-Par Fuel Corp... The National Coalition... Harlem Commonwealth Council Inc... Deans Protective Serv. Inc. They provided all of their many beautiful black guards and displayed new, innovative protective devices... Daniels and Bell, Inc.—Members of the New York Stock Exchange... First Harlem Securities Corp... Capitol Formation Inc... Children's Television Workshop, the producers of Sesame St. and the Electric Co... The Bedford-Stuyvesant Jaycees, the Association of Black Business Students... Morgan Guarantee Trust Co. of N. Y., McCleod Designs, Lundy Enterprises the distributors of Uhuru-Kitabu products... the list goes on and on like the proverbial "beat"

We talked to, (and snared for a future speaking engagement here), Mrs. Dorothy Joseph, chairman of S.C.L.C.'s Black Expo Education Committee, and she told us that on Nov. 3 alone 5,000 black children had attended the Expo. This number did not include the 25 members of the Miller School's Black History Club from Kingston—and the 10 St. Cabrini girls who made the trip with Mrs. Margaret Simmons and Mrs. Doris Ellis. As we were getting ready to leave I saw an old, shabbily dressed black man standing outside watching, he asked me, in a trembling voice, "Why are all of our folks going in that place, daughter?" I explained all that was going on and he shook his head, sighed, and with tears in his eyes said "I never thought I would live to see the day". AMEN...

BLACK CALENDAR: Nov. 13—Election of officers at monthly meeting of the Kingston NAACP, 7:30 p.m., Rondout Center.

Nov. 19, The Empire State Federation of Women celebrate their 50th Anniversary at New Central Baptist Church at 3:30.

Nov. 25: Mrs. Carrie Norman presents a Hat Fashion Show at the Riverview Baptist Church at 7:30 p.m. This affair postponed from the 18th.

Nov. 30: Sickle Cell Disease Foundation of Greater New York presents a Jazz Concert at N.Y.C. Town Hall.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: The desire of the Afro-American people themselves to unite and to assert their personality in the context of the American community has made itself felt everywhere. Until next week... walk with pride, you have much to be proud of.

Dedication Committee Sets Meeting

A committee for the dedication of the new city hall in Broadway East composed of a group of city employees, will meet on Nov. 14 to discuss plans for the formal dedication of the building, tentatively set for Nov. 26.

Mrs. June Diamond, the mayor's secretary, chairs the committee which includes City Historian Harry Rigby, City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco, Police Chief Julius M. Glassman, Deputy City Clerk Rose M. Hogan, Mrs. Mary Alice Cahill of the Traffic Violations Bureau, Mrs. Ella Clausi of the Building Department and Mrs. Corinne Janeczek of the Water Department.

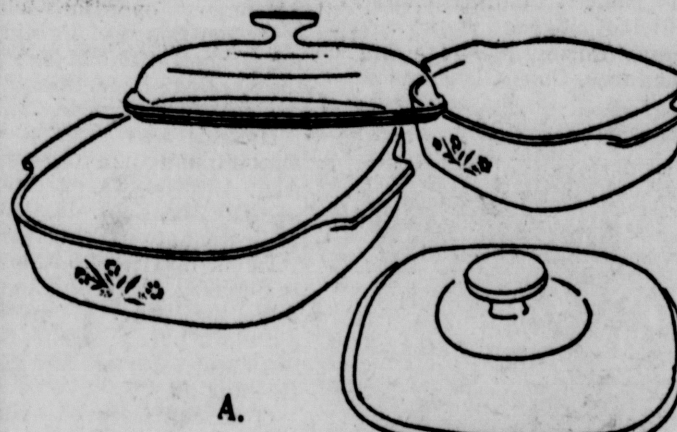

Plans call for formal dedication ceremonies of the $925,000 building off Meadow Street along with guided tours.

Campaign '72... Sound of Music for GOP

ELECTION RECAP — The worse fears of local Democrats were realized Election Night when George McGovern, as predicted, fell victim to the Nixon steamroller. And, as a result, shortly after 9 p.m. on the 7th, the hills of Ulster County were alive with the sound of celebrating Republicans... it's a sound the Democrats have been hearing for a million years, or so it seems.

And, so on to the recap. First of all, we should commend Lew Hall, chairman of the county Legislature's Board of Elections Committee and Al Cawein, county public relations man, for the fine job they did in getting returns to the press. Accolades should also go to the Young Marines and the people who worked in the data processing center along with the workers back at the polls who phoned in the results. It took a while to get rolling but once that computer started pumping out election returns, it didn't stop. It made everybody's job a lot easier, and more importantly, gave the public accurate returns the next day.

CLARK BELL, SUPERSTAR — The only real suspense in the Clark Bell-Maurice Hinchey race for the 101st Assembly District was whether Bell would get 67.5 per cent of the vote, the percentage he wracked up against George Barthel in 1970. Bell had made no secret of the fact that he wanted to beat Hinchey worse than Barthel; he didn't like Hinchey and he didn't like the type of campaign he said Hinchey was running.

Bell had never been subjected to a scrutiny of his record before. In 1963 when he beat Dr. Gerry Gorman, he didn't have a legislative record, then running for his first term. In 1970, Barthel passed out pens and passed up the issues. He never had a chance.

In the extreme, there is only one other type of campaign that Hinchey could have waged against Bell and Bell himself described it rather accurately... he called it "charge and challenge."

If Hinchey had suffered a Barthel-type defeat this year, it would have left the Democrats with only one conclusion as to their future chances against Clark Bell... we couldn't beat him by avoiding him (Barthel) and we couldn't beat him by attacking him (Hinchey)... so, we can't beat him, period."

Hinchey did not lose as bad as Barthel, in fact, compared to Barthel, Hinchey did right nice. He held Bell to 58.5 per cent of the vote and in the process tallied some 5,000 more votes than Barthel... all that in the teeth of a presidential landslide.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

For Clark Bell, political superstar, it had to be just a little disappointing. After all, superstars are supposed to rise to ever higher heights every year. Bell "only" got 58.5 per cent of the vote.

Democrats see in Bell's "slippage" (remember that one from the '68 Republican National Convention when Rocky was trying to head off Nixon?) from 67 per cent to 58 per cent as an indicator that perhaps they can make hay with "issue-oriented" campaigns like Hinchey's. There is no way Bell is going to get beat in a personality contest like Barthel ran.

BURNS-FISH — We were quite surprised to see Ham Fish beat John Burns by 90,000 some votes in the new 25th Congressional district, not that Ham didn't have it in him. We had figured, along with a lot of Fish supporters, that the fact Fish was running in a district that contained only 25 per cent of the voters who were in his old district in 1970 would work against him. Quite the opposite. Ham looks like the real McCoy and with reapportionment finally behind him, he'll be running in his present district for the next ten years.

GILMAN-DOW-RAPKIN — John Dow seemed somewhat shell-shocked by the 19,000 vote defeat he suffered at the hands of the hardworking, hard-running Ben Gilman in the new 26th. The "book" had said that Yale Rapkin, the Conservative, would let Dow "sneak in" by drawing off normally Republican votes from Gilman. About all Rapkin did with his 23,000 votes was save Dow the embarrassment of a major landslide. Nine-teen thousand votes was bad enough.

Dow indicates that he may come back but we rather doubt it. For one thing, Dow is close to 68 years old and for another, Ben Gilman isn't going to let any grass grow under his feet. The guy actually took to the streets the next day in a driving rain storm, to thank the people for putting him in.

SCHERMERHORN-HUNTER — Dick Schermerhorn looks like another impending Republican perennial with his solid 20,000 vote win over Sears Hunter in the 40th Senatorial District. Schermerhorn, a man who doesn't mince words, turned off a few people this time around, but quite obviously turned on a lot more. He gives the impression of a man who will not be bossed... the people apparently like that in a politician.

SPADA-GOSLIN — Not much to say about that one. Poor Fred Goslin really got hosed, losing 7-1, but then Fred probably expected it. Both Fred and his opponent Al Spada are "nice guys" (although we hate to use that expression in describing politicians since they make a living being nice guys) and it's too bad both of them couldn't have won. Fred addressed himself to the issues without getting too strident about it and along the way made a lot of friends for himself. Unfortunately, Al Spada had made a lot more friends long before Fred Goslin came on the scene.

The Gallup Poll

Kennedy... A Stronger Race

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — In the aftermath of President Nixon's landslide victory Tuesday, the important political question arises — to what extent was the outcome a rejection of Senator McGovern rather than his party — Could another Democrat have given Nixon a closer race?

Gallup survey evidence indicates that one prominent Democrat — Senator Edward Kennedy — could have run a much stronger race than did Senator McGovern. Trial heats conducted in October in the semi-final Gallup survey showed Nixon leading McGovern 59 to 36 per cent but leading Kennedy by a considerably smaller margin, 52 to 43 per cent.

One could speculate, of course, that the race would have been still closer if Kennedy had actively campaigned as his party's nominee this year. Kennedy has disavowed any interest in seeking the nomination for 1976, yet political observers have speculated that Kennedy, in campaigning hard for McGovern this year, also had his eye on the White House in 1976.

Vote More a Rejection of Candidate Than Party

Tuesday's results reflected to a considerable extent a rejection of the Democratic nominee rather than an indication of any GOP tide. Nixon's tremendous victory at the polls did not translate into major gains for the GOP in terms of Senate and House seats.

McGovern trial heat with the Nixon-Kennedy results in the same survey and with the same sample of voters brought to light Kennedy's greater strength among these groups:

• Whereas Nixon won the youth vote (under 30) in the test race against McGovern, Kennedy held a commanding lead with young voters, 55 to 41 per cent.

• Among blue collar workers (the largest voting bloc and a major source of McGovern's difficulties), McGovern trailed Nixon in the mid-October survey by a margin of 44 to 49 per cent, but Kennedy held a wide 55 to 41 per cent lead.

• Kennedy's pronounced popularity among fellow Catholics is apparent in the findings which showed him leading Nixon 53 to 43 per cent, whereas McGovern trailed Nixon among persons of this faith, 37 to 59 per cent.

The following table shows the full comparison of the Nixon-McGovern and the Nixon-Kennedy trial heats:

Kennedy Consistently Popular With Democrats

Kennedy has consistently been popular with the Democratic rank-and-file, despite the fact that he suffered a sharp loss in appeal following the Chapquidick incident in the summer of 1970.

As early as December, 1971, Kennedy held a clear lead over all other Democratic presidential possibilities as the choice of Democratic voters to receive the nomination for 1972. In a test election at that time, Kennedy trailed Nixon by only 3 percentage points.

McGovern's Liabilities
Although McGovern was the candidate of the majority party in this country, he had serious liabilities which conspired to bring him a resounding defeat at the polls:

• A key factor in his loss was, of course, the fact that an incumbent President has a strong built-in advantage and can control events and programs to a degree denied a challenger.

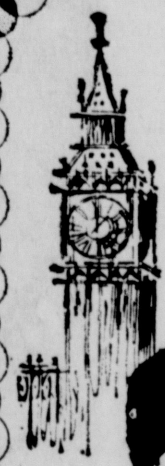

• Voters perceived McGovern as left of where they described themselves politically. This may have arisen from the liberal position on issues which he took in the primaries in order to distinguish his campaign platform from those of the other Democratic contenders. Although the Senator moved more to the center on certain issues as the campaign wore on, he was unable to shake his image as "too left" or "radical," with Republicans making considerable capital of this.

• As the campaign wore on, voters came to have increasing doubts about McGovern's sincerity and credibility — which ironically enough were considered to be among his strongest attributes by voters at the time of the primaries. The Eagleton incident — when McGovern first backed the Vice Presidential nominee and then dumped him from the ticket — contributed greatly to McGovern's credibility problems.

Final Gallup Results

Nixon 62%
McGovern 38%
With 98 per cent of the nation's precincts reporting as of this writing, the major party vote in the presidential election Tuesday is as follows:

Actual Election Returns
Nixon 61.8%
McGovern 38.2

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 12, 1972

WASHINGTON — House investigators have found that "lack of centralized planning" created a "severe mess" in military communication during the early years of the Vietnam War. The military services "could not even talk to each other because their equipment (was) not interoperable," the investigators reported. Their report, stamped "Secret — No Foreign Dissemination," has been submitted to the House Appropriations Committee. They quoted the late Louis DeRosa, then Pentagon telecommunications chief, as testifying on April 6, 1971: "We had a severe mess on our hands, and it was urgent that we remedy this as soon as possible. We were forced to make huge expenditures using commercial equipment and trying to adapt it to military requirements in the Vietnamese situation. We were not prepared for this type of joint operation. . . . Various Pentagon officials explained it differently to the investigators, but it all came down to the fact that the military services didn't have communications equipment that was compatible. "It was suggested by the military services," wrote the House investigators, "that the "severe mess" to which DeRosa alluded was the situation occasioned by the sudden and drastic buildup of our forces in 1965, and the lack of sufficient tactical communications equipment to meet the requirement.

"The introduction of sufficient communications equipment lagged 12 to 18 months behind the arrival of the troops and this fact dictated the utilization of a motley collection of systems comprised of old and new equipments, some of which were incompatible and could not interoperate because they were not designed as joint equipment."

Another high official suggested to the investigators that the "severe mess" in Vietnam was "not traceable to technical interoperability failures but to insufficient quantities of circuits." Other military communications experts simply "disclaimed knowledge of problems in Vietnam."

The lack of coordination between the services, furthermore, continues to this day. After examining "the successes attained since 1968," the investigators found "a paucity of achievements."

Defies Nixon
The Administration's top and toughest black man is standing up to President Nixon over a campaign speech that played into the hands of racially discriminating companies and unions.

In a Labor Day message, President Nixon told the white-run construction industry and others who have balked at hiring blacks just what they wanted to hear.

The quota hiring, which favors black employment, is a "dangerous detour away from the traditional measure of a person on the basis of ability," Nixon informed the delighted industries. He called quotas "as artificial and unfair a yardstick as has ever been used to deny opportunity to anyone."

At the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Chairman William H. Brown III, a 1968 appointee of President Johnson, was dismayed over Nixon's appeal to the hardhat and hardheart vote.

Brown, backed by the courts, has pushed for minority hiring under systems similar to the "Philadelphia Plan" when he has discovered racial discrimination.

For more than a month, Brown bit his tongue. Then, on October 27, he vented his feelings in a ringing private memo to his staff.

"Recent newspaper accounts regarding statements by President Nixon on the issue of affirmative actions and quotas have led some Commission employees to question whether there has been or will be any change in the Commission's policy of requiring certain types of remedies for discrimination in employment," he wrote.

"The purpose of this memorandum is to assure you that, regardless of what interpretations may have been placed on these news reports, there has been and there will be NO change in the policies of this Commission concerning appropriate remedies for the elimination of discrimination in employment. . . ."

"When discrimination is found to exist, it is the law itself which demands no less than full and appropriate relief. . . . Remedies for discrimination may appear to come to be awkward, inconvenient, even burdensome perhaps. But if such is necessary to eliminate discrimination, Title VII demands no less."

Brown's term on the commission expires next year. But Nixon could have removed him at any time as chairman. To Nixon's credit, he kept Brown in the job even though the commission has struck at such GOP scared cows as American Telephone & Telegraph. However, as with all other presidential appointees, Nixon asked for Brown's stand-by resignation as chairman the day after the election.

Freeman Editorials

Overall Registration

This is the time, after each national election, that a new drive for universal registration is begun, to try to upgrade the number of votes cast by the electorate. It is saddening that more than a third of the eligible electorate stay away from the polls, whereas other democracies, from Canada at our north, to Britain and France across the Atlantic, cast a popular vote much closer to the number of eligible voters. For instance, the Michigan Survey Research Center found that the proportion of non-voters here is double that abroad. Students blame the voting registration laws. Penn Kimball in "The Disconnected," (paperback, Columbia University Press) points out that our registration laws place the responsibility on the individual, whereas in most other democracies, the responsibility is on the government to register the vote. It is done in much the same way as the census, and few escape being registered.

The cost of registration in Canada is around $13.5 million, at $1.25 a voter. On the basis of proportional population, the cost in the United States might be $135 million. Of course, there is an advantage in an election by the largest number of voters, but there is a question whether enumeration would be registration or would be conscription.

The essence of democracy is self-expression. If people do not want to register and vote, as much as we may want them to, they have a right to abstain. They also say something by refusing to vote. We should go slowly about introducing universal registration in our brand of democracy.

Canarsie Dispute

One of the saddest exhibitions of the resisting of integration of schools has been taking place—not in the South—but in a section of Brooklyn, New York—Canarsie. To the outside eye, the situation appears to be similar to some of the Georgia scenes—black children bused from outside the district, with the resulting protests. The same feeling, however, does not prevail.

The focus of the excitement, Canarsie Junior High School No. 211, has been for some time 30 per cent black, and many students of both races are friends, as well as classmates.

The protest in Canarsie concerns property and taxes. It strongly affirms families' right to keep most of what they earn. These undercurrents have come out in the emotional shouting of the whites, across a police barricade, to the black parents. "Our pay checks are feeding you!" "I was born poor and I made my own way—I worked! Why don't you?" "We are paying for these schools with our local taxes. Why don't you earn your own instead of taking ours?"

White parents are afraid that the new children from "outside" will tip the scales toward predominantly black schools and—in a very short while—a black Canarsie. They see their home values plummeting. Also, they are at the boiling point over tax payroll deductions and other taxes used for welfare for the able-bodied.

Canarsie is a bad show all around—irresponsible white reactions, black taunts, children's heartbreak, bigotry re-taught to school children, deeply imprinted bitterness, future blood-spilling. But chiefly it is clear that the President will be seeing a tax revolt early in his new term.

GLASS SEWER PIPE — The first sewer pipe made of recycled glass, installed in Huntington, L. I., is hailed as stronger and cheaper to produce than pipe of cement or clay. It was developed by scientists at the Brookhaven National Laboratories under a $100,000 grant from the Atomic Energy Commission. This is an atomic fall-out that should benefit millions.

David Lawrence Says

Voting Creates Task

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's reelection by an overwhelming majority was certainly not a surprise in view of the trend of the public-opinion polls and the many predictions beforehand by experts that he would be victorious by a wide margin. But the fact that he won so heavily without being able to obtain a majority of the Republican Party in either House or Congress is something that will be difficult for persons familiar with America's political history to understand.

It has been said again and again that a popular Presidential nominee can carry to victory along with him candidates of his party for the Senate and the House of Representatives and, indeed, even those for local offices who might otherwise have lost on their own. When he wins by a landslide, it is, of course, natural to assume that the "coattail" effects would have a big influence in helping to elect other nominees of the party for Congress, for governorships and for other state and local offices.

But this time President Nixon never specifically asked for a Republican Congress and simply urged the electorate to vote for the men and women who would support the principles and fundamentals of his policies. There were many Democratic Senators and Representatives who had backed Mr. Nixon in his first term by their votes in Congress, while there were some Republicans who had not. The President called for "a new majority." He didn't make the usual appeal to vote a straight party ticket.

In the days before voting machines were first introduced, casting a ballot for one party was customary. But now the people are able to split their tickets very easily. They were greeted near the polls by political workers and are given sample ballots showing how to pull the levers of the voting machines. This also indicates how candidates from different parties can be selected.

The election was actually an affirmative vote by the people for President Nixon's reelection rather than a test of party strength. It so happens that there are Democrats in Congress who have supported Mr. Nixon's policies along with the Republicans. It probably would have embarrassed the President to have called for the election of a Republican Congress, because this would have been regarded as seeking the defeat of some of the loyal friends he has had on the Democratic side.

Under these circumstances, the split voting was influenced by local issues and was largely the result of the work of state, county and city organizations. President Nixon didn't take part in these contests.

There are many people who favor the top of the ticket but don't like the party's choice of members of Congress. A lack of solidarity within both the Republican and Democratic parties has been developing in recent years, and in a presidential election all attention is concentrated on the man who heads the ballot. The Republicans this time made some gains in the House while dropping two Senate seats, but they fell far short of getting control of either house.

President Nixon in the last four years has managed to win the support of a majority in Congress for important pieces of legislation, and this has been composed of both Democrats and Republicans.

It is conceivable that this situation will continue to prevail through the next four years and that compromises will be worked out in the committees in order to get major legislation passed.

But from a long-range point of view, the Republicans as well as the Democrats have a big task ahead — how to set up a distinct organization to bring about the election of members of Congress from their own party so that a majority can be obtained irrespective of the participation of the candidate at the top of the ticket. For, after all, his duty is to set forth his own policies on the executive side. The Congress is a separate body whose members theoretically should be able to operate in a campaign whether or not an endorsement is received from the Presidential and vice-Presidential nominees.

Basically, the Congress and the executive are, under the Constitution, independent branches of the government, and there is no need to consider them in a political campaign as one unit, indivisible and inseparable. The candidates for each can collect their own funds and direct their own campaigns.

Marquis Childs Says

Electoral Overhaul Needed

WASHINGTON — Forget it all now. We've had that election and we have nothing to worry about until 1976. If that proves to be the prevailing attitude in Congress and the country the shocking abuses of the campaign that ended with the Nixon triumph will be standard practice from here on out.

Those abuses — big money, dirty tricks, the folly of 30 or 35 statewide primaries with separate and contradictory rules — should be carefully searched and investigated. A special Congressional committee made up of both Democrats and Republicans can carry out such an inquiry if there is any will to do so when the new Congress assembles in January.

This would not be a punitive investigation bent on putting the blame on individuals or on any political party. It should be a serious effort to determine how deeply the corruption of money and corporate power have eroded the electoral system.

The point is not the Nixon landslide. In the 10 years following his "last press conference" when he was defeated for Governor of California and announced his withdrawal from politics the President proved to be one of the most astute politicians ever. With singlemindedness of purpose after the Goldwater debacle of 1964 he worked to rebuild the structure of his party. At the center of that reconstruction was Richard Nixon.

No, the point is the means that were used to achieve the end. The Watergate bugging, the subterfuges to smuggle money into the campaign chest, the inconclusive evidence of sabotage of the Democratic primaries — these were the techniques of the host of managers in the Committee to reelect the President who may or may not have had help from individuals within the preserve of the White House.

The irony is that the result might have been the same without any cops-and-robbers stuff, since the election reflected a massive shift of voter sentiment — a political earthquake of undetermined origin and still undetermined meaning. The folly of the Watergate affair could have contributed nothing to the Nixon triumph.

The root of the evil is money. The President himself must be aware of this, confronted with the election over by a shower of IOUs from the big contributors. From Clement Stone with his million-dollar-plus gift on down through the $100,000 bracket they are casting covetous eyes on the splashy embassies where they can turn their money into social prominence. If it isn't an embassy some other comparatively undemanding post might do.

Surely it should be possible to take the simplest step outlawing these payoffs. A statute, say, what would deny to appointive office within the power of the President any individual who had contributed more than $3,000 to the campaign of a presidential candidate.

More serious and more complex is the matter of conflict of interest so blatant in the outpouring that added up to the $47 million Nixon war chest. With corporate executives among the biggest givers, their companies have matters of the highest importance turning on decisions in Washington. The Federal Power Commission, the Federal Communications Commission, to say nothing of administrative power in the White House — here is the goal of bigger corporate returns and bigger profits.

This kind of conflict of interest made the headlines only when it becomes a crude shocker as in the ITT case. Whether an ancient abuse practices by both parties, and only more conspicuous in the Nixon money shower, can be cured by legislation is doubtful.

The statewide primaries that laid the trap into which the Democrats fell are another matter. Republican crossovers when they have no contest of their own seeking to undo the Democrats are a negation of the electoral system. With New Hampshire as the conspicuous example, many primaries turn into fun fairs meant to attract the national eye. A nationwide presidential primary would surely be preferable. If it were set for September, the excruciating length of these contests could be somewhat shortened.

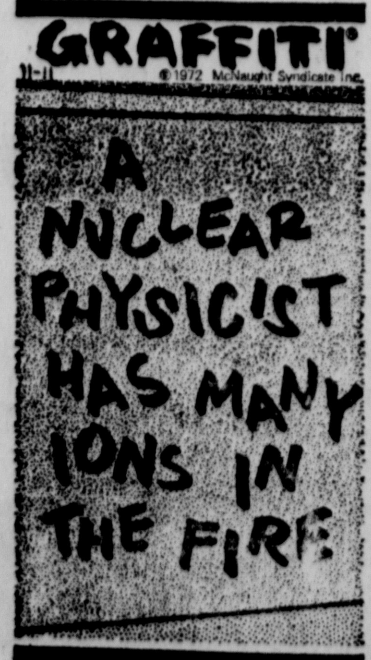

President Nixon has proved himself beyond any doubt. With this, his last, election he may see the need to put restraints — restraints he has opposed in the past — on the abuses that have been so flagrant.

"Just disregard 'measurements'—this is a pre-women's lib job application form!"

Robert Yoakum

The disasters that occasionally hit political pollsters are due only in part to sloppy sampling. Another explanation is the deviousness of people being polled.

In other words — and this will come as a blow to those of you who have illusions about your fellow citizens — some Americans stand there in front of the pollster and lie to his face. Do you require proof? Well, in 1948, after President Truman drubbed both Thomas Dewey and the pollsters, the Roper Poll conducted an inquest. To their surprise, the post-election sampling showed that voters had been lying to them and still were. For example, 80 per cent of those questioned said they had voted. But in truth only 60 per cent had.

And experimental polls taken on the eve of Tuesday's election showed that some people lied rather than admit they were voting for McGovern, perhaps because they feared being identified as pot-smoking, draft-dodging abortionists on welfare. Or they may have feared ending up on some FBI or Army list of potential subversives.

How will pollsters handle this citizens' credibility gap in the future? They can't always use secret ballots because they often want to find out why the polled replied the way he did.

The answer, I suspect, is that the pollsters will have to get tough and tricky, like prosecuting attorneys. Let's look at the kind of interview that may be routine by the 1976 election:

"Hello, madam, I am George Louis of the Gallup-Harris Poll. Would you mind telling me for whom you intend to vote in November?"

"I'm sorry, Mr. Louis, but my husband told me never to answer questions from strange young men."

"Madam, I am not strange."

Now will you please answer my question."

"Oh, all right, but for heaven's sake don't tell Pierre. We intend to vote for Vice President Agnew."

"I see. Then what is that Teddy Kennedy sticker doing on the mirror in your bedroom?"

"Who told you about that?"

"One of your neighbors."

"Oh, well, that's not my mirror. It belongs to Pierre."

"But a moment ago you said 'we' intend to vote for Agnew."

"Did I? I must have been thinking of my mother and myself."

"Mmmm. Well, let's move on: For whom did you vote in the 1972 election?"

"Put me down as undecided."

"It's a little late for that, Mrs. Pimpernell. Priscilla Pimpernell."

"As I say, it's a bit late to be recorded as undecided about an election that was held four years ago. Let's have the truth, Mrs. Pimpernell."

"All right, but whatever you do, don't tell Pierre I told you. The truth is we voted for McGovern."

"And you expect me to believe that you and your husband switched from a liberal Democratic candidate in 1972 to a conservative Republican candidate in 1976? Come now, Mrs. Pimpernell, do you take me for a fool?"

"No, no! It's just that you've gone me muddled with all these questions."

"Isn't it true, Mrs. Pimpernell, I mean Pimpernell..."

"...that, in fact, you expect to vote for Senator Kennedy?"

"Isn't it true that you lied to me? Isn't it true that you yourself pasted that Kennedy sticker on the bedroom mirror?"

"Yes, yes! It's true! I give up! I confess! I did it! I pasted the Kennedy sticker on. And it's true that George and I are going to vote for Kennedy. But for God's sake don't tell him that I told you. This is a very conservative neighborhood, and George is afraid we might get kicked out of the Bellevue Bowling League."

"George, I thought you said that I told you. This is a very conservative neighborhood, and George is afraid we might get kicked out of the Bellevue Bowling League."

"I lied about that, too. But please promise not to tell either one of them."

Editor, The Freeman:

Dick Clark, the T V personality said, "Classical music will die out because not enough people like it."

If he could see the crowds of people at our Hudson Valley Philharmonic at every concert, his view would be changed.

I say, there will always be classical music because there are many high schools and colleges giving courses in this type of music, to ever have it die out.

Modern music, that is of a popular nature, springs from the classics (compositions) but as a lover of classical music, I always felt that in due respect for the composer be it

Classical Music Always

Beethoven or any other, that the music should be played as it was composed in their generation.

I certainly would not like to hear his (Beethoven) beautiful Moonlight Sonata literally murdered by seasoning it with rock or swing.

Everyone has a right to his type of music, but one type should not attempt to alter the performing art or genius of any composer as it was meant to enrich our lives years later.

Since music is a reflector of human emotions, there are many who are so touched by it (classical) that it causes tears, but I find it to be a tranquilizer of the mind, and uplift when things don't go right or I am depressed.

We know that popular music of even recent composition dies out after a time and new ones take their place, but when Beethoven, Brahms or Schumann, have their music revived again and again after over a century of their demise, I cannot agree that classics are dying out, although many people don't care for it.

As we learn to appreciate we learn to like and the classics have symbolic connotations and we appreciate it when we fully understand it.

left the motor running. Pursuit was fruitless.

Several things are disturbing as I write this. Our two year old daughter heard the shots; she hates guns. It is difficult to explain why there are no more ducks for her to feed or visit. I'm sure those men (?) in their '68 light green Chevy didn't need the ducks for survival.

They found it enjoyable to kill them. But why? There's no challenge in shooting tame animals from five feet away. Are the three babies considered a delicacy? Or were they to have been stuffed to adorn someone's mantle? The brutality and heartlessness are overwhelming. I hope that any parents planning to buy their kids a gun for Christmas will take a close look at the learned calousness of these hunters. The lesson is all too easy to learn. That's what basic training is all about, isn't it? Where is respect for life being taught?

The pond is very empty and ugly now.

At this point I would like to make it known that the UN has had total control of our children since October 24, 1946, but most Americans don't know it.

The Children's Declaration is a diabolical instrument if there ever was one, it is a deadly and vicious attack upon the

Feraca Rejects Paltz Job

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
Reports that Kingston City Detective Joseph Feraca would not be taking the job of police chief of the Village of New Paltz after all were confirmed Saturday by New Paltz Village Trustee John Logan.

Logan is chairman of the village board's police committee, and heads the search committee for a new chief.

The long search for a replacement for now-retired Chief James Walrath appeared to be over when the village board named Feraca chief at a special meeting Oct. 10. The search had gone on since last March, when Walrath informed the board he would retire June 1.

The search went on, and Walrath eventually stayed until Aug. 31 before finally stepping down.

Richard Thompson, first as a patrolman and now as sergeant, has been the officer in charge of the village police department since Walrath's retirement.

Logan said he received a letter from Feraca Thursday in which Feraca said he would "not be available."

According to Feraca, contacted Saturday, the main reason he could not take the job was a lack of "security."

"I found out I couldn't get the security I felt I needed for myself and my family," Feraca said.

The contract, because of civil service requirements, would not have been binding on the village, he said, and he would have only had a provisional appointment as chief until the next civil service chief's exam in Dec. 1973. Feraca said that was "a long way away."

In the letter he sent declining the job, Feraca thanked the village board for its "concern and confidence" and he told The Freeman he felt there had been an honest effort on both sides during the job negotiations.

Logan said the village board had not decided what its next step would be. The board will probably look at all the previous applications it had, with some possible "reevaluation."

The trustee said the job would not go by default to John Callahan, who was one of the two finalists along with Feraca in the search. Callahan, a former Warwick police chief, would be evaluated along with the rest of the applications, Logan added.

Thompson is doing a good job as officer in charge of the department, Logan said, and the board members "... don't feel under any great pressure" to name a chief. However, the board did not intend to have an officer in charge of the department be a permanent situation, Logan said.

Police Nab 15 at 'Pot Party'

NEW PALTZ
Fifteen persons were arrested, and 14 of them sent to Ulster County Jail, after New Paltz Town Police invaded what they say was a marijuana party at 51 DuBois Road, New Paltz.

Town police report Officers Efrain Melendez, Anthony Orlando, and Dennis Zappone, responding to a complaint about a noisy party, went to the DuBois Road resident about 1 a.m.

each. Only one of the 15, Peter C. Rodgers, 25, of Far Rockaway, was able to make bail. The rest were remanded to Ulster County Jail.

Arrested along with Rodgers were: Paul J. Toscano, 24, 11 Wurts Avenue; Allan J. Cooper, 21, 51 DuBois Road; David S. Rose, 21, Brooklyn; Lee D. Gerstenhaber, Box 555A, Albany Farm Road; John S. Brugel, 21, Farmingdale, L.I.; Frank M. Lopriore, 20, Elmont, L.I.; and Grace E. Muzek, 21, 1 Church Street.

Also: Charles M. Acheaback, 25, Far Rockaway; Susan E. Whitman, 21, 5 Huguenot Street; Nicholas Tiltz, 22, Orchard Hill Apartments, Highland; Madeline M. Boyer, 20, Poughkeepsie; Sandra L. Russell, 16, Poughkeepsie; Copenhagen; and Barbara Balandier, no further information available.

Toscano, Cooper, Rose, Gerstenhaber, Brugel, Muzek, Whitman, Tiltz, and Edgell are all students at the State University College at New Paltz. Miss Cambini is a Poughkeepsie High School student.

All are scheduled for a return appearance before Schneider Friday, Nov. 17.

The officers report once they entered the premises, they observed paraphernalia for the smoking of narcotics, and the narcotics themselves. All 15 people at the party were arrested, and charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug in the sixth degree.

They were taken before Town of New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider, who set bail at $250.

Paltz Man Is Nabbed For Plants

NEW PALTZ
James N. Parsons, 32, of 106 Plains Road, New Paltz, was arrested for violating the public health laws by allegedly growing 16 marijuana plants by New Paltz Town Police Saturday afternoon.

According to town police, Patrolmen John Savago and Dennis Zappone, armed with a search warrant, entered the Plains Road residence and found the plants. Police say they also found pipes used for smoking marijuana.

Parsons was growing the plants indoors, with artificial light, police say.

Taken before Town of New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider, Parsons was released on posting $250 bail. He is scheduled for a return conference of the British appearance before Schneider Nov. 17.

Seven Injured In Mishaps

KINGSTON
Seven people were hurt, two of whom remain hospitalized, in two separate area accidents this weekend.

Barbara J. Finn, 22, of A2 Church Street, New Paltz, and Diane Harmon, 17, Broadhead Avenue, New Paltz, remain in fair condition at the Benedictine Hospital, following a one-car accident on the Boulevard near the Kingston City line, early Saturday morning.

According to city police, the car Miss Finn was operating was going south on the Boulevard, when it drove off the right side of the road onto the shoulder, proceeding another 200 feet before it struck a railroad crossing sign, and overturned.

Miss Finn sustained a broken leg and hip injuries, and Miss Harmon complained of pains of the neck and back. Patrolmen E.J. Loughlin and P.K. Kennedy investigated.

Miss Finn received summons for operating an unregistered vehicle, and being an unlicensed operator.

Five persons were hurt in a two-car accident on Route 28 in the Town of Shandaken late Friday night.

According to state police, the cars were going in opposite directions when they collided. The driver of the second car, James Marchisella, 30, of Bayside, was given a summons for failure to keep right.

Man Nabbed On Charges

Walter Ennist, 31, of Ellenville, was remanded to the Ulster County Jail Friday night, following his arrest by Ellenville Village Police on charges of public intoxication and criminal possession of a dangerous drug in the fourth degree.

According to the village police, Ennist was stopped by police for public intoxication when police noticed him drop something to the ground. Police say they recovered eight decks of heroin which had been in Ennist's possession.

He was arraigned before Ellenville Village Justice Ronald Elias.

Ennist is scheduled to return before Elias for final arraignment Nov. 14 at 7 p.m.

Detonate 18th 'Letter Bomb' Sent to Jews

LONDON (UPI)—British police Saturday found and detonated an 18th "letter bomb" mailed to Jewish individuals and organizations in Britain.

Detectives said the letters probably formed part of a consignment of similar devices sent throughout the world.

Scotland Yard has also clamped heavy security on an international Jewish gathering in London Saturday night.

A police spokesman said Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider. Parsons was released on posting $250 bail. He is scheduled for a return conference of the British appearance before Schneider Nov. 17.

Memoriam
In sad and loving memory of my dear wife and our loving mother, Veronica Szekeeres, whom God called home 3 years ago, November 12, 1969.

In this lonesome time without you, And sad in every way, Life is not the same for us, Since God took you away. Our heart aches with loneliness. Our eyes shed many tears, Only God knows how much we miss you. These sad and lonely years, We love you.

Husband, STEVE Daughter, SHARON Son, STEVE

Memoriam
In loving memory of my husband and father, Henry R. Apel, on his 14th anniversary in heaven November 12th.

His helping hand was always first, To render any aid he could. His voice was always raised in praise, His words were wise and good. Dear one, since you've gone away, The ones you loved so true, Try hard to carry on the way, We know you'd want us to.

Russians Like to Drink Bread

MOSCOW (UPI)—Next to vodka, Russia's favorite drink is bread.

That is no misprint. Russians really do drink their bread, in the form of Kvas, a tart, refreshing and filling liquid based on rye toast.

From late spring until snow begins to cover the ground, Muscovites line up for their kvas at hundreds of tank wagons parked at corners of buildings.

Caldor Celebrates 21st

NORWALK, CONN. All 20 Caldor stores in Connecticut, New York and Massachusetts are celebrating the company's 21st anniversary next week with a special "Coming of Age" sale.

Caldor got started in 1951 in Port Chester, N.Y. when Carl Bennett and his wife, Dorothy, opened a walkup discount store. Discounting in those days was a new phenomenon in general merchandise retailing, offering customers attractive savings on appliances and other hardlines.

In the years since, the full line discount department store has become a $35 billion a year business. Caldor's own sales have grown to an expected $130 million for the current fiscal year which ends Jan. 29, 1973.

Later this month, the 21st Caldor store will open in its 21st year, in New Britain, Conn. The founder is still at the helm, although from a husband-wife team, company personnel has now grown to more than 3,000. On looking back, Bennett says, "We saw a new turn in the retailing wheel coming and our company has been fortunate to grow so substantially based on a simple premise — that customers appreciate savings on quality merchandise in a store that emphasizes friendly, courteous service by trained employees."

He says this policy is still the company's guiding philosophy, although the business has changed somewhat through the years. "We offer a much broader assortment of merchandise now, for example linens and domestics, and our most recent addition, equipment and materials for home improvement projects." Today's Caldor store has 85 merchandise departments in an average 84,000 square foot store. The original store was less than 1,500 square feet and featured mostly small appliances and luggage. Regarded as one of the most successful regional discount-department store operations in the Northeast, Caldor is proud of its reputation for excellence. It stems from such policies as Caldor's famous "double guarantee" and its concern for its customer's needs. When a Caldor customer walks through the door in any of its stores, the first thing he sees is the Customer Service Desk.

Looking to the future, the company is presently implementing a new corporate identity program that will update the store's family shopping center image and give the new stores to be built a modern feeling with their swept wing front facades.

"We think our stores will be even more colorful and exciting to shop than ever before when our new program is fully implemented," Bennett said.

A Caldor store is located in Kingston, N.Y. on Ulster Avenue Mall.

LEOPOLD AND THE 1920 MINERVA

Michael Chevrolet Inc. . . . Rare Antiques on Display

KINGSTON according to Michael Leopold, who operates the agency. The four antiques, a 1920 right-hand drive Minerva; a 1937 Cadillac Model 70 Fleet; Chevrolet Inc., 731 Broadway, wood Phaeton, a 1927 Cadillac wrecker and a 1948 Chevrolet Fleetmaster four-door sedan, will be joined on the Michael Chevrolet showroom floor by a 1967 Austin-Healey 3000 Mark III.

The display may be seen from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily except for Wednesdays, when the hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is no charge for viewing the display and favors are being handed out to those who attend.

Leopold said the Minerva has only 3,000 miles on it, and is in completely original condition, with no restoration of it ever being done or necessary.

The Chevrolet was originally sold right here in Kingston, Leopold said, and has remained in the city.

The Austin-Healey is one of the last one's made, and has 30,000 original miles on it, Leopold said. It is also a local car.

The antique cars are from the estate of the late Clayton S. Elmendorf, and were sold at auction Saturday, Nov. 4. About 400 antique and classic car enthusiasts crowded Doc Smith's Garage to bid on the late Mr. Elmendorf's prized collection of cars.

The cars are part of recent Kingston history, and Leopold said he felt it was a nice idea to allow Kingston residents a chance to view them.

The four antiques and the Austin-Healey are for sale. Leopold said his firm had been buying antique and classic cars for resale for "A number of years."

RADIO SHACK OPENING — Another Radio Shack store started sending up signals this week in the growing family of stores in the Mammoth Mall area, Ulster Avenue Mall. William J. Otto (L) is manager of the new local store and welcoming him is Clifford Atfield, district manager for the Radio Shack chain. Radio Shack's grand opening special sales will continue through Nov. 15, Otto said. (Freeman photo by Kruh.)

Area Business News

We can't answer you all; there have been just too many who have written or phoned us since the fire last week.

We have always felt a special warmth in this community; we appreciated it while we were in business — it didn't take a disaster to demonstrate it to us. But we are inordinately grateful for your reaction to what ordinarily might have seemed a private calamity. And we thank the city's firemen and policemen who exhibited such a high degree of professionalism.

What are we going to do? Start again, of course—as fast as we can! It will be a newer, brighter YALLUM'S, but with the same staff, and — we hope — the same customers.

Meanwhile, our office phone (338-2911) will be functioning to help with specific questions.

Again, Our Thanks.

...and in general, conditions "invited" profit-taking." Old peaks remain to be climbed, but "prospects remain favorable for the future," Smerling says.

Newton Zinder of E. F. Hutton & Co. Inc. says "after some consolidation and digestion of the gains of the past week, the stock market should resume its advance." The overall trend is definitely upward, he says and the market should see better prices in the near future. "And the price improvement will occur in days instead of weeks," Zinder adds.

There was nothing startling in Wednesday's market slip back, according to Lucien Hooper of W. E. Hutton, Inc. "The fact that the market entitles it to sell off a little," Hooper said. With President Nixon's reelection and a generally quieter climate, with fewer riots, etc., Hooper believes the market is healthier than it has been in a long time. "There has definitely been an improvement in investor sen-

Ellenville Captures UCAL Championship

By STEVE KANE

ELLENVILLE
Ellenville High School's tenacious defense put the clamps on high-scoring Red Hook here Saturday, and with the help of three pass interceptions and a tiger named Tennenbaum, whipped the Raiders, 6-0, to win the Ulster County Athletic League football championship.

Steve Tennenbaum, a stand-out both ways for the Ellies all season, stole a Red Hook aerial at the end of the third quarter and returned it 41 yards to set up the game's only touchdown. He tried twice to crack the Red Hook wall, but on third and goal, quarterback Kyle Hoar slipped in from the one for the touchdown. The fourth quarter was an exciting 12 minutes while Ellenville turned back several Red Hook thrusts with great defensive plays. The Raiders too came back to life and even got inside the Ellenville 10, but they couldn't get on the scoreboard. Red Hook took the touchdown kickoff and started to move. A big penalty against the Blue Devils helped, but quarterback Matt King slipped and fell while trying to throw on fourth down, and the winners got the ball back at mid field.

Red Hook held the Ellies then started all over again from their own 32. King rolled right and kept right on going for 54 yards before Tennenbaum saved a touchdown by catching him from behind on the Ellenville 14. That stymied the Raiders temporarily, but a big interception by Ray Younger at the goal line thwarted the drive for good.

Time was running out, but the Raiders got one more shot when they regained possession on the Ellenville 36 with a little over a minute to play. King was the league's top passer this season, and the fact that Ellenville had failed to make their extra point put victory within the Raider grasp, but another interception, Tennenbaum's second of the day, killed the Raider chances as the clock ran out.

The victory and even the championship was just a bonus for Dave Frank's Blue Devils. Dead last in the UCAL last year with a 1-8 record, even a 6-3 season would have been amazing progress for the young and small Ellies. Finishing 7-2, however, is just short of a miracle.

"I'm unconscious," mumbled Frank after the game, and he had a right to be. The first half hadn't been encouraging for either team. Ellenville had managed to contain the powerful Raider offense, but the Blue Devil attack hadn't gone anywhere either. One beautifully executed screen pass from Hoar to Gary Wilhelm netted 20 yards, but that was as close to a bomb as the Ellies could come.

Red Hook, on the other hand, wasn't playing up to its previous performances. King was having trouble handling the ball, and his pass protection wasn't up to its usual standards.

"They just outthit us," said Raider coach John Neilson, and that certainly was the story of the second half. The Ellies stepped up their defensive pressure and it showed on the Raider effectiveness.

Stan Foo and Herman Pinque, Ellenville defensive linemen, shut off the middle on Red Hook's All-UCAL running duo, Bill Reid and Gary O'Connor. The rest of the Devil defense was led by linebackers Wilhelm and Bob Pensa and halfbacks Tennenbaum and Younger.

Frank calmed down enough to make some comments: "It was a fantastic end to a gratifying season. No one let us down either offensively or defensively, in fact both clubs were very poised and businesslike. No one expected us to come out of last place like that, but the kids just refused to accept less than that. It was just fantastic."

Frank felt the poor weather conditions served as an equalizer for the teams. "Red Hook likes to go outside probably just as much as we do, but nobody could really pass today, and it became a question of a couple of big plays."

Neilson gave the Ellies a little more credit: "They outthit us and they out hustled us. Tennenbaum timed that interception just perfectly. On a few other plays when Matt (King) went back to pass he just couldn't get his footing. I'm certainly not disappointed in our season," he concluded, "but it is a disappointing way to end it."

Red Hook finished with a 6-2-1 record to tie for second place with Highland.

Ithaca Upsets Hobart, 17-7

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Ithaca's unsung defense halted Hobart's stellar running backs Don Aleksiewicz and Rich Kowalski Saturday and sparked Ithaca to an upset 17-7 triumph in a college football game.

Aleksiewicz, a senior playing his last game, was a nationally ranked rushing leader averaging 146 yards a game. Against Ithaca's stubborn defense, he managed 76 yards, for a season total of 1,249 and 4,598 in his career. Kowalski, a freshman with a rushing average of 123 yards a game, got 71 yards against Ithaca to crack the 1,000-yard barrier by 57.

The Hobart offense was limited to 21 yards rushing, far below their average of 400 yards rushing a game.

Hobart scored first when Aleksiewicz went in from the 5-yard line for his 13th TD this year, for 286 career points. Ithaca came right back with Tom Bryant scoring from one yard out.

Monzon Keeps Boxing Title

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Middleweight champion Carlos Monzon hammered out a unanimous decision over challenger Benny Briscoe in Luna Park Stadium Saturday night in his toughest of seven title defenses.

Briscoe, a veteran Philadelphia left-hander, caught the taller Monzon with a right cross to the cheek in round nine, sending the champion into a corner and badly dazed the champion. Monzon threw both arms about Briscoe in a desperate clinch. His eyes rolled and his knees buckled.

The referee had to pry him away.

The elated Briscoe, 29, and in his first title bout after 12 years of campaigning refused to sit down after that round, and went for the kill in the 10th, but Monzon had recuperated by then.

The determined Briscoe attacked implacably all night seeking the in-fighting that he specializes in. The cagey champion, 31, undefeated in 71 straight bouts and winner of the last 18 by knockout, retreated consistently, countering intelligently.

PURSUIT — Matt King (20), is racing for safety, but he's about to be nailed for a four-yard loss by Ellenville defensive back Steve Tennenbaum (19). Tennenbaum later intercepted two of King's passes.

New York State, That Is

Cabell Goes All the Way

ROCHESTER
John Cabell became the first Kingston High School runner ever to win a state championship Saturday when he closed out his achievement-filled varsity career with a decisive victory in the class A New York State scholastic cross-country race over the Rochester Institute of Technology course here.

The slim Maroon senior breezed to his win in 12:49 to take the 23rd Howard A. Westcott Intersectional Cross-Country run. He beat 84 competitors to the finish including teammate Keith White who ran a strong 14th.

Howie McNiff of Albertus Magnus High School won the Class B race, and North Salem's Kevin Murphy took the Class C run.

Other local harriers who placed in the competition included New Paltz High School's Joe McDermott who ran 23rd in the B race, and Phil Hand, the Ulster County Athletic League champion, who placed second to Murphy in the Class C race. Other Class C runners were Marlboro's Don Angst in 49th place, and Coleman's Tony Manee in 50th. Tom Nee in 53rd and Paul Schiller in 96th.

Cabell went through the last two seasons undefeated in regular competition. That was a victory streak of 23 meets, and in addition to that he won the Dutchess County Scholastic League individual title both years.

This season Cabell added the Section One title to his credits as he led Kingston to a 9-0 league record. The Kingston whiz holds the course record at almost every course he's run on in the last two years.

In the shadow of all this glory the performance of Keith White also stands out. The "other" Maroon also closed out his career, and for Kingston to have sent two individuals to this meet without the rest of the team is an accomplishment in itself.

Maroon coach Ron Gabriele pointed out the rarity of having two runners in the state run at the same time:

"It's just unbelievable. Those two guys finished 1-2 in eight of our meets this year, and in the other one Keith was third. He's shown a tremendous improvement this year. He's got to be the second greatest runner Kingston ever had."

Gabriele was also proud of Cabell's performance. "He is a truly self-motivated person," he said. "He has worked so hard that he simply deserved to win, and it's a tribute to himself and the City of Kingston that he did. I flatly predict the Olympics in '76 for him."

In the sectional result Section VI, from the Buffalo area, took first place with Section I placing second.

Highland Upsets Liberty

Backup quarterback Ken Colabella came into the Highland High School lineup in the third period here Saturday and sparked the Big Blue to a 12-8 come-from-behind victory over Liberty.

The win boosted Highland's record to 6-2-1 and earned them a tie for second place in the UCAL's final standings with Red Hook. Liberty finished 4-5 on the year, the first losing season ever for the Redskins since joining the league.

Fighting back from an 8-0 Liberty halftime lead, Colabella's appearance got the Blue moving after taking over the ball in Indian territory. Anthony Casiero, Highland's top point-producer all year, dashed 10 yards in the third quarter to narrow the gap to 8-6.

Frank Diodoto, the regular signal-caller for Len Atkins squad, came back in the final period and hooked up with Tom Rozzi on a 15-yard scoring strike to put the winners ahead for keeps.

It was a big win in more than one respect for Highland. Liberty was the favorite, an edge resulting from their home field, bigger size and recent performances. Highland also was fighting off the expectations of a rebuilding season as most of last year's championship squad graduated.

The outweighed Highland line, however, responded with an exceptional blocking performance against the Indians as the winners racked up 157 yards on the ground to Liberty's 107. Mike Stokes, a 150 pound center, led the offensive chargers.

Other standouts for the Blue in their win were Pat Pape, who aided the rushing game and turned in eight tackles on defense, and Tom Gino, a, the Big Blue's all-star guard, with seven tackles.

Sawyers Close With Win

HYDE PARK
Dave Fuller, the Sawyers big bruising fullback, ran for two touchdowns to pace Saugerties High School in their 19-8 victory Saturday over host, Roosevelt High.

Fuller and Jim Whiteford continually "on right" through the Presidents' defense, as they helped the Sawyers gain 264 yards rushing. The Sawyers first score climaxed an eleven play, forty-seven yard drive, with Fuller going over from the one yard line. With time running out in the first half, the Sawyers threatened again by running back an interception to the Roosevelt thirty-eight. They could only fit in two plays before the half ended, however.

The game lived up in the second half. Late in the third quarter, Roosevelt started a series of downs on its own twenty-three, but found itself losing thirteen yards in three plays. The fourth-down punt was blocked by a Sawyer, and Doug Whiteford, Jim's brother, recovered the ball in the end zone for the second Sawyer tally. Saugerties now led, 13-0.

The Presidents started to make a contest out of it at this point. After running the Sawyer kickoff to their own forty yard line, they took just one play to score: a sixty yard bomb from Jim Lamoce to Dave Pisanelli on the right sideline. When Lamoce's two point conversion pass to R. Clarke was successful, the Presidents were rejuvenated. They were behind 13-8, and ready for more scoring.

Saugerties came right back to assert final command of the game on its next series. Eight plays took them seventy-five yards, with Fuller's fantastic thirty-one yard run capping the scoring drive. His second touchdown of the day made it 19-8, Saugerties on top, and that was the final.

But the game wasn't even that close. The Presidents only got past midfield three times. Two of those drives ended on the forty-five yard line. The other drive, occurring on the first series of the game, ended on the Sawyers ten yard line.

"That was the turning point of the game, when our defense stiffened up on that early scoring threat," remarked Saugerties coach Fred Seither. He also cited Fuller and the Whiteford brothers for outstanding individual efforts in the game.

So Saugerties finishes the DCSL season with a record of 6-2, and have to play the anxious waiting game until Saturday to find out their final finish in the league race. Part of that story will be written when Bob Bragg's Roosevelt team, now 2-5, plays Arlington on Saturday.

Bushmen Winners, 6-0

PINE BUSH
Rondout High School was beaten at their own game Saturday — defense. Homesteading Pine Bush bottled up the Ganders to 83 yards in total offense as they made Tom Engels' 10 yard touchdown pass to Jim Caputo in the second quarter stand up to a 6-0 Bushman win.

The loss knocked Rondout out of the title picture as they finished 5-2 on the season and in fourth place in the UCAL.

Mostly a defensive battle in the soggy weather conditions, a big punt return by Engels set up the game's lone score. He lugged it 26 yards to give the Bushmen position on the yard. Rondout 24 in the second defense stopped them cold on quarter. Quarterback Engel sent John Savoli into the line for gains, then on third down found Caputo open for the winning touchdown.

Winning coach John Shaughnessy cited defense as the key to victory. He singled out Bob Pirog and Jim Falco who each battled down a pass in the end zone, and Chris Swiat, whose 41-yard punt average kept the Ganders out of range all day.

Lake Placid Files Bid for Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The village of Lake Placid, site in 1932 of the first Winter Olympics in the United States, has officially entered the unannounced bidding for the 1976 Winter Games.

Colorado voters last Tuesday rejected that state's funding the Games, awarded to Denver by the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

In a statement mailed Friday, Lake Placid Mayor Robert J. Peacock said he had sent telegrams to the IOC and the U.S. Olympic Committee requesting consideration of this small Adirondack village "as State of New York are inter-an alternate site for the 1976 Winter Olympic Games."

Before and after the elections, Lake Placid officials had made their desire to have the games here clear but maintained they would wait before making an official bid.

IOC officials said this week that the committee could take no action until Denver officially notified it that the Games could not be staged there and, even then, any decision would take months.

"The United States was awarded the Winter Games for 1976," Peacock said, "and if the federal government and the small Adirondack village 'as State of New York are interested in funding the games in Lake Placid, serious consideration should be given to this possibility by the people of this community."

He pointed out that the costs of erecting an Olympic Village would be less here—perhaps below the amount Congress had earmarked for Denver—than elsewhere because most of the necessary facilities stand from 1932.

"While all of the necessary facilities exist, each one needs improvements to make them adequate under the existing requirements of the various international sports federations," the mayor said.

The major new facilities that would be required are housing units for the athletes and others attending the Games.

Some Lake Placid officials have suggested that the buildings could be used after the games to expand the North Country Community College into a four-year school. Peacock said in his statement that any new facilities "should be of multiple-use construction so they would be available for sensible and economic use following the games."

He said it was with the conditions of "full funding and multiple-use buildings" in mind that he sent the telegrams.

Other village officials have said some residents here object to bringing the games here for the same reasons Coloradoans rejected them—potential environmental damage and excessive costs.

Rangers Roll, 7-2

NEW YORK (UPI)—Line-mates Bill Fairbairn, Walt Tkaczuk and Steve Vickers scored a goal apiece Saturday to carry the New York Rangers to a 7-2 National Hockey League victory over the California Golden Seals.

Tkaczuk, the outstanding player on the ice, also assisted on two goals as the Rangers remained unbeaten on home ice through eight games. During that stretch, New York has outscored the opposition 43-13.

Vic Hadfield got the Rangers started with a power play goal midway through the first period, and after Rick Smith drew California even with a blue line drive, Fairbairn put New York ahead for good when he converted a pass from Tkaczuk with only 10 seconds left in the first period.

Bruce MacGregor, with his first goal of the season, and Tkaczuk boasted the Ranger lead to 4-1 in the second period and Vickers, defenseman Ab DeMarco and Glen Sather all scored in the third period for the Rangers. Sather's goal, his first of the season, came when New York was short-handed with eight seconds left in the game.

Kingston High Routs Lourdes in DCSL, 35-6

RETURN WITH INTEREST — Kingston High School's John Fay (20) is off and running with Lourdes' Ken Gallagher in futile pursuit. Fay was sprung by a block by an unidentified teammate as he returned this punt for a big pickup. The Maroons did just about everything right at Dietz Stadium Saturday, stomping the Warriors, 35-6.

KINGSTON
Senior running back Bob Marz never looked better than in Saturday afternoon's 35-6 Kingston High School football rout of Our Lady of Lourdes. It is claimed that the man who carries the ball (or throws it) gets all the glory, but against Lourdes Marz made his own breaks totalling 189 yards rushing and ignoring tacklers with impunity. Three startling runs in the second, third, and fourth quarters respectively were 38, 50, and 56 yards. He saw no first quarter action. Coach Tony Badalato, commenting after the game, said he couldn't really be accused of running up the score, as it was 21-6 going into the fourth period, but he also wanted to give his boys a chance to make up for a shellacking suffered at the hands of Lourdes last year. And, being the final home game of the year, the seniors saw plenty of action. The season finale Saturday at Poughkeepsie he anticipated as being particularly difficult for Kingston's running game, as the Pioneers have the biggest defensive unit in the DCSL. A win Saturday, however, would give the Maroons a winning 5-4 record, something eagerly sought after considering the disappointing start the team suffered through. Lourdes drew first blood early in the second quarter after the teams traded punts and slid around in the mud in the early going. Lourdes was hitting hard during the first half of the game, but a lack of depth was apparent in the second half with the visitors apparently tiring. Two standout Lourdes runners were sidelined with injuries suffered in the Sauter game, Steve Kerins and Michael Muscatelli. Rich Andresen returned a Kingston punt 40 yards, stepping down the left sideline and bouncing off tacklers, to put Lourdes on the board. An attempted pass from quarterback John Williams to Kevin Gallagher was out of reach, and that was the sum of the losers' scoring. After having two of his passes picked off, Kingston quarterback Walt Houghtaling stuck mostly to the ground. Marz' presence in the game was quickly felt, and he carried three times for a first down on the Lourdes 38. Houghtaling followed blockers through the line for a 38-yard slant for the score, and he followed up with his first of five consecutive successful conversion kicks to make it 7-6. The second Kingston score, minutes before halftime, was set up as Engelhardt carried to his own 42 and Marz was sprung loose for a 38 yard carry to the Lourdes 20. He took an eight-yard screen pass to the 12, and John Carter took a reverse to the five. With Carter spread right, Houghtaling fired him a strike and Carter raced into the end zone. The quarterback kicked the extra point. Kingston upped it to 21-6 after two more Marz runs, first to his own 46 and then a 50-yard run following two blockers to the one foot line. Bill Samuels leaped over the pile of prostrate bodies for the TD, and Houghtaling kicked. A brief Lourdes threat was quelled when Lee Geanuleas intercepted his second Williams pass of the day. Geanuleas, Turco, Powers, and Carey all played tough defense in concert with several others. Down 21-6, Williams started to go to the air in an effort to get back into the game, and he hit a few to bring his team down to the Kingston 18, with some help from Kingston penalties early in the fourth quarter, but the chance was missed as penalties forced Lourdes to give up the ball on downs near midfield. Marz' next run shocked everyone, as he broke three tackles to race 56 yards almost right up the middle of the field in a display of power and speed for his only touchdown of the game, and Houghtaling repeated his perfect kicking performance for a 28-6 score. Final score, with three minutes remaining, had Houghtaling lofting a 35 yard pass to Carter to the five and John Fay carrying in over the middle of the line. Houghtaling booted his fifth conversion.

Bowl Selectors In a Dilemma

By United Press International

The luster of three of the big showdowns of the 1972 college football season was dimmed Saturday by surprising results that stunned the fans and left some bowl selectors in a real dilemma.

The UCLA-USC, Nebraska-Oklahoma and Michigan-Ohio State games were the ones affected by Saturday's surprises as Nebraska was tied and both UCLA and Ohio State were beaten.

Nebraska, ranked second, was tied by 14th ranked Iowa State 23-21, injury-riddled Ohio State, ranked fifth, lost to fired-up Michigan State 19-12 and eighth-ranked UCLA was beaten by Washington 30-21.

In the big battle Saturday, third-ranked Alabama beat sixth-ranked LSU 35-21 and that practically clinches an Orange Bowl post for the Crimson Tide, who were blasted by Nebraska in last year's game.

The bowl bids are scheduled to go out on Nov. 18 but the Orange Bowl committee has a real problem. If the committee invites Nebraska and the Cornhuskers are beaten by Oklahoma on Thanksgiving Day, the Orange Bowl will be stuck with a club that has two losses and a tie. If it takes Oklahoma and the Sooners lose to Nebraska, it will have a club with two losses.

Texas) and the Sugar Bowl picture is up in the air. Notre Dame is likely to be invited but the Irish haven't announced if they'll accept a bid.

The most puzzling result Saturday was Nebraska's tie with Iowa State. After that opening game loss to UCLA, the Cornhuskers rolled up seven straight successes and only one team came closer than 30 points to them.

But things went wrong for the Cornhuskers Saturday. They were guilty of six turnovers—as was Iowa State—and Nebraska avoided defeat only because Tom Goedjen, who kicked a 46-yard field goal in the game, missed a conversion kick with 23 seconds left after George Amundson tied the game with his third touchdown pass.

Ohio State's loss wasn't as surprising as the Nebraska tie. The Buckeyes have been plagued with injuries and Michigan State is determined to give retiring Coach Duffy Daugherty a fine sendoff. Dirk Krijt, a junior college transfer from the Netherlands who switched to football after trying out for the soccer squad, kicked four field goals to pace the Spartans.

UCLA, which had lost only to Michigan this year, may have been guilty of looking ahead to next week's game with USC.

The return of Washington's Sonny Sixkiller didn't help the Bruins either. Playing for the first time in a month, he set up fullback Pete Taggares for four touchdown plunges with his fine passing.

Quarterback Terry Davis passed for two touchdowns and scored a third himself on a 25 yard run and set up the fourth with two runs totaling 42 yards as Alabama routed LSU. Bert Jones accounted for the three LSU touchdowns, passing for two and running for a third. And the Bama defense, routed by Nebraska in last year's Orange Bowl, could have problems in another Bowl test.

In other games involving ranked teams, fifth ranked Michigan blanked Iowa 31-0, Oklahoma, ranked seventh, beat Missouri 17-6, ninth-ranked Texas beat Baylor 17-3, 11th ranked Penn State beat North Carolina State 37-22, 12th ranked Notre Dame beat Air Force 21-7, 15th ranked Texas Tech lost to TCU 31-7, and North Carolina, tied with Colorado for the 16th spot, beat Virginia 23-3 while Colorado beat Kansas 33-8.

Southern California, the top-ranked team, 10th ranked Auburn and 13th ranked Tennessee were idle.

Dennis Franklin passed for two touchdowns and ran for a

First Perfect Grid Season For Middlebury Since '27

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP)—Middlebury College senior halfback Phil Pope ran through the rain and mud for 163 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to spark a 34-14 football win for the Vermont visitors over luckless Union College.

It completed 8-0 Middlebury's first undefeated season in 35 years. Union is 3-5 with one game remaining.

Pope ended the season with 18 TDs to his credit. The Panthers' other halfback, Tom O'Connor, wasn't idle, contributing scores on a 23-yard jaunt and a 33-yard pass play. Quarterback Pete Mackey threw that second one, kicked three extra points, passed for a fourth and sneaked over from the one for a TD of his own.

Union's Ron Westbrook of Holyoke, Mass., led the Dutchmen's attempt to overcome the Middlebury steamroller, scoring on a 12-yard run and an 84-yard kickoff return in the second period.

VOLVO: IT'S BIGGER THAN YOU THINK.
The Volvos in our showroom are bigger inside than many larger cars. Take our Volvo 144 sedan. It has more front seat legroom than a Cadillac DeVille. More legroom in back than a Buick Electra. And a trunk bigger than a Lincoln Continental's.

The sticker is equally startling. It lists the equipment you don't pay extra to get. Four-wheel power disc brakes, fully-reclining bucket seats, whitewall radial ply tires, tinted glass, electric rear window defroster. How much for a Volvo that roomy and that well equipped? Less than you might think. $3620.*

Doreen and Jumbo Jet in Collision

Laurel Race to Droll Role

WASHINGTON D.C. (UPI)—early pace, and Mejiro Musasi of Japan, the last horse to finish.

The field had been reduced to nine this morning when Cougar II was withdrawn because the track was soft.

Braulio Baeza rode Doll Roll for John McSchiff, a New York stockbroker. The son of Tom Rolfe was, timed in 2:38 4/5 seconds over the soggy course and paid $9.60, $4.60 and $4.00 across the board.

Parnell, ridden by Willie Carson, England's champion jockey this year, paid $4.80 and $4.60 while Steel Pulse, with Bill Williamson in the saddle, paid $11.40.

This was the sixth major victory of the year for Droll Roll, who picked up a winners' purse of $100,000 to raise his earnings for the year to $471,633.

The good Lord has been good to me," Baeza said after the race. He was referring to his victory this year in England, where he rode Robert to victory in the Benson and Hedges Stakes. "It was wonderful. My horse was full of run and I had no trouble taking the lead. I hit him only once just to keep his mind on the race."

Riva Ridge also almost fell, according to jockey Jorge Velasquez, who took him to the front at the start. Bell Geste immediately challenged him and the pair set the pace through the stretch the first time and around the clubhouse turn. As the field straightened out, Boreen suddenly went down. Jumbo Jet, who had traveled 11,000 miles to run in the race, tripped over the fallen horse and almost fell on top of him.

San San, who was trailing the field, swung wide to avoid the tangled animals and lost several lengths because of the maneuver.

Lester Pigot, who was aboard Jumbo Jet, got to his feet almost immediately while Buster Parnell, who fell with Boreen, crawled under the rail and then lay on the ground for several minutes before getting to his feet.

Pigot hurt his right hand while Parnell got a bloody nose and a laceration on his back. Dr. Davie Pace, the track veterinarian, said both horses were "ok."

"We were cantering along nicely when he stepped in a hole," Parnell later said of Boreen. "I inspected the hole and it's about 12 inches deep. Hugo Dolan is the owner of several times. I will not be Boreen and he said rolling the course without filling in the pot holes is bad. It should be taken care of before. I think my horse might have won had he not gone down."

But the pot holes had been filled in and the sod all replaced after horses exercised on it, but the point where the horses fell had been tabbed as one of the softest on the track this morning by trainer Charley Whittingham when he decided to scratch Cougar.

"It's just too soggy with no real bottom," he said.

Jean Cruget, who rode San San, said he was forced to pull up to a walk and was turned sideways by the spill. "That cost me whatever chance we had to win," he said. "We came all that way for nothing."

But it was a day of glory for Droll Roll, who proved his ability on similar footing several times. "I will not be able to complain about the track and the horse is at his peak form. I'll have no excuses if he doesn't win," trainer Tom Kelley said earlier in the week.

He didn't need any excuses for Droll Roll easily was the best horse who stayed on his feet throughout the race. After leaving seventh for more than half a mile, Droll Roll suddenly shot to the front and opened up a three length lead.

Parnell went after him. At the top of the stretch the English horse had closed the gap to about two lengths but in the drive through the stretch he was no match for the winner.

"I thought we had him at the start of the stretch," jockey Carson said. "I waited till then to make my move but the winner was just too much. Parnell is the kind of horse you have to push all the way and I pushed as hard as I could."

Jorge Velasquez, who rode Riva Ridge, said Riva Ridge, who only this morning earned a starting berth in the race by working out satisfactorily on the turf, did everything he could.

Outside of the lone Army horse, the Cadets were able to move the ball into Syracuse territory only once, moving to the 40 later in the fourth quarter. Syracuse held the Cadets to 170 total yards, including 36 yards in 30 rushes.

The Orangemen nearly doubled that total, wracking up 316 yards, 234 on the ground.

The loss evened the Cadets record at 4-4. They have two games remaining.

Syracuse Topples Army

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Syracuse University's rejuvenated offense, led by fullback Marty Januszkiewicz and tailback Roger Praetorius, ran through Army 27-6, Saturday on muddy Archbold Stadium before 19,825 fans.

Seniors Januszkiewicz and Praetorius teamed up for 207 yards as the Orangemen evened their season record at 5-5, closing the season next Saturday against West Virginia at Morgantown.

Each of the starting backs notched a touchdown, with wingback Mike Bright starting the end-zone parade on a five-yard run with nine minutes gone in the first quarter. The sophomore's score capped a six-play, 53-yard drive highlighted by Januszkiewicz's 39-yard run.

Syracuse's longest scrimmage play was a 70-yard run by Quarterback Rob Sutton, a sophomore from Buffalo making his first varsity start, marched Ben Schwartzwalder's charges in the second period, plunging over from the five himself. Sutton totaled 100 yards in offense, with 42 yards on the ground and 58 yards in the air on five completions in eight attempts.

Januszkiewicz, returning to the field after a three-game absence due to a pulled groin muscle, scored from two yards out with 13 seconds left in the first half. The touchdown, which capped a five-play, 24-yard drive, was set up by an interception by linebacker Ray Preston and a pass from Sutton to end Chris Hoornbeck to Army's one-yard line.

Praetorius, who picked up 80 yards in 17 carries, gave Syracuse its fourth touchdown on the opening play of the fourth quarter. Praetorius' two-yard dive climaxed an 11-play, 59-yard drive.

Army scored with four minutes left in the game on a one-yard plunge by halfback Bob Hines. Hines' score came three plays after a 31-yard pass from substitute quarterback Dick Atha to end Barry Armstrong that put the Black Knights on the SU three.

Outside of the lone Army horse, the Cadets were able to move the ball into Syracuse territory only once, moving to the 40 later in the fourth quarter. Syracuse held the Cadets to 170 total yards, including 36 yards in 30 rushes.

The Orangemen nearly doubled that total, wracking up 316 yards, 234 on the ground.

The loss evened the Cadets record at 4-4. They have two games remaining.

New Paltz Wins, 6-0

WALLKILL game," said Walkkill coach Jerry Trezza. "Except for that one break they didn't get in scoring position, but they were able to move the ball on the ground. The weather hurt us—we depend on speed and deception rather than power—but I know you have to make your own breaks to win."

The fumble came after the Huggies stalled on their second series of the game. They kicked on fourth down from around mid-field, but the Walkkill deep man couldn't find the handle and it was first and goal. New Paltz.

The victory lifted the winners to a 3-6 season, a satisfying ending for a team that started out the season with five straight losses. New Paltz finishes in eighth place in the standings; the Panthers are last with a 1-8 slate.

"I thought we'd win a few more," said Trezza, "but I'm only a little disappointed with the season. We knew it would take some time, but we're satisfied with the progress the kids made."

Dukes Tip Onteora In Game of Errors

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

BOICEVILLE Marlboro High spotted home-standing Onteora a first quarter touchdown, then rallied for three of its own to score a decisive 22-7 victory in a UCAI contest in which every touchdown resulted from an error.

The rain, an implacable foe of high school football throughout the season, was again an unwitting guest and Coach Larry Karas' hopes of arousing his Indians to one last effort were never materialized.

Pat Dodge scored on an eight-yard screen pass from quarterback Charlie Mazzola for Onteora's only score to climax a 41-yard drive that started when Ray Tosi recovered a Marlboro fumble on Marlboro's first play after the opening kickoff.

That was the last good break of the day for Onteora. The Dukes came storming back to capitalize on two pass interceptions by quarterback Charlie Jones and a crucial 15-yard penalty against OCS when the 11th man didn't report to the huddle.

Mike Moriello who racked up more than 100 yards for the Dukes, scored on a 12-yard run. Jim Pagano raced eight yards with a pass that John Giammentra had batted into the air inside the OCS 10 and Manny Loperogio dashed over from the six to account for three Duke TDs.

And, talk about breaks haunting a team. On both Marlboro touchdown drives following the Jones interceptions, the Dukes retained possession on the hoary "forward fumble" play.

Mark Gallagher's recovery of a Marlboro fumble on the Onteora 31 soon turned into ashes. After an incomplete pass, Coach Karas decided on a substitute but the unwary lad never did report to the huddle. The officials marched off to the OCS 16. A Mazzola pass failed and his next one was blocked by Giammentra and tipped into Pagano's hands for the TD.

In the third quarter, Marlboro marched 4 yards after the first Jones interception. Loperogio, Moriello and Jones alternated to the OCS 20. A forward fumble carried to the OCS 12 and Moriello slammed over for the second touchdown.

It happened again in the fourth quarter, Jones racing to the Onteora 30 with a pass steal. Loperogio picked up five. Another forward fumble and Marlboro was on the OCS 15. In due time, Moriello crashed through from the six and rushed for two more.

Coach Art Smith, who said he had only 13 first stringers available, gave his offensive line credit for the Marlboro showing. He also praised Moriello's running on a damp, slippery gridiron. He noted that the two interceptions brought Jones' total to six for the season.

The exact statistics of the game will never be known. Coincidentally, the notes of both the Marlboro and Onteora statisticians were blotted out by the rain.

MORE FAMILIES LIVE IN NATIONAL HOMES THAN ANY OTHER HOMES IN THE WORLD

Now in Kingston there really is a difference between rent a car companies. The Wizard of Avis.

Most people think rent a car companies are pretty much alike.

Most people are wrong.

The Wizard of Avis makes renting a car easier than ever before. The Wizard of Avis. The most sophisticated computer in the travel world. Now at many Avis counters. Soon almost everywhere.

How does it work?

Well, suppose you make a reservation and give The Wizard all the information it needs. When you come to pick up your car, The Wizard will remember everything you told it and automatically print up your form with absolute clarity in seconds. That's fast.

And if you're a Golden File member (that's The Wizard's permanent file), your form can be waiting for you, printed up and ready to sign when you get to the Avis counter to pick up the car you reserved. That's super-fast.

The Wizard also helps us make sure your bills are letter-perfect. And perfectly accurate.

And when you turn in your car, The Wizard computes your bill automatically and may find you qualify for a lower rate. Even if you didn't ask for it. It's that kind of Wizard.

If you want The Wizard, you'll find it at Avis. And only Avis.

After all, if the competition had a Wizard, don't you think they'd let you know about it?

Kansas City-Pittsburgh Key NFL Contest Today

OVERALL CHAMPS: Anchorage I has claimed the overall 1972 softball championship in Kingston as a result of its A Division sweep, Shaughnessy Playoff victory and defeat of Bud's, AA champions, in a challenge game. Team personnel, seated (L-R) Pete Schline, George (Juice) Barnes, Denny Klonowski, John Vogt, Mgr. Ron Theiss; back row — George Bunt, Ed Akins, Bill Steffes, Bob Murphy, Ed Norton, Ron Reynolds and sponsor, Jim Martin.

Two division leaders—Kansas City and Pittsburgh — meet head-on, the disappointing Minnesota Vikings attempt to stay alive and the unbeaten Miami Dolphins go for No. 9 Sunday to highlight a somewhat lackluster weekend of pro football action.

In the majority of games Sunday, either a team battling for a playoff spot will meet a club already out of contention or two clubs already out of the running will battle.

But the Detroit at Minnesota clash—which will be televised nationally as part of a doubleheader—will share the spotlight along with the Kansas City at Pittsburgh and New England at Miami games.

The New England at Miami game wouldn't normally attract much attention since the Dolphins are heavily favored. But since the Dolphins are 8-0, virtually counted out of contention, Houston leads the race for them as they attempt to become the first team in 30 years to post a perfect regular season mark.

In three other games—West while Detroit and Green Bay at Chicago and the New York Giants at Washington—both clubs are still in contention for playoff spots although both Chicago and the Giants are longshots.

In the other six games Sunday Denver is at Los Angeles, New Orleans is at Atlanta, Buffalo is at the New York Jets, Baltimore is at San Francisco, St. Louis is at Dallas and Philadelphia is at Houston.

The Monday night TV "special" isn't too special this week with San Diego hosting Cleveland.

At this stage of the season with six games left, only five teams—Miami (8-0), Washington (7-1), Pittsburgh (6-2), Dallas (6-2) and Los Angeles (5-2-1) have lost less than three games. Four of those clubs are division leaders while Dallas is a game behind Washington.

A 5-3 record is good enough to lead two divisions, Kansas City has that mark in the AFC West while Detroit and Green Bay are tied for the NFC Central with that record.

At this point, nine teams—Houston, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Denver, Buffalo, Baltimore, New England, St. Louis and San Diego—trail by at least 2 1-2 games and have to be virtually counted out of contention. Houston leads the race for them as they attempt to become the first team in 30 years to post a perfect regular season mark.

In three other games—West while Detroit and Green Bay at Chicago and the New York Giants at Washington—both clubs are still in contention for playoff spots although both Chicago and the Giants are longshots.

In the other six games Sunday Denver is at Los Angeles, New Orleans is at Atlanta, Buffalo is at the New York Jets, Baltimore is at San Francisco, St. Louis is at Dallas and Philadelphia is at Houston.

first division crown ever, has won four in a row and needs attack, they easily beat the Raiders last week.

The No. 1 question of the pro football season has been: what's wrong with the Vikings? Picked as the team to beat for the Super Bowl this season, the Vikings lost four of their first six games. They've struggled back to the .500 mark now, are just a game out of first place and can get right back in the race with a triumph over Detroit.

The Vikings are riding an incredible string over Detroit this season but with Ed Podolak chewing up the yard dating back to 1967 including a 34-10 laugh in the first Dawson directing a flawless meeting this season. Detroit can seemingly do nothing right against the Vikings but the Lions need a victory to keep pace with Green Bay, which is favored to down Chicago.

Washington is attempting to complete an unusual three-game sweep over New York teams. The Redskins beat the Giants two weeks ago, the Jets last week and will now try to beat the Giants again Sunday but Giant defensive coach Jim Garrett "guarantees" a Giant victory even though Larry Brown gained 191 yards in his last crack at the Giants.

Miami, boasting that devastating ground game, is a 17-point choice over an outmanned New England team. This would make the Dolphins 9-0 and one victory away from the 10-0 string Green Bay ran up in 1962 before it lost and finished at 13-1. The last team to go unbeaten in regular season play was Chicago in 1942 with an 11-0 mark.

Pechloff, Andretta, Hanson Pace YMCA's Swim Victory

WEST POINT Kingston's YMCA swim team got triple wins from Mary Beth Pechloff, Jay Andretta and Paul Hanson, and five other local splashes picked up double wins as they defeated the West Point team, 295-208, at the losers pool.

Kingston took 30 first places, 23 seconds and 24 thirds in the 48 individual events and swept to wins in three of four relay races. Eleven other Y aquanauts racked up individual wins.

The results:

TRIPLE WINNERS
Mary Beth Pechloff (12-under), 100 yard freestyle, 1:03.3; 100 back, 1:14.4; 50 fly, 32.3. Jay Andretta (12-under), 100 yard medley, 1:15.3; Pechloff.

DOUBLE WINNERS
Terry Zimmerman (8-under), 25 yard freestyle, 16.1; 25 yard butterfly, 21.0. Liz Verrano (14-under), 100 yard freestyle, 1:02.9; 100 yard backstroke, 1:16.5. Ann St. Denis (15-17), 100 freestyle, 1:02.6; 100 yard backstroke, 1:11.0. Kyle McCormick (8-under), 25 yard backstroke, 19.8; 25 yard butterfly, 19.7. 100 yard medley, 1:23.2; 50 yard butterfly, 38.2.

FIRST PLACE RELAY RESULTS
Boys' stepup 200 yard medley, 2:08.4; Jay Andretta, Paul Hansen, Donn Edwards, Kevin McCormick. Boys' stepup 200 yard freestyle, 2:32.1; Kyle McCormick, Jay Andretta, Paul Hansen, Jay Rifenburg. Girls' stepup 200 yard freestyle, 2:42.1; Terry Zimmerman, Bonnie Andretta, Liz Verrano, Mary Beth Pechloff.

The Year That Wasn't For Syracuse Orange

SYRACUSE he has caught 10 passes for 64 yards, the longest for 25 yards, with no TDs.

PETE KOEGEL, whose mother lives in Glasco, has been assigned to the Eugene, Oregon team in the Pacific Coast League by the Philadelphia Phillies. Koegel, who is a rare catcher-infielder combination, played only infrequently during the Phillies' disastrous 1972 campaign. An older brother, Warren Koegel, is with the Oakland Raiders of the NFL, and kid brother, Rich Koegel, the former All-American, has just completed his first year at Penn State.

BRUCE MC CRINDLE has scored 20 points for the crack Hudson Valley Community College Vikings of Troy, who have achieved NJCAA rating this season with a 6-2 record. The former KHS player has 20 points on a touchdown and 14 of 20 extra point attempts. He picked 24 yards in 13 carries. In passing, he is 5 for 16 for 139 yards, two TDs, two interceptions for a 27.4 yard average.

A LATE REPORT has it that Bob Graves captured the 1972 Stone Dock Open, a 36-hole medal competition in which he fired rounds of 70-71 for 141. Not bad for a southpaw... And free dues for the 1973 season.

JOHN ARCHER, secretary-treasurer of the New York State Public High School Athletic Association, says Rondout's four safeties against Red Hook may be a state high school record... but isn't sure. Al Doyle, the field representative for the NYSPHSAA is checking it out. The NJCAA office in Hutchinson, Kansas is also at work trying to determine if UCCC's 18-0 romp over Sullivan County was the highest score ever rolled up by a junior college soccer team.

KIM THAYER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thayer of Shokan is a member of this year's woman's varsity field hockey team at Drew University. She is a forward on the 20-woman squad, Miss Thayer, a freshman in Drew's College of Liberal Arts, is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thayer of Shokan.

STEVEN J. GRAHAM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Graham of Kingston, was a member of the 1972 St. Lawrence University junior varsity football team. He quarterbacked the Little Larries who had a 1-3 season under Coach Bob Sheldon.

This was the supposed to be the year when "The Crunch is Back" at Syracuse University. But it has rapidly deteriorated into The Year of Frustration for Coach Ben Schwarzwalder's Big Orange. And isn't it about time that Schwarzwalder got the boot.

The two main "crunchers", Roger Praetorius and Marty Januskiewicz, have been injured on and off all season. The No. 3 rusher — Bob Darlette — is out for the year with a broken collarbone. And No. 4 ground gainer, the man with all that potential has been bothered by a bad shoulder.

Through the 37-0 debacle at Boston College, SU scored only 102 points in nine games while allowing 180. Two records were broken in areas of real frustration — most fumbles lost in a season, 25 (old mark 24 in 1960s) and most penalties 76 (75 in 1950).

Fewest points ever scored by a Schwarzwalder-coached Orange eleven were 135 in 1954 (eight games). The 1962 team had 159 in 10 games. Shutout by Boston College marked first time SU has been blanked twice in a season since Ben took over controls in 1949.

The stat sheets remains pretty static for Praetorius, the former Saugerties High School star. He has carried 109 times for 436 yards (4.0 average) with three touchdowns for 18 points.

State Stocks Pike Fry In Ashokan Reservoir

KINGSTON planning those fall bird hunts, a sure cure for cabin cramps and hunting fever. For some golden days afield with good gunning at reasonable cost, no bag limits, and up to six months of a hunting season, try a shooting preserve this fall and winter. It's just what the doctor ordered.

The Conservation Department of Winchester-Western in conjunction with the North American Game Breeders and Shooting Preserve Association. Every state game department and state listed shooting preserve operator was contacted for the most up-to-date listing of commercial shooting preserves.

Twenty six such preserves are listed in New York State, the nearest Lackawack Sportsman's Club, operated by George Stubblebine, Route 55, Lackawack, Napanoch, N.Y. 12458.

In Delaware County, it's the Misty Mount Kennels and Shooting Preserve, operated by Robert Lambrigger, Russell Brook Road, Roscoe, N.Y. 12776. Anton Johannes of Wintertown Road, Bloomingburg, operates the F & A Johannes Shooting Preserve.

In a recent issue of Outdoor Life, Jim Zumbo, a professional forester at West Point tells how the brilliant-yellow leaves of the hickory, which turn color much earlier in the fall than most other trees, light his way to limits of gray squirrels.

Hickories, Zumbo says, are the gray's favorite haunts in early fall. Once the author and his friends, who do much of their hunting in the Walkill Valley area, have pin-pointed well-used hickories, they rely on various specialized tactics to outwit the unpredictable bushytails.

At the October meeting of the federation, Bill Kelly of the Department revealed that 25 to 40 million walleyed pike fry (approximately a quarter-inch long) are to be stocked in the Ashokan next year.

This type of stocking, Kelly said, would be continued for a few years until the walleye population builds up again. He also indicated the Department was surveying Echo Lake for its trout population.

Kelly said that future generations would not remember the thousands of fish stocked in our waters, but that any project which permanently improved the habitat would yield benefits in good fishing not only for today, but also for the future.

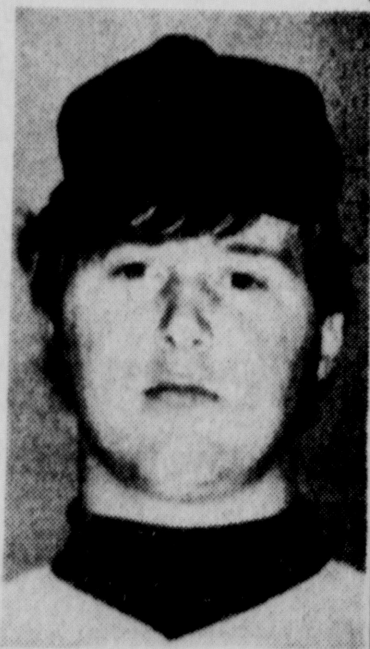

Mercer on Ithaca Staff For Fall Baseball Slate

ITHACA Sophomore pitcher Edward Mercer of Woodstock is a member of the Ithaca College baseball team which compiled a 9-6 record during its fall exhibition season.

Mercer played for the I.C. freshman two years ago and hurled a no-hitter. He was out of school last year and the layoff showed in the form of wildness in the fall games. He pitched his best ball in the last game against Siena.

Ithaca, which has a phenomenal 400-119-4 record and a winning percentage of .726 in 39 years of varsity competition, will be seeking its 35th straight winning record next spring and a fourth trip to the NCAA playoffs in the last five years.

A Physical Education major at Ithaca College, Mercer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Mercer of Woodstock. He is a School.

Herring Defends Title

KINGSTON Earl Herring, the Newburgh Flash, expects to repeat as Kingston Invitational Pocket Billiard champ, he'll have to do it against a bigger and better field.

That's the word from Bob Chapman, proprietor of Chappy's Golden Cue where the second renewal gets under way tonight at 7 o'clock. There will be three matches at 7 p.m. and three at 9 p.m.

"The field will include 12 players, three more than last year," said Chapman, "and the total prize list has been boosted from $1050 to $1500." The schedule is a double round with first and second finishers in the regular standing vying for $500 for first and $250 for second place.

Herring heads a six-man Newburgh contingent, including holdovers Bill Klindworth, Art Barron, Bob Harbster, Art Weyand and newcomer Richie Bondarin. The two Poughkeepsie aces, veteran John Beaudette and Ricky Wright, also return.

Kingston will be represented by last year's runnerup, Billy Costello, Dave Holly and two newcomers — Jimmy Ferrendino, the city Class B champion, and Ronnie Kogon.

All players will participate in the final prize list and there will be a $10 award for high run each week.

The F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company will donate trophies for the Class A competition.

"We've had a great season and pocket billiard interest is at an all-time high," Chapman explained. "We look for a tremendous tournament. Herring will have to be at the top of his game to repeat as champion."

Sponsor interest is also running high in the tournament, with nine already pledging support. The list includes The Truck Stop, Partners Lounge, Greco Brothers, Rapp's Modern Vending, Tropical Inn, Edgar's, Kingston Travel Center, Barnes and Lawless and Marty's Hot Weiners.

All matches will be played at 150 points. The first round pairings will be determined by draw.

Vets Return To State '5'

Albany state basketball coach Dick Sauers has the luxury of working with a veteran squad as he prepares for the 1972-73 season opener December 2 at Stony Brook.

"I can't remember when I've had more experience at the start of the season," says Sauers, entering his 18th year at the helm of Albany's hoop program. "We are at least 50 per cent better than we were last year at this stage. That doesn't necessarily mean we'll finish with a better record, but we should be stronger than last year and everyone will be out to beat us. Last year, we were supposed to be rebuilding and we surprised a lot of people. Now, they'll be ready for us."

Eight lettermen are back from last year's 17-6 team including Kingston's Werner Kolln, a 6-4 senior forward who averaged 7.1 points per game. Also back are 5-11 senior guard John Quattrochi, who led the Danes with a 15.1 average; 6-2 junior forward Byron Miller; 6-1 senior guard Bob Rossi; 6-2 junior forward Reggie Smith; 6-3 senior center Bob Curtiss; 6-2 senior guard Dave Welchons; and 6-3 junior forward-center Harry Johnson.

Sauers plans on going with a 12-man squad, so he'll be cutting either his JV grads or transfer prospects to reach that limit. Vying for spots are 6-0 soph Jerry Hoffmann, a 14.6 scorer with the junior varsity; 6-0 junior Felton Hyche; 6-0 junior George Moore; 6-2 soph transfer Rich Kapner; 6-2 junior transfer Dennis Terry; and 6-4 senior transfer Cortland Litts.

Also hoping for a place on the club is 6-3 senior Mike Hill, whose club skipped competition last season.

Albany again will compete in the 11-team State University of New York Athletic Conference, whose champion will receive an automatic invitation to the NCAA College Division East Regionals. Albany, Brockport, and Potsdam are the early favorites to battle for the conference crown.

Among the highlights of the Danes' schedule is the Dec. 4 home opener against Utica; the Capital District Tournament at Siena on Dec. 29; and, of interest to Ulster County fans, a visit to New Paltz State on Feb. 20.

Top Conservatives... Charitable Group

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI)—Eight of the most prominent conservatives in America convened privately in Wichita Saturday to distribute $138,000 in trust money to their favorite charities.

In their ranks were three senators, Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and John Tower, R-Tex.; a former senator, Frank Lausche of Ohio; columnist William F. Buckley Jr.; retired FBI agent Louis Nichols; radio commentator and former dean of the University of Notre Dame Law School Clarence Manion; and retired Harding College President Dr. George Benson.

The assemblage was gavelled to order by Thurmond, for the sixth annual meeting of the John P. Gaty Charitable Trust. Gaty, who made a fortune in oil and the aircraft industry, established the trust with $1 million; the income from which has allowed the trustees to distribute an average of $150,000 each year on a 10-year, self-liquidating basis.

In his will, made public in 1963 at his death at the age of 63, Gaty stipulated that beneficiaries of the trust must be legally qualified as non-profit organizations, and he asked particularly that "my trustees give special consideration to the purposes which will promote individual liberty and incentive as opposed to socialism and Communism."

Seven of the current advisory trustees were on Gaty's nominating list, submitted to the bank, which is the legal trustee, in a letter separate from the will. He also named Edgar Eisenhower, the late President's eldest brother, who served until his death in 1971 and was not replaced.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover declined Gaty's invitation to membership, and at their first meeting in 1967, the trustees named as his replacement Nichols, who at his retirement from the FBI in 1957 was assistant to the director.

Gaty also instructed the bank to allow each member to designate $10,000 of the annual distribution to his favorite charity and keep another $1,000 as a fee. The trustees vote on distribution of the residue.

The night before each year's meeting, the bank customarily throws a dinner party for the trustees, where—as Manion described it—"tributes to Gaty go back and forth across the table, and the bank expresses the hope that other men of wealth will make such provision in their will."

(Manion's conservative radio show, "The Manion Forum," is syndicated to about 200 radio stations across the country.)

At the Saturday meeting, according to Manion, the trustees heard a series of reports from groups that received contributions the previous year. Dr. Benson made an audio-visual presentation, and then the members voted on the year's distribution of funds.

After his retirement from Harding College, a conservative, Church of Christ sponsored private institution in Searcy, Ark., Benson became president of the National Education Program, an organization that produces anti-Communist films and literature. Harding received $562,116 from Gaty's estate, aside from trust money it still receives.

Until recently, the annual meeting was shrouded in secrecy, with the bank refusing to acknowledge even that the members had been there.

"They thought we might want to milk this for publicity," explained the bank's chief trust officer, J.W. Shane. "We respected their wishes, so we had no publicity whatsoever."

Various groups receive each year's benefactions, which the bank still keeps secret because, according to Shane, "The committee members feel that this should not be discussed, primarily so that they would not be besieged with requests from similar organizations."

However, a copy of the federal income tax return for the trust's 1971 fiscal year was made available to UPI by the Washington office of the Internal Revenue Service, which must make public upon request the return for any tax-exempt organization.

The return listed each contribution made, 13 in all for a total of $137,906.52.

Many of those served the special interests of the trustees, with contributions to the Barry Goldwater Chair of American Institutions $11,000; the Strom Thurmond Foundation, Inc. $1,216; the Frances Lausche Foundation $5,500; Southwestern University, Georgetown, Tex., $11,000 to partially fund a chair in the name of Tower, an alumnus; and to two Searcy, Ark.-based organizations, Zambia Christian College, Inc. $10,000 from Benson, and the organization he now is president of, The National Education Program $12,922.63.

The two largest contributions last year went to groups based in New York City: $24,422.63 to the Sino American Amity Fund, Inc., and $22,422.63 to the Educational Reviewer.

The gifts that went to the amity fund and to two other organizations—the J. Edgar Hoover Foundation ($10,500) and the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge ($12,422.63)—were designated by the trustees "for educational purposes or to fight communism," while the other gifts were designated simply "for educational purposes."

In addition, Sen. Thurmond designated $5,000 gifts to two schools in his home state, the University of South Carolina, Aiken branch, and South Carolina State College, also at Aiken.

Another gift, of $6,500, went to the Philadelphia Society, a lecture group based in Highland Park, Ill.

Manion explained the philosophy behind the gifts: "We give the trust money to the J. Edgar Hoover Foundation, Harding College (although it was not a beneficiary last year) and others who are anti-Communist conscious and engaging in patriotic enterprises in the judgment of the men who attend. The J. Edgar Hoover Foundation is keyed right into Gaty's purpose. Harding College has quite an extensive radio, lectures, newspaper columns. They've been in that business for a long time."

Paralyzed Veterans... First Halfway House

NEW YORK Tom Touhey, 45, a Navy veteran with a non-service connected spinal cord injury and Matt Rable, 24, a Marine Corps non-com injured in Vietnam, became the initial occupants of the first of a number of wheelchair accessible "Halfway House" apartments on November 1.

Both Touhey and Rable have been at the Bronx Veterans Administration Hospital since 1968.

Their occupancy marked the start of a project called Rogosin House, named after the late Israel Rogosin whose understanding and contributions made it possible.

The project itself has been planned and sponsored by the Eastern Paralyzed Veterans Association for wheelchair-bound spinal cord injured veterans in the greater New York metropolitan area.

The first apartment, located at 30 Park Avenue in Mt. Vernon, is less than seven miles from the Bronx VA Hospital and thus is within easy traveling distance for possible emergency care.

Terence Moakley, president of E.P.V.A. and himself a quadriplegic, explained what his organization is attempting to accomplish.

"We are a member chapter of the Paralyzed Veterans of America," he said. "Both the membership and operating officers of our chapter as well as every other chapter across the country, are paraplegics (paralyzed from the waist down) or quadriplegics (all four limbs paralyzed.) No one knows the emotional impact of the sense of frustration as deeply as the person in a wheelchair trapped in unsuitable living quarters. He is not free. Without help he cannot go out or come in. We live this problem constantly and we've decided to do something about it."

"The plan," Moakley said, "is completely practical. There are men living in a hospital who could hold down a job, or go back to school, and get back to the business of living if they had a place to live. There are others trapped in housing in which they are totally dependent on family or friends because of stairs and other barriers. These people are living on the bounty of their families, the community or the government. They could be self-sustaining, contributing members of society. All they need is a place to live from which they can operate freely and self-sufficiently in their wheelchairs." No governmental agency, V.A. or otherwise has seen fit to provide this service, so we find it necessary to do it ourselves."

Candidates for Rogosin House apartments are screened by a selection committee made up of medical, psychological and social service people, as well as peer members of the Chapter. The candidate is expected to pay his share in the cost of the apartment, or as much as he can afford. No one will be turned down for financial reasons, it was stressed.

Apartments are being sought in the vicinity of Castle Point, Dutchess County; East Orange, N.J. and Bronx VA Hospitals. Moakley said the chapter is interested in two bedroom units in elevator houses, but that accessible garden type units will definitely be considered.

Eastern Paralyzed Veterans Association is a private, non-profit service organization for spinal cord injured veterans. Its office is located at 432 Park Avenue, South, in Manhattan.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowances.

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance

World Energy Crisis Facts Spelled Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The figures being collected in State Department Room 3524A — the Office of Fuels and Energy — are chilling for ordinary consumers, captains of industry, and high policy makers.

James E. Akins, the soft-spoken but articulate director of Room 3524A, spelled out in an interview the consequences to the United States of the world energy crisis and the continuing shortages of oil, natural gas and electricity.

—The federal government may ask automakers to produce more efficient cars. (American cars consume about 100 trillion gallons of gasoline a year.)

—Oregon's lead in banning the convenient, flip-top aluminum can could spread across the United States. (It takes approximately 10 times as much energy to produce an aluminum can as the old-fashioned tin can.)

—Electricity rates may be changed to encourage more rational usage of electricity. Large consumers may be charged more, rather than less. Rates for off-peak hours may be lowered to encourage use of domestic appliances after 9 p.m., when commercial and industrial demands ease off. (Are electric tooth brushes and carving knives really necessary?)

—Tougher standards for insulation in new homes may be promoted. (Loss of heat is a significant factor in the consumption of heating oil).

These are some possible domestic measures that might be taken to ease the situation, Akins suggested. A career foreign service officer with experience in Lebanon, Syria and Kuwait, Akins jokes sardonically about the "throwaway U.S. economy."

For example, he said, "the overlighting of U.S. houses tends to raise their inside temperatures. This contributes to an overuse of air conditioners."

The heart of the problem is the fact that the United States can no longer supply its own needs in oil or natural gas.

U.S. oil production will run about 12 million barrels a day in 1972, for example, while consumption will be about 16.6 million barrels a day.

"The United States is now the world's largest importer of oil and the situation shows every sign of getting worse," Akins told a conference on energy at the Middle East Institute in September. "In 1970 we imported 3.2 million barrels per day of oil; in 1971, 3.7; this year imports rose to 4.6 million barrels a day, and next year, the estimates are nearly 6.0 million barrels a day."

The long-range forecast is sobering, both from the standpoint of the drain on the already unfavorable U.S. balance of payments and the importance of oil imports to national security.

"The rate of growth in oil imports is increasing and, with currency adjustments, the amount paid per barrel has also gone up," Akins said. "With the further price increases we expect, and with prospective imports of 12 million barrels a day in 1980, the net cost to the U.S. could be over $10 billion a year, taking into account company remittances and the most optimistic figures on increased U.S. exports connected with this trade."

The United States is not alone in its need. Western Europe consumed 12 million barrels of oil a day in 1970. Japan consumed about 3.5 million barrels a day in 1970 and is expected to consume 10 million a day by 1980.

The threatening oil situation has been a long time in developing. When Western oil companies began exploiting the period between the two world wars, they obtained exceeding favorable concessions. They made big profits. And they took unusual risks.

In 1960 the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) was formed to combat the erosion of crude oil prices that occurred in the late 1950s. The oil exporting countries at first achieved only minor success in bolstering the price of crude oil.

Then came the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. The war closed the Suez Canal, forcing Europe to increase its dependence on Libyan oil. The hostilities increased the antipathy of the Arabs towards the Western countries because of their alleged sympathies for Israel. And when the radical 29-year-old Col. Mommer Al-Khadafy toppled Libyan King Idris in 1969, a confrontation developed.

Libya spearheaded a movement aimed at the Western oil companies to increase their payments to the oil producing countries. With Western oil demand steadily increasing, the companies had to agree to sharp increases in payments in 1971.

As a result, crude oil prices have climbed. And they give every indication of rising higher and higher.

The U.S. diplomatic establishment, along with other federal agencies, is now searching for a solution. Secretary of State William P. Rogers has assigned Akins, 46, a major role in the effort.

Here are some of the conclusions which diplomats such as Akins are discussing with Congress, the oil companies, other diplomats, scholars and experts:

—The energy crisis must be viewed in its over-all proportions, not just as an oil problem, nor even as a natural gas problem, or an electricity shortage problem, or just an American problem. Energy is a "continuum." A shortage in one area of energy supply leads to greater demands on the other areas: a lack of oil increases demand for electricity, and natural gas.

—The United States, Japan and Western Europe are all in the same boat. They must face the future together, preferably in cooperation, not cut-throat competition. Together they must find new supplies—clean nuclear energy, solar power, geo-thermal power, the power of the oceans' tides and other exotic methods—as well as by the Saudi Arabian Minister of Oils and Minerals, for a special U.S. Saudi commercial agreement that would permit Saudi oil to enter the United States free of restrictions and duties over the long-term, and encourage increasing Saudi investment in oil marketing in the United States.

—The United States should move vigorously to build the Alaska pipeline to bring North Slope oil to the United States. This will make available two million barrels a day—not enough to solve the crisis but to temper it mildly. The United States should also push the search for offshore oil elsewhere—despite the environmentalists.

—The United States should give serious consideration to investing in the exploitation of Venezuela oil, which currently is more expensive to produce than oil from other world sources. But with the rise of crude oil prices elsewhere, it may become increasingly attractive.

—The United States should give serious study to a proposal

Gene Krupa in Poughkeepsie Appearance

POUGHKEEPSIE — Gene Krupa, claimed by many to be the greatest drummer in the history of jazz, will be appearing at the Last Chance on Crannell Street here Sunday, Nov. 19.

DPMA Slates Tuesday Meeting

RHINEBECK — The November meeting of the Hudson Valley Chapter of DPMA will be held Tuesday, Nov. 14, at Beekman Arms, Rhinebeck.

Social Hour is from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and the dinner meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Speaker will be Henry Burt of Advanced Safety Systems, Cambridge, Mass., who will speak on Fire Protection and Security. For reservations contact Bob Coons in Poughkeepsie.

Krupa and his quartet will present two shows: 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. Tickets may be purchased and reservations made at the Last Chance.

The famed drummer is making his second appearance at the Poughkeepsie night club, having played at the Last Chance on Oct. 1971. Both shows were sellouts. Krupa received many standing ovations for his performance and was called on for six "encores".

The "Living Legend of the Jazz World" has played with all the greats of the "Big Band Era" including Glenn Miller, Paul Whiteman, Benny Goodman and Lionel Hampton.

Joining Krupa for his Poughkeepsie engagement will be Ed Shue, saxophone and clarinet; Cecil Young, piano and Knobby Tota, bass.

Common Council Monday...Rare, Busy Slate

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
The Common Council will meet in one of its rare Monday night sessions tomorrow night to canvass the vote from Tuesday's elections and consider a number of petitions for zoning changes in the city, among other things.

by William Zang, to rezone a 7.3-acre parcel of land off Grandview Avenue on the city line to construct a 12-unit garden apartment complex. A petition has been filed from residents in the area in opposition to the rezoning of the parcel from R-3 to R-4 meaning that nine votes from the 13-member Council will be required for approval.

Retarded Children asking that for a rezoning of a 1.48-acre parcel off Smith Avenue next to the Post Office to construct a new car dealership.
Dr. Yulin Yao of 325 Albany Avenue is seeking a zoning change at 20-22 and 24-28 Mary's Avenue from R-2 to O-2 to construct a medical building. That request will be referred to the Laws and Rules Committee for study.
Mayor Francis R. Koenig will

Janssen Avenue be made two-way for the entire year. The have a request into the Council for permission to apply for federal and state funds for a swimming pool complex at Dietz Stadium. Vincent J. Andretta Sr. through the Andretta Foundation, has offered to pay the city's share, up to $200,000, of the proposed complex.
Also on tap is a letter from the Ulster County Chapter for street is converted to one-way for the winter months, beginning on Nov. 1. UCR has a new recycling center there and would like the street open both ways for the public. That request will be referred to the Traffic Committee.

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. seeks approval from the Council to extend its underground power lines to the Urban Development Corporation housing project in Broadway

East. Opening on that 120-unit low, middle and senior housing project is expected next spring.
Also, the Army Corps of Engineers notifies the Council that Callanan Industries Inc. of Eddyville plans to dredge the Rondout Creek to a depth of 14 feet below mean low water in a 50 by 150-foot area fronting on its plant across the creek from Kingston. Any persons or organizations opposing that for whatever reason are advised to write the Army Corps of Engineers at 26 Federal Plaza in New York City before Dec. 1.

An invitation has been received from William H. Clark Equipment Company of Rensselaer for the aldermen to journey north and observe the manufacture of the four new snow fighters the city ordered at a cost of some $145,000, two months ago. The invitation includes lunch or dinner.

Cross Country Spree

Two Suspects Extradited

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Two members of a nomadic family suspected of a cross-country crime spree in which 22 persons may have been murdered were extradited to Texas and Colorado Saturday.

Carolyn McCrary, 45, to nine months in jail for harboring fugitives after their father, Sherman McCrary, 47, and his son-in-law, Carl Raymond Taylor, 38, were arrested for a supermarket robbery in which a police officer was critically wounded.

That robbery occurred last June and the subsequent investigation following the arrest of the family uncovered a frightening story of murders and armed robberies between August, 1971, and last March. "We don't know the number that might be involved," Santa Barbara Police Capt. Charles Thompson said. "Murders all over the country are being investigated."

Authorities said they had linked the family to 16 murders and were questioning them about six others. At least seven of the victims were killed in the light of the full moon.
"The motivation for these crimes has been robbery," said Roger Willard of the Lakewood, Colo., Department of Public Safety, one of the many police agencies investigating the family.

However, a Texas officer said the robberies rewarded the family with only a "piddling" amount of cash until they moved to this coastal city.
They settled in nearby Goleta in a middle-class housing tract. They later were accused here of robbing three supermarkets — one in nearby Santa Maria that yielded $23,000 and two in Santa Barbara that netted a total of $23,000.
After their arrest for one of the market holdups, some guns were found in the family's possession which presumably

QUESTIONED . . . A family of five nomads have been questioned about a string of 22 murders stretching from Florida to Oregon. The suspects were identified as Sherman McCrary (LR), and his son-in-law Carl Raymond Taylor (LL), McCrary's wife Carolyn (UR), her son, Dennis (UL) and Taylor's wife, Ginger (UC). (UPI Telephoto)

Big Red Supply Area Hit

SAIGON (UPI) — A three-mile-wide Communist supply center guarded by one of North Vietnam's heaviest concentrations of anti-aircraft guns has been attacked by U.S. Navy jets, the U.S. command said Saturday.

Dennis McCrary, 19, was flown to Dallas, Tex., on a warrant charging him with violation of parole. His sister, Ginger McCrary Taylor, 22, was returned to Lakewood, Colo., on a bad check charge. Both had been sentenced, along with their mother,

There were 278 tactical air strikes in South Vietnam during that period by American warplanes and 151 sorties by South Vietnamese planes, military spokesmen said.

Brief ceremonies Saturday marked the end of U.S. ownership of Long Binh, the largest U.S. Army base outside the United States. The $107 million base — which once housed 30,000 American servicemen — was transferred to South Vietnamese control.

Ground fighting remained at a low level, with only 84 Communist-initiated battle incidents from 6 a.m. Friday until dawn Saturday.

Chou on Cease-Fire... Won't Solve All in Far East

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — President Nixon's main goal after his re-election is to ensure a lasting peace in Indochina but a ceasefire will not solve all the problems in the Far East, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai said in reports released here Saturday.

Chou talked for 90 minutes with a group of Scandinavian editors and newsmen in the "Peoples Hall" in Peking Friday. News of the meeting was delayed until it was released in Copenhagen.

When asked by a Danish newsmen whether China is prepared to join other major powers in guaranteeing peace in Vietnam, Chou said:

"Neither Great Britain nor China has been asked to participate although this was included in Hanoi's nine-point peace accord. Apparently the United States is more interested in the restricted art of cease-fire and accordingly had asked only the four nations directly involved there," the journalists quoted him as saying.

Chou said negotiations involving Laos and Cambodia are a particular will be very hard and most likely the whole set o problems must be turned over and viewed again "a couple of times."

Concerning Nixon's re-election, Chou was quoted as saying, "He has done a lot to improve relations between the United States and China but i is more important for us what he does to improve the chances of peace in Vietnam."

Danish newsmen said the premier chose his words carefully and spoke calmly when questioned about Sino-American relations but turned bitter and sarcastic when he turned to China's conflict with the Soviet Union.
"The Soviet Union has told us the one million soldiers they have posted on the borders to China are not there for military purposes," Chou said, according to the Scandinavian newsmen.
"It is very difficult for us to distinguish between true and untrue words from Moscow. Out of experience from the last 20 years we tend to choose the negative wording."

Navy Chief: Weeding Out for Some Lax on Racial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations, said Saturday officers who are insensitive or lax in dealing with racial problems will be weeded out of the Navy.

Zumwalt said this in an interview when asked how he intends to enforce his tough-sounding policy toward commanders who have failed to carry out two-year-old equal-opportunity programs "with a whole heart."

"We will insist that selection boards pay great attention to a man's performance in this area," Zumwalt said, "and those who are not really fully conscious of the need for absolute and total equality will, over time, be weeded out in the rine generals Friday that this well as other investigations to assure execution of more than 200 equal-opportunity programs. He made it grams.

Asked why evasions and lack doesn't even yet recognize he of performance on these equal has?

"I personally always have started out with the worst record in the minority-affairs area—that is, we have the smallest number of minority personnel and have had to move quickly to change that situation."

The four-star admiral said the Navy finds itself in a different position from the other services in part because "we started out with the worst record in the minority-affairs area—that is, we have the smallest number of minority personnel and have had to move quickly to change that situation."

Scientists to Moscow... Cancer Exchange

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven American cancer scientists flew to Moscow Saturday to begin a two-week exchange of information with leading Soviet scientists about viral causes of cancer.

The exchange is part of the U.S.-USSR health agreement signed in Moscow last May during President Nixon's summit meeting. The agreement calls for cooperative research in cancer, heart disease and environmental studies.

The U.S. scientific delegation took with it 31 strains of cancer viruses affecting chickens, cats, rodents, and non-human primates as well as a possible human tumor virus from a muscle cancer, the National Cancer Institute said. Viruses are known to cause cancer in some animals but have not definitely been linked to human cancers.

Leading the seven-member U.S. delegation was John B. Moloney of the Cancer Institute. They will visit cancer research institutes in Moscow, Leningrad, and Sukhumi and were expected to develop with the Soviet scientists a joint plan for continued exchange of research results on cancer viruses, the institute said.

Other members of the American team were Timothy E. O'Connor and Louis B. Sibal, both of the institute; Dr. J. Thomas August of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City; Dr. Friedrich Deinhardt of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago; Dr. Robert M. McAllister, Children's Hospital of Los Angeles and Dr. Fred Rapp, Milton S. Eshelby Medical Center at Pennsylvania State University.

Traffic Check... 46 Summonses

TOWN OF ULSTER
Kingston State Police held a traffic safety check on Route 9W in the Town of Ulster Friday, and issued a total of 46 summonses.

State police report examining about 750 passenger cars, 50 commercial vehicles, and 2 buses during the check.

Six members of the Kingston state police were involved in the check.
State police caution motorists to be especially careful of deer crossing the highways at this time of year, particularly during the hours of darkness.

There have been an increasing number of accidents involving deer, say state police.

One of the nine missions Air Force B52 heavy bombers flew over North Vietnam during the 24 hours ending at dawn Saturday hit the area of the huge supply cache, according to U.S. command reports. Twenty-two other three-plane B52 missions were flown over South

Lady Churchill Breaks Hip

LONDON (UPI) — Baroness Spencer-Churchill of Chartwell, 87-year-old widow of Sir Winston Churchill, broke her hip Saturday in a fall at her home in Kensington, West London, her doctors said.

Lady Churchill was in "satisfactory" condition at Westminster hospital after an operation on the fracture, they said.
Doctors said no further bulletin on her condition will be issued before Sunday morning.

Lady Churchill, who as Clementine Hozier married the future statesman in 1908, broke a thigh in a similar fall in April, 1969. She underwent a similar operation at that time.
Sir Winston Churchill died Jan. 24, 1965 at the age of 90. Four months later, "my Clemmie" formally adopted the title Baroness Spencer-Churchill of Chartwell, in the county of Kent, after being made a life peeress by Queen Elizabeth.

But his will not be a triumphal return, political sources said, and the 77-year-old founder of the Fascist-like political movement that bears his name probably will not be given a chance to rouse a public multitude with his oratory as he used to do during his 10 years in power from 1946 until 1955.

Peron's Visit... A Short One

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan Domingo Peron, the charismatic leader of Argentina's still "shirtless" masses, returns from exile this week with the blessing of the armed forces that booted him from dictatorial power and the country 17 years ago.

Book Week Set At Library in West Hurley

WEST HURLEY
The West Hurley Library will observe National Book Week, Nov. 13 through 19, with open house festivities Monday and Wednesday nights.
Girls from the Knives and Needles, West Hurley 4-H Club will serve refreshments for those visiting the library from 7 to 9 p.m. on those two days.
Also in recognition of National Book Week, the library board announced there will be no fines on books returned during that period.

Budget Hearing Is Postponed

SAUGERTIES
Thursday's budget hearing for the Town of Saugerties was postponed until Saturday, Nov. 18 at 1 p.m. to give town residents more time to inspect the 1973 spending plan.
The proposed budget totals $801,892.34, compared to $708,799.89 for 1972. The amount to be raised by taxes totals $482,967.34, compared to a 1972 figure of $355,585.

Kingston AAUW Lists Coming Activities

The regular meeting of the Kingston Branch of the American Association of University Women will be held at the Bonanza Branch of the Heritage Savings Bank, 9W North, Kingston at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 21. Special guest speaker will be James R. Williams, Director of Security, State University of New York at Albany.

In continuing the study in depth of the wide area of crime and justice, AAUW is fortunate to have as speaker a man with such practical as well as academic knowledge. Mr. Williams has worked in prisons and was for some years a parole officer.

Hostesses for this meeting will be Mrs. Thomas Sherk and Mrs. J. Zegel.

The Kingston Branch is active in two statewide projects: Prison Rehabilitation and Educational Program (PREP), with Mrs. Clifton

Hyman acting as the local chairman; the Community Flood Relief Project to which the Branch has made a monetary contribution.

Mrs. Richard Muller, membership chairman, has reported that 17 prospective members attended the recent membership tea at her home.

HOLIDAYS AROUND THE WORLD will be the first benefit project of the Fellowship Committee on December 1, 1972 at 7:30 p.m. in the Kingston High School auditorium. This program will be presented by the Performing Arts Foundation, Inc., International House, New York City. This undertaking will be co-sponsored by Kingston AAUW and the Junior League of Kingston. A troupe of young people from many countries who live at International House in New York was selected from many participating groups to perform in December at Tulley Hall, Lincoln Center, New York City.

The evening's program will consist of holiday music, dances, customs, songs and beautiful costumes of many countries especially informative for children from grade four through Junior High School.

General chairman is Mrs. Paul Johnson; AAUW co-chairman, Mrs. Thomas Celuch; publicity, Mrs. Antoinette Tennent; program, Mrs. James Babb; tickets, Mrs. Rajkumar Bajaj; and posters, Mrs. Lawrence Bruck.

Most of the Study and Interest Groups have become active. THE CHILD ABUSE STUDY GROUP is compiling information from various sources. Letters have been written to elected officials at local, county, state and national levels exploring present and possible pending legislation relative to Child Abuse.

The Library Study Group with Mrs. James Babb as chairman, has been sending letters to some of the Ulster County Legislators suggesting and encouraging County Funding for the Kingston Area Library Reference Center. Since State Funds are allocated on a matching basis, such State Aid for the Kingston Area Library is dependent on County support.

Mrs. Joseph Traficanti, chairman of the Gourmet Groups, reports that the Singles Gourmet Group is functioning. They enjoyed dinner recently at the Gasho Japanese restaurant in Central Valley. One Couples Group consisting of seven couples has already been organized and another is in the process of being formed.

The Bridge Group will meet for the first fall session at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 14, at the home of Mrs. Fred Port.

Thirteen members of the Literary Group met on October 31, at the home of Mrs. Russell Hope Robbins, to hear Dr. Gaynor Bradish of the English Department at SUNY, Albany, discuss Joan Didion's novel PLAY IT AS IT LAYS. The next meeting, December first at 1 p.m., will be concerned with Sylvia Plath's THE BELL JAR. Professor Sarah Cohen of the English Department at SUNY, Albany will discuss Plath's poetry as well as her novel. An evening literary group is being considered.

The regular AAUW December meeting will be held at a different place on a different date. A POT LUCK SUPPER is being planned for Tuesday, Dec. 14 in St. Joseph's School.

Business, Professional Women Cover County Election Night

BPW COORDINATORS BEVERLY REESE, at left, and DOROTHY A. NAREL, supervised coverage of Ulster County for News Election Service in New York Tuesday night in the County Building. Both are past presidents of the Ulster County BPW Club. Miss Reese, immediate past district director of BPW and chairman of the local Civic Participation Committee, served as county reporter while Mrs. Narel, who also covered for NBC in New York, was general coordinator of the program. MRS. BARBARA READ, BPW president, says funds raised through this project in which the entire membership participated will assist the local club in carrying on its many civic commitments as well as its successful scholarship fund. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

All polling districts throughout the entire County of Ulster had an individual standing by counting votes election night for the Ulster County Business and Professional Women's Club. The Club was coordinating the vote count for News Election Service in New York in return for needed proceeds to carry on with civic projects and a scholarship fund.

This is the third time the club has successfully coordinated a program of this type. Dorothy A. Narel, a past president, was general coordinator while Beverly Reese, past president and immediate past district director, was county reporter.

In summing up the evening's activities, Mrs. Narel said: "We can't throw enough accolades to Lewis Hall, general chairman of the Election Committee for the Ulster County Legislature. He spent a year setting up the computerized system which fed returns to news media in a smooth, organized operation. It made everybody's life a lot easier election night."

The BPW coordinators also expressed praise for BPW members working in the field and the many interested citizens who volunteered their time for the cause. Mrs. Barbara Read, BPW president, said: "It just emphasizes what cooperation and mutual understanding can accomplish."

The Ulster County BPW is a member of the National and International Federation of BPW Clubs, Inc., and meets every second Tuesday of the month at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

NOW, HEAR THIS! NOW, HEAR THIS! The next time you boating fans hear the song, "Put Your Hand in the Hand of the Man Who Stilled the Water," think about a slight variation—"Put Your Faith in the Hand of the Women Who Watch the Waters!"

I'm referring to women in the Coast Guard Auxiliary who are not, by any stretch of the imagination, up-tight women libbers or shouting placard carrying demonstrators but uniformed women who serve alongside male Coast Guard members studying, working and fulfilling their equal duties in the promotion of safe boating and watching the waters.

It isn't unusual to see U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary members doing special patrol duty on the river under the Coast Guard orders. They also patrol for boat races and are ready for Search and Rescue work and any water emergency. And their activities are year 'round for there are always social events for the Coast Guard and women are to be found on most of the planning committees.

During the height of the boating season, Coast Guard Auxiliary members think nothing of assisting fellow boaters who have run out of gas, encountered engine trouble or run on a sand bar. These gals direct their towing to the nearest Marina.

ONE of the Auxiliary members, Mrs. Robert (Jan) Torrens, owns her own boat and patrols on the river from Norrie Point to Saugerties from 1600 to 2100 hours on either a Saturday or Sunday when her orders are cut by the U.S. Coast Guard.

HOW IT STARTED

The U.S. Coast Guard Flotilla 10-12 was chartered February 13, 1964 with 16 male members. The number has since been changed to Flotilla 20-4. In the fall of 1964, four wives of charter members passed the required examinations and were accepted as members of the Flotilla. Since that time, four more wives have joined.

These women have assisted in the functions of the Flotilla by holding offices, teaching training courses, assisting on patrols, doing CME (Courtesy Motorboat Examinations) inspections, and working on committees.

Let's face it—without the assistance of the women, the Flotilla could not have achieved the Director's Honor Roll so many years.

Four of the women are CME Inspectors (Courtesy Motorboat Examination) who have passed rigid exams to obtain the Inspector's Certificate. They are Mrs. Elwood (Clara) Morris, Mrs. Robert (Jan) Torrens, Mrs. William (Cathy) Locke and Mrs. Clark (Kay) Ede.

In 1970 Mrs. Charles (Bobbie) Kohl was honored with the position of secretary to the Division which consists of 12 Flotillas. On the Flotilla level she has been Supply Officer and worked on numerous committees.

Mrs. George (Wanda) Wiegert has been Finance Officer twice and Supply Officer. Mrs. Clark (Kay) Ede has been secretary, Finance Officer and served on the AIM Committee.

In other posts, Mrs. Locke is now Vice Commander of the Flotilla and has also served as Secretary and Finance Officer. Mrs. Morris has been Commander, Vice Commander, Secretary, AIM Officer and served on several committees while Mrs. Torrens has been Public Relations Officer, Secretary, Publications, Supply Officer, Hospitality Committee and committee work.

SPONSOR COURSES

The Flotilla sponsors 10-16 Young Boatman Courses and these are usually taught by the Auxiliary members. Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Wiegert, Mrs. Locke, Mrs. Kohl and Mrs. Torrens have all taken their turn to teach both girls and boys. In the classroom, Mrs. Morris teaches chart and compass work at each 12-lesson course while Mrs. Kohl and Mrs. Wiegert have taught Aids to Navigation. Many of the other women assist in keeping attendance records and correct papers.

In January of this year the Division X was divided and five upstate Flotillas were designated Division XX. Three of the local Flotilla women were honored by becoming Staff Officers of the new division. Mrs. Morris is now Career Coordination Committee Chairman and heads up AIM (Academy Introduction Mission). It is her job to help three boys who are interested in attending the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn. The Division gives these boys the opportunity to attend a weekend at the Academy—a type of orientation program.

Mrs. Ede is Women's Activity chairman. She keeps the women informed about duties of Division WAC, uniforms and equipment. Mrs. Torrens is editor of the monthly publication paper which is mailed to each member of the Flotilla.

There is a "no nonsense" approach to their duties for Auxiliary members are aware they share with men the equal privilege of being dropped from membership "due to inactivity." They also equip their boats with the requirements of the U.S. Coast Guard and receive in return, a special decal indicating the boat is a Facility.

A woman may serve in the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary in any capacity open to men provided she qualifies for the position. No quarter is given — she has to prove she can do the work.

The gals in Flotilla 20-4 have an enviable record of excellence.

Halwick-Phelps Nuptials Announced

Debra Ann Halwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Halwick of Ruby, became the bride of Sgt. Ronald Lawrence Phelps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Phelps of 14 Alcazar Avenue, Kingston, on Saturday Oct. 21.

The Rev. Jim H. Jenkin of Bethel Assembly of God, Kingston, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. John Lettieri, organist, provided traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a floor length, princess-style gown of Chantilly lace trimmed with seed pearls. A tiara headpiece held her mantilla-type floor-length veil which was trimmed with lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white carnations.

The gown and veil were fashioned and made by the bride's mother.

Cherie Lee Buser of Sawkill was maid of honor in a russet gold, full length, A-line gown featuring bell-shaped sleeves. She wore a crown of autumn-colored chrysanthemums and carried a matching nosegay.

Darlene Dunn of West Shokan was bridesmaid in a gold gown styled identically to that of the honor attendant's. She wore a crown of autumn colored chrysanthemums and carried a nosegay of chrysanthemums.

George Carl Phelps of Kingston was best man for his brother. James L. Halwick, brother of the bride, Ruby, served as an usher.

A reception was given at The Alpine.

The bride, a 1972 Kingston High School graduate, was employed by Marriott Corp. at Ruby Hot Shoppe.

Her husband, a 1968 alumnus of KHS, attended Ulster County Community College and is serving as a sergeant in the U.S. Marine Corps, stationed at Marine Air Corps Cherry Point, N.C.

After a wedding trip through the southeastern states the couple will reside at Morehead City, N.C.

MRS. DANIEL VOGT (Joan Brudniak)

(Lakeside Studio)

Immaculate Conception Church, Kingston, was the setting for the wedding of Joan Brudniak and Daniel Vogt, both of Kingston, on Saturday, Oct. 28. The Rev. John Kowalski officiated at the double ring ceremony. Kathleen Kelly, organist, accompanied Eileen Reis who sang traditional wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brudniak of 132 First Avenue Kingston. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Vogt, 545 Delaware Avenue, Kingston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected an A-line, white, sate-peau gown trimmed with Chantilly lace and pearls. Her full length, chapel mantilla was bordered with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of white daisy pompons, miniature carnations, and pompons, accented with pink and white satin ribbon.

Miss Paula Sickles of South Wall Street, Kingston, was maid of honor in a gown fashioned of Mediterranean blue chiffon, styled with an empire bodice and full bishop sleeves. The ring collar and bodice were trimmed with matching floral Venice lace. A two-tiered veil was shirred to a matching bow headpiece and she carried a nosegay of white carnations accented with aqua blue and white satin streamers.

Gary Vogt of 545 Delaware Avenue was best man for his brother. Ushers were Charles Brudniak, brother of the bride, and John Vogt, brother of the bridegroom, both of Kingston.

A reception was given at The Alpine Restaurant.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and Board of Cooperative Educational Services. She is a licensed practical nurse.

Her husband, an alumnus of KHS, is employed as produce manager by Grand Union of Saugerties.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, the couple will reside at 123 Second Avenue, Kingston.

October Weddings Reported

McClearn-Carter

Julie Ann McClearn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. McClearn Jr. of Box 46R, RD 6, Kingston, became the bride of John H. J. Carter, step-son and son, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruno of 53 Groff Street, Kingston.

The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony Saturday, Oct. 28 at St. Mary's Church, Kingston.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a peau d'ange lace bridal gown designed with a scalloped Sabrina neckline and long, full Cavalier sleeves. Delicate miniature Venice lace floral motifs highlighted the neckline and waist. White satin ribbon encircled the fitted waist, terminating in a bow and streamer detail at the back. The gown featured a princess styled skirt which swept back to form a bouffant chapel length train. She wore a custom designed cathedral length mantilla, edged with handclipped matching lace and carried a nosegay of white phalaenopsis orchids, peach sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

flower girl. Their gowns of autumn gold silk crepe were styled identically to the honor attendant's. They wore gold picture hats with matching trim. Attendants carried bouquets of carnations, daisy pompons and baby's breath.

Donald Hastings of 21 Stanley Street, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Monte Rios and Greg Rios, Kingston, both cousins of the bridegroom; Terence Noble, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Kingston.

A reception was given at the Flamingo Restaurant in Saugerties.

The bride, a 1970 graduate of Kingston High School, attended Ulster County Community College, and is employed at Albany Public Market, Kingston.

Her husband, a 1969 alumnus of KHS, attended UCCS, and the University of Bridgeport, Conn., where he was a member of Alpha Gamma Phi fraternity. He is employed at Canfield's, Kingston.

After a tour through the southern states and Florida, the couple will reside at 81 Fair Street, Kingston.

applied rose motifs. A Camelot caps of embroidered rose motifs accented with a white nylon bow held her four-tiered, chapel-length, hand-rolled, nylon tulle veil. She carried a Canterbury cascade of blue roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Phyllis Romano of Kingston was maid of honor for her sister in a burnt orange velvet gown styled with a curved bodice, a flared skirt and full length fitted sleeves. She carried an autumn cascade of butterscotch and bronze pompons, abbey roses and dried pods.

Attendants were Denise Renn of Kingston; Mrs. Darlene Romano, sister-in-law of the bride, Lake Katrine; Miss Jacqueline Romano, sister of the bride, Kingston, junior bridesmaid. Their timberline blue gowns were identical in styling to that worn by the honor attendant. All attendants' gowns were made by the bride's mother. They carried autumn sunset cascades of butterscotch and bronze pompons and dried pods.

Rena Fasano was flower girl. She wore a timberline blue gown and carried a small crown basket of pompons and dried pods. All attendants wore fresh flower headpieces to match their bouquets.

Ralph Skytte, brother of the bridegroom, Orland, Calif., was best man. Ushers were David Scholar, New York City; Joseph Romano, brother of the bride, Saugerties; Michael Denegris, cousin of the bride, Brooklyn, junior usher. Dana Fasano was ringbearer.

A reception was given at the Glisco banquet hall.

The bride is a 1966 graduate of St. Mary's School and a 1970 alumna of John A. Coleman High School. Her husband, an alumnus of Orland High School, class of 1969, is now a cook, third class, in the U.S. Navy, serving aboard the USS Badger Destroyer Escort 1071.

After a wedding trip in Palm Springs, Calif., the couple will reside at 1923 Pine Avenue, Long Beach, Calif.

Romano-Skytte

Barbara Ann Romano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Romano of 136 Clifton Avenue, Kingston, was married to James Cristian Skytte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorkild Skytte, Orland, Calif., on Saturday, Oct. 28. The Rev. Edward I. Farrelly officiated at the double ring ceremony at St. Mary's Church in Kingston. Theodore Riccobono, organist, accompanied Mrs. Peter Mancuso who sang wedding selections.

The bride dedicated a bouquet at the altar of the Blessed Mother.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a nylon sheer and organza gown styled with an A-line skirt. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice made of Venice lace which featured an illusion neckline of rose appliques with a ring collar and semi-bishop sleeves. The cathedral length train was made of Venice lace with

Accidental Death — Haunting Experience

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

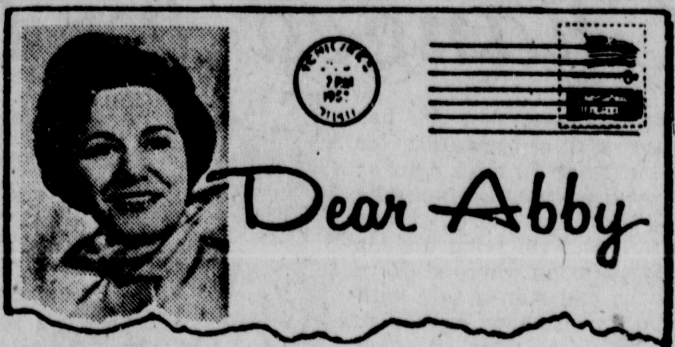

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column where someone had sent artificial flowers to a funeral and the family of the deceased returned them, saying they only wanted "fresh" flowers. You said that was rude and I agree, but speaking of returning flowers, how about this?

A few years ago, an elderly uncle was struck and killed while crossing the street. It was a dark and rainy night and my uncle crossed the street in the middle of the block. Three witnesses swore that Mr. X, the driver of the car, was going slowly and it was not his fault.

When they buried my uncle, Mr. X sent a beautiful arrangement of flowers, and my aunt asked the funeral director to send it back!

DEAR APPALLED: Let's be charitable and assume that your aunt was still in shock when she sent the flowers back. Now, a word about one who has accidentally killed another: Unless he has actually lived thru that nightmare of self-recrimination, remorse and unearned guilt, one cannot appreciate the agony of such a haunting experience.

DEAR ABBY: We have 10 grandchildren who are the real" children of our sons and daughters. We have nearly that number of stepgrandchildren thru our children's having married divorcees with children. In some cases (not all) they have legally adopted these children.

Anyway, we want to leave our money to our REAL grandchildren, and we do not want to leave anything to our stepgrandchildren because it will cut what we want to leave our real grandchildren practically in half.

It's not that we don't love our stepgrandchildren to a certain extent, it's just that we want our money to go to our own.

I know we will feel a little guilty doing this, but we want to know if it's legal? Or can it be contested by the stepgrandchildren?

JUST ASKING
DEAR JUST: Simply instruct your lawyer to draw up a will, stating specifically how much you want to leave and to whom. You may leave everything to an orphanage in the Como Park Zoo if you want to, and if it's so stated in your will, nobody else will get peanuts. (P.S. Since you mentioned "feeling guilty," perhaps you ought to reconsider, and leave the stepgrandchildren something, too.)

DEAR ABBY: A brokenhearted mother in law is "hurt" because her daughter in law, whom she says she couldn't love more if she were her own daughter, has never called her ANYTHING in person, and since they live in different states, all her letters start "Hi" or "Hello."

I want to defend that daughter in law because I know how she feels.

I have a mother in law who is one in a million, and I love her deeply, but for the five years I went with her son, I always respectfully addressed her as "Mrs. Johnson."

After I married her son we moved to another state, and for a lack of a better salutation, I addressed my first letter to her with a cheery "Hi," and that practice has gone on for 22 years. We had no children, so "Nana" or "Grandmother" was out.

I truly love her or I wouldn't have written to her faithfully every week, keeping her posted on our activities. Probably because my own mother is living, to call another woman "Mother" or "Mom" would sound insincere and forced to me.

I know girls who call their mothers in law "Mother" to their faces, but you wouldn't print what they call them behind their backs.

NO PHONY
DEAR NO PHONY: Your explanation makes sense. I hope it serves to soothe some aching hearts.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
© 1972 Emily Post Institute, Inc.

Dear Mrs. Post:
When my husband and I were married (ten months ago), my parents encouraged him to call them Mom and Dad. But his parents never did likewise with me, in any way, shape, or form. So my question — is it proper to call a mother — or father-in-law by their first names when you have never been asked to call them Mom and Dad? Also, how about my husband's uncles and aunts who have never asked me to call them aunt or uncle so-and-so? Should they be called by their first names or just Mr. and Mrs.?

Thank you very much for your help. You do not know how much this has puzzled me.

Donna

Dear Donna:
Since your in-laws haven't broken the ice as far as names go, it is up to you. But don't just start right out with Jane and John — ask them what they would like you to call them, since you feel "Mr." and "Mrs." is awfully formal.

As for the aunts and uncles, there is no reason you should not call them by those titles if your husband does.

Dear Mrs. Post:
I plan to buy stationery as a Christmas gift for a relative. The sample I have chosen has three initials engraved at the top. Is it correct to have only the husband's initials, or the wife's? If not, how is the paper monogrammed?

Darlene

Dear Darlene:
Since the wife generally takes care of the couple's social correspondence, the initials should be hers, rather than her husband's. Men usually have their full names engraved on their paper rather than their initials. Since you wish it to be a present to both, you would have to order two separate boxes of stationery, or you may have paper engraved with the address only, in a medium size that can be used by either a man or a woman.

Dear Mrs. Post:
When newlyweds have their own apartment, do they invite relatives over first, or is it the place of aunts and uncles to have the newlyweds to their home first?

Maureen

Dear Maureen:
Generally the older people make the first move. They may do that by calling on the bride to see her new home, telephoning first to be sure it is convenient. If it is a question of a dinner invitation, that, too, is usually given by the older relatives but the bride may, if she wishes, invite them over first without breaking any rules.

Dear Mrs. Post:
When a child is baptized in our church he must have godparents. Since the godparents give up their time for such an occasion and assume certain responsibilities, is a gift to them in order? What type of gift would be appropriate to show our appreciation?

Mrs. J. Wollman

Dear Mrs. Wollman:
Actually, it is the godparent who gives the child a gift for this important event, rather than vice versa. It is an honor to be asked to serve as a godparent and the compliment is worth more than any gift. The child's parents should, of course, show their appreciation verbally when the godparent agrees to accept the obligation, or perhaps travels some distance to be at the christening.

After a Fashion

Image of Fur Fashions Has Been Changed by Dane

DANISH DESIGNER Birger Christensen—there were some changes made.

By MARIAN CHRISTY

Oh, what a horror the fur business used to be. Salespeople bowed and scraped. Dowdy styles were geared mainly for fat, rich matrons looking for well-defined status symbols purchased in rarefied atmospheres. And the young, who saw the humor of it all, were amused non-clients.

Famous Denmark fur designer Birger Christensen — whose clients range from secretaries who splurge on the $700-and-under numbers to celebrities who buy the $2,000 furs by the dozen — tells it like it was:

"Well," he says, "you kneeled down, called the little darlings 'Madame' and willingly allowed them to push you around."

"Finally, the era of fur stuffiness had come to an end," says Christensen. He sincerely wanted to change the image of fur fashion. He hopped the next plane to Paris and bought couture from Louis Feraud, Yves Saint Laurent and Ungaro. Later, back in Denmark, he had the looks translated from fabric to fur — with sensational results.

His fashion point is that fur coats should look like clothes: "Older customers insisted on shawl collars, roll-back sleeves and plenty of room. But fur fashion has to relate to fashion-in-general which, in turn, is tied in with life style. We treated the furs like hairy fabrics and made up-to-the-minute looks."

People reacted.

One day Christensen was walking through his Copenhagen salon and bumped into Shirley MacLaine. "I'm awfully sorry you noticed me," she said. "I hoped I could be very, very private."

Shirley had good reason to be dismayed. She had bought a slew of her own clothes — pantsuits, dresses, gowns — and wanted to try various furs with them. Privacy was a must. Christensen gave up his office for the day and Shirley turned it into a dressing room. Among her dozen fur purchases was a mink bolero and a calfskin suit.

When Maria Callas went to Copenhagen to give a concert she called Christensen and asked if he would please open his shop on Sunday. Christensen, used to the way of the famous, agreed. It was a hot summer day and the shop was air conditioned frostily.

"We went from the Sahara to Alaska," says Christensen dramatically. "When Maria had bought a chinchilla jacket and a black broadtail coat — I said it was enough. I was scared she would get hoarse and I'd have all those enthusiastic patrons angry at me."

Harry Belafonte also discovered Christensen furs. He ordered one of the new wrap coats for his wife and then, in a burst of generosity, said he wanted a mink stole for his children's favorite nanny. "The nanny was more excited than Mrs. Belafonte," says Christensen who fitted both ladies.

Christensen, whose collection is at Bonwit Teller, decided that noncelebrities with limited budgets might get just as excited about affordable furs as the rich.

What did Christensen learn? But he knew he needed a barometer. What looks did the young want and wear? What items rated automatic rejection? Just how far did the essence of "freedom" — which was everywhere — affect the buying pattern of furs?

"Status symbols mean nothing," he says. "The young want wearability, a certain amount of formality and styles that don't disguise their slimmness." He promptly created what turned out to be a red-hot collection of under-$700 furs — imaginatively called "700 BC." Bestsellers are easy wrap-on styles made from muskrat, red fox or Chinese Kalgan lamb.

Christensen's mother, now 70, wears only the 700 BC furs. "Fashion is a look, not an age," he says. "Of course, my mother is a young 70 and wears size 10. Fashion is not for the fat classicists."

Christensen readily admits he cuts nothing over a size 14 and, even then, is puzzled about what shapes create the optical illusion of slimmness.

"Over size 14s should go on a protein diet," he says. "And, my dear, they should learn to shake their heads and say, no, thank you."

The designer, now 46, has always had a reputation for disconcerting frankness. "There are times I'm actually hated in my store," says Christensen, referring to his Denmark salon where staffers know he can ruin a sale with candid, unrestrained remarks.

Recently a noted Danish socialite came in and ordered a lavish leopard coat. There were still a few skins around the workrooms. The salesman, ignoring the explosion of heated emotion about endangered jungle animals, made the most-wanted coat and called the woman in for a final fitting.

At that crucial moment Christensen appeared and: "My, did I preach to her about ecology!" he says.

Lost was a $10,000 sale. But the designer had gained a satisfied customer who bought a $3,000 mink and saved herself piercing criticism. One good turn deserves another. She has since brought in her husband — a man in the public eye — who has bought his wife a wardrobe of Christensen furs.

The other day Denmark's Queen Ingrid breezed in unannounced and asked if "the girls" were around. Christensen asked what girls Her Majesty was referring to and, before he could answer, the three Princesses strolled in — Margrethe, Benedikte and Princess Anne Marie of Greece.

Christensen: "They all sat down and had such a nice chat while they decided what kind of mink jacket to buy for an old aunt."

Former Drop-Out Leads Company

By LYNN B. VILLELLA
Albuquerque Tribune Writer
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — Grace Olivarez "dropped out" at the end of her junior year of high school.

Twenty years later, divorced and with an 8-year-old son, she entered law school at the prestigious University of Notre Dame.

Today the tall, dark, attractive attorney is director of the Institute for Social Research and Development (ISRAD) at the University of New Mexico.

She heads a multifaceted program that operates under more than $2.75 million in contracts and appropriations.

Mrs. Olivarez succeeded former New Mexico Gov. Jack Campbell to directorship of the Institute, which employs 280 persons.

"I would like to see New Mexico be the leader in dealing with problems of population, environment and poverty issues," declares Mrs.

Olivarez. "I think New Mexico has the most beautiful opportunity to take these problems and be innovative and creative."

"New Mexico can be one of the few states that keeps clean air and avoids congestion... we can accommodate another half-million people but it will take planning," she said.

Grace Olivarez grew up in a small mining town near Phoenix, Ariz. Her father was from Spain; her mother was of Mexican-Irish descent. She knew English but spoke only Spanish until just 10 years ago. She didn't start reading books until 1966 and before she entered law school in 1967 she had never been in a library.

"Then I hounded the library," she says grimly. "And buying books — it has become an addiction with me."

Although Grace's background sounds

"culturally deprived," it was, in reality, anything but.

She has been involved in civil rights programs, in Mexican and Chicano affairs since her late teens. Her involvement has been zealous and meaningful.

In law school Grace feels she "discovered herself." Survival became crucial.

"It was my first time away from home," she observes. "I was renting an apartment for the first time. I was strictly on my own with a son and a nephew to support. The environment was completely new — all male and mid-western."

Before joining ISRAD, Mrs. Olivarez was associated in Phoenix with "Food for All," a federally funded program.

In 1966 she was appointed by President Nixon to the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future. She has recently completed that two-year assignment.

Capo di Monte China

How many antique collectors can claim an item that might well have been made by a king?

When Charles III of Spain was king of Naples back in 1743 he founded a china works at Capo di Monte, Italy, to produce a soft paste type of porcelain. Apparently he was so fond of the place he took to working there himself on frequent occasions. Later when he obtained the crown of Spain, he took 20 skilled workers along with him to establish another porcelain works at Madrid.

Some of the most familiar Capo di Monte china produced by the works included hand-some dinner services, figurines, inkwells and plaques. Child and adult figures, often with musical instruments — were especially popular. Usually they were decorated in colored bas-relief, and many of the glove and trinket boxes, vases, urns, tankards and other items were done this way.

Not all pieces carry trademarks, but some of the earliest marks that were used include a roughly formed fleur-de-lis. During the reign of Ferdinand IV, the familiar mark of Naples — the crowned N — was used, often in red or blue or sometimes as an impressed mark on the clay body.

Collectors might be confused by Capo di Monte-type china, which has been produced for over half a century by china works in Hungary, France, Italy, Germany, and probably by porcelain makers in other lands as well — some of them bearing the now widely used crowned N trademark. The old and the genuine pieces will have a slightly greyish cast to the body while the flesh tones of the figures, which were put on by a stippling technique, will appear under a magnifier as tiny dots rather than brush strokes.

Genuine pieces of Capo di Monte china are prize finds, especially to advanced collectors, and they will be priced accordingly. You may find attractive pieces of Capo di Monte-type china worth considering. They will cost a good deal less, and could be well on their way to becoming genuine antiques in their own right.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

How would you like to feed a steaming hot, stick-to-the-ribs breakfast to five people tomorrow morning... for 2 cents? Now I don't mean 2 cents each... I mean 2 cents for ALL FIVE PEOPLE. And I'm not referring to some kind of sissified breakfast either. I'm talking about a hardy, satisfying, right-down-to-the-ear meal that is so good it's a mainstay with today's homesteaders up in the north woods of Canada's British Columbia.

The secret is wheat... whole wheat. The kind you get direct from the farmer or a food co-op. If you buy the grain that way — before some processor mills it and bleaches it and takes out the germ and throws away the hull and adds I-don't-know-how-many-chemicals — you'll find that wheat is surprisingly complete food. Some of the Civil Defense people back in the '60s even claimed that a person could live almost indefinitely on nothing but wheat — which contains B complex and E vitamins, calcium, iron and many other nutrients — and tomato juice. And in a real pinch, they said, you could substitute water for the latter and exist entirely on the wheat alone.

with Actual Life and learning where cream of wheat really comes from. It's worth it. Store your cleaned grain in some recycled glass jars with screw-on lids (those monster peanut butter and mayonnaise containers work well).

All right. Now. There's one piece of old-time kitchen equipment you're going to need that you probably don't have on hand, and that's a handcranked grain mill. You'll find these simple machines in almost any health food store or food co-op at prices ranging from $12 to $15. Don't panic! The investment is made only once and the darn things are cast iron and last a lifetime. That mill can be used in many ways and should save you a couple of hundred dollars every year from now on. It's well worth the money.

For that robust breakfast we've mentioned, set your grinder to a coarse crack and run some wheat through it. You'll preserve the most food value, of course, if you grind only as much grain as you need just before you utilize it... in this case, the evening before the planned breakfast.

Put one and one-half cups of the cracked wheat, 5 cups of warm water and one-and-a-

BREAKFAST FOR 2¢

Well, that's cutting it pretty thin and setting up a monotonous diet in the bargain, as far as I'm concerned... but it does dramatize the fact that whole wheat is GOOD for you.

It's also very inexpensive. Irene Clawson, one of those British Columbia homesteaders, has been buying hers direct from a farmer for $1.50 a bushel... although, thanks to the big Soviet-U.S. grain deal, I imagine she'll pay closer to $2.00 for the same amount during the foreseeable future. Since a bushel of wheat weighs out to about 60 pounds, that means that a pound of the grain has been costing Irene 2½ cents and — even with the price rise — 16 ounces of wheat berries will still nick her for less than 3½ cents.

Yes, I'm quite aware that a fancy health food store or a supermarket will charge you 10 or 20 times as much if you insist on buying your whole wheat in the little one-pound cardboard cartons that such establishments handle. But there's no reason for you to play that game because no matter where you live (even if it's in the big middle of Indianapolis or New York City), I'm betting that there's an old feed store or a new food co-op somewhere close to you. And, if you do your shopping there in bushel quantities, you should pay no more than $3.00 absolute tops for 60 pounds of wheat. Or, just like Irene up in Canada's bush country, you can be super-sharp and buy yours direct from a farmer on your next weekend trip out of the city. Just tell the feed store salesman, co-op assistant or grower that you want fresh, whole grain that has NOT been treated with chemicals or pesticides in any way.

OK. Let's say you do purchase your wheat at rock-bottom price direct from a farmer or feed store. Don't be alarmed when you find some husks, a few weed seeds and a little dirt mixed in with the grain. All wheat — even that which eventually winds up on grocery shelves as super-squeezable white bread — comes from the field that way. Ask any farm boy. Instead of flapping into a tizzy about the way Mother Nature produces grain, you should congratulate yourself on being wise enough to buy yours exactly the way Grandma or Great-Grandma bought hers. Then gracefully move on to clean your wheat just like all good cooks cleaned theirs in the Good Ole Days.

What you do is you go outside on a breezy morning and you pour the grain back and forth between two pans a few times (you can also do this in front of a fan on the back porch). Or you dump the wheat — about a gallon at a time — into a bucket of water, swirl it around and then spread it out to dry on something like a tablecloth.

If this sounds like a lot of work, just remember that — for a cash outlay of virtually pennies plus a little elbow grease — you're buying the major ingredient for 600 individual meals. You're also putting yourself back in touch

Food Additives: Survey Made Here

What is amyl acetate? How often does one eat monosodium glutamate? Did everyone have enough riboflavin with the breakfast cereal this morning? Curiosity about food additives and the awareness homemakers might have of food ingredients placed on the family table, led to a survey among local club women as part of the new Applied Business Statistics Course at Ulster County Community College this past summer. Under the guidance of Dr. James J. Loricchio of the business division faculty, each student was required to organize, conduct and evaluate a survey of his choice.

As a member of the class, Mrs. Caroline Seitz planned a survey on food additives, which is a topic used from time-to-time in newspaper and magazine articles relating to healthful diets. Some background material for the survey came from bulletins obtained at Ulster County Cooperative Extension Service, 74 John Street, Kingston.

Using additives for food preservation is not new. Mrs. Seitz pointed out, referring to the long use of salt and spices in food processing. She also stated that with today's urban living, the necessity to preserve packaged food is most important in marketing items for a well-balanced diet. Additives, under strict government control both by federal and state laws, are needed to preserve flavor, color, texture and nutritive value.

A questionnaire with an accompanying introductory letter was sent in July to a sampling of 46 club women selected from rosters of women's organizations compiled by the Women's Page Department of The Daily Freeman and the Kingston area Chamber of Commerce. A one week time limit was set for response and 29 complied. All replies were kept anonymous. Evaluations were made during the college course which concluded August 9.

Ten questions included such items as: — Do you read labels for calories, vitamins, sugar content and chemical additives; what type of milk do you use in cooking; do you check weight plus price in comparing packaged items; do you prefer brand names or store names; rank some of the influences in shopping.

Considered most important were the questions concerning the recognition of food additives and the frequency with which common packaged foods that contain most of these additives were used. Less than half of the women were able to score 50 per cent or better in matching food additives with their explanations. Three-fourths of the women noted the weekly use of some of the seven common packaged foods which might contain these additives. According to the survey 41 per cent of the women never read labels for ingredients such as calories, vitamins, sugar content and chemical additives. However, for those who do read labels, chemical additives and vitamins are the targets with 58 per cent of the sampling reading labels "sometimes" or "always" for these.

A list of seven commonly used packaged foods were marked as often being part of the family diet e.g. weekly. Ranked according to popularity these included breakfast cereals, margarine, soups, snack crackers, frankfurters, cake mixes and frozen dinners. The type of milk used in cooking rated "fresh" milk an overwhelming choice above evaporated and dry milk.

The highlight was a matching question relating food additives to their explanations. Riboflavin, the Vitamin B, was known by 69 per cent of the sampling; carotene, food coloring, 58 per cent; monosodium glutamate, the flavor enhancer, 55 per cent; vegetable gum, which stabilizes and thickens, 45 per cent; amyl acetate, artificial banana flavoring, 38 per cent; sodium benzoate which controls molds and yeasts, 21 per cent; lecithin which emulsifies, 17 per cent; and BHA and BHT, chemicals that control rancidity and loss of color, 10 per cent.

Two questions were included to determine if the homemaker ever reads the labels beyond choosing the item for which she is shopping. About three-fourths of the women select brand names over store names on labels. In checking weight plus price on comparable items, about one-third noted that they "always" do this; half of the sampling consider this "sometimes"; and about one-fifth "never" consider weight plus price on a label. In questioning selective influence on one's choices while food shopping, the results were as might be expected: first, known quality; second, price; third, ad in newspaper; and fourth, seen on TV.

Among her conclusions, Mrs. Seitz felt that the women were being honest with their answers. Only two women had perfect scores in the matching question. A relationship between the years of cooking experience and the ability to answer the questions became apparent. Over 75 per cent of the homemakers had more than 10 years of cooking experience. By registering the number in a unit, the families were classified as "small" (up to three members), "typical" (four members); and "large" (more than five members.) Women with larger families tended to be more knowledgeable. From the feedback it is evident that the women's interests in food ingredients has been sharpened.

Question Box For Consumers

By MARGARET DANA

Q. This concerns the allergies that some of us have from contact with certain fibers. Why can't we have a line of undergarments for example, with a specific guarantee they contain no Spandex, to which I am very allergic? It is a nerve-racking and expensive problem for many of us, and it seems that the foundation and girdle industry is indifferent or moving too slowly. Can you help get word to them?

A: Yes I can, and I frequently do. Both men and women have been telling me for some years that certain fibers, as well as some fabric finishes like durable press, create an allergic reaction, often severe. So far, however, either not enough consumers have complained vocally, or allergy specialists have not borne out their complaints.

I talked of this with the head of a large foundation and bra manufacturing company the other day and his response was amazement. He doesn't believe consumers really have such allergies. I would be glad to have reports from your doctor and others on this in order to find out the facts.

Q: Could you help find the solution to a problem we have with our sink drain? It became almost completely clogged, and when we opened it we found a great deal of black sludge. We are careful not to put grease or anything not liquid down that drain. But a few weeks ago it became clogged again. By using a great deal of several kinds of drain cleaner we managed to get it free running again. I have heard that the detergents now in use tend to cause this condition. Do you have any information on its cause and cure?

A: Experts at the college of Human Ecology at Cornell University advise that to keep a kitchen sink drain from clogging, flush scalding water down it daily. If you find the drain getting sluggish, try using a mixture of one pound of washing soda in three gallons of boiling water and pour it down the drain. The sludge is caused by a build-up of chemicals, minerals and grease from water rinsed off dishes and pans. They mix, and react in sludge. Food particles help this along. Commercial drain cleaners can help but there must be regular attention to prevent the clogging. Detergents do not cause this—they are more apt to help prevent it. Soap, however, can speed the build-up of thick residue.

When a bank advertises it is paying you five per cent per annum on your Christmas Clubs on completed clubs only — AIN'T NECESSARILY SO!!

What you actually get, in some places, is about 2½ per cent of your average balance. Since Christmas Clubs are not left in banks for the full 52 weeks, (only 50 weeks) an average balance is used to compute percentage paid. On a $150 club, half of it, or $75, would be considered your average balance and five per cent would be paid on that — not $150. Miami Beach Summer of '72... Sand Won't Solve All MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—A lot of people lately have found Miami Beach a great place to live but a dull place to visit. It used to be the other way around — before the ocean sucked away much of the beach and high rise hotels and condominiums encroached on what was left. Now many tourists find the seaside resort is mostly concrete and gilt that is showing tarnish around the edges.

The skinny island has a swelling tide of permanent residents, but its leaders feel that while live-in folks are fine, Joe Tourist still pays 40 per cent of the bills around here. Playing host to both national political conventions this summer finally forced all factions guiding the city's fortunes to take an honest look at what Miami Beach is now and where it's going.

Instead of the riches they expected, the political conventions cost the resort money in loss of vacationers and rejected bookings for non-political conventions.

Miami Beach has not fallen on hard times but the summer of '72 jolted many leaders into the realization that tourist prosperity is not around the corner unless Miami Beach changes with the times.

"We've been riding on our reputation for several years now," Miami Beach Mayor Chuck Hall said. "We have to have more than that."

The resort leaders are launching an all-out drive to regain Miami Beach's reputation as a leading tourist mecca of the world.

The No. 1 ingredient needed, they decided was more sand—lots of it—to cover an area 15 miles long and 200 feet wide.

Erosion, helped by what Hall calls "the politics of the past," has robbed Miami Beach of much of its shoreline sand. The city-limits portion of the ocean front is only seven miles long, but it is impossible to walk the distance on the beach.

Large hotels, bracketed by groins, have practically no beach at all.

The Army Corps of Engineers has finally settled on the most workable plan—dredge sand from the bottom, pump it onto the shore and keep replenishing it faster than the ocean carries it off. To put the beach back on Miami Beach will cost at least $28 million initially, and take about five years.

"But think of it," Hall said, "a 200-foot wide beach stretching for 15 miles—it will be beautiful, utterly incredible."

Sand won't solve all Miami Beach's tourist problems. Hall, who operates a travel agency in private life and the hotel owners are aware that Miami Beach has become a haven for those were the days when they rushed new hotels to completion under flood lights at a cost, extravagant in those times, as high as $23,000 a room. One large hostelry which went bankrupt was found to be carrying 13 levels of mortgages against the building.

Nowadays the big money is going into building high-rise apartments. There hasn't been a major new hotel erected since 1966. The hotelmen look with disdain on the towering apartments and condominiums.

"They don't improve the economy," one hotelman observed. "We pay heavy taxes and support hundreds of businesses. We buy in large quantities nearly everything we need from local people or local distributors."

"Senior citizens throttle a community. They don't want tourists and conventions around disturbing them."

The rise of high-rise apartment houses—127 in the last five years alone—has brought a dramatic change to Miami Beach. In the seven-by-one-mile resort city where a million or more persons have gathered each winter since World War II, less than 20,000 were permanent residents right after the war. Now the permanent population numbers about 90,000.

The mayor and some other leaders see this as a good thing.

"They're showing the world that this is a good place to live," Hall said. "Besides, unlike some, I think the high-rises are pretty. It's too bad, though, that some were built right on the beach."

Banker Bart Goldberg, looking at his bank's figures, said that "the dollar volume of the tourist business remains as high as ever but it is now spread out over the full year and represents about 40 per cent of the economy, compared to 60 per cent a few years ago."

"I think we need to stabilize tourism and achieve a balance," Goldberg said. "We can't afford to lose the tourist industry."

All sources agreed that foreign competition, coupled with the modern ease of swift air travel, is siphoning off Miami Beach's tourists faster than the Atlantic is sucking away the sand.

"But Europe will never match our climate," Hall said. "We've got to add vital tourist attractions and get away from 'the city of cement' tag some people have hung on us."

One hotelman put it differently.

"Tourists have changed," he said. "Nowadays they want stimulation, not a rest. They are more sophisticated and insist on value."

Restoring the beach to a "glamor strip" wider than it ever was, is the major step toward luring tourists. In addition, Mayor Hall is pressing for bicycle pathways, hundreds of tennis courts and a garden-like beautification of causeways leading to the island and the major highways criss-crossing it.

"We're planning a 14-foot wide awning the length of Lincoln Road Mall with numerous sidewalk cafes selling the best food and drink, better than they have in Europe," the mayor said. "It will take a zoning change, but we'll do it. We're going to make Miami Beach an exciting place again for the young and the young at heart."

YOUNG AND THE OLD — Young vacationing tourists pass a trio of older Miami Beach residents on the beach. Many people lately have found Miami Beach a great place to live but a dull place to visit. That was before the ocean sucked away much of the beach and high rise hotels and condominiums encroached on what was left. Officials hope to jack up tourist trade by enlarging the beach to cover an area 15 miles long and 200 feet wide. (UPI Telephoto)

Colorado Ski Resorts... New Areas, 18 Lifts Added

DENVER (UPI)—The nation's skiers flock to Colorado resorts in increasing numbers each year, seeking the Rockies' famed powder but frequently encountering hour-long lift lines instead.

But after a summer of feverish construction around the state, the situation could be easier this winter.

Three brand new ski areas are awaiting the winter onslaught, and seven other major areas have constructed a total of eight new lifts. The grand total is 18 new lift facilities, most of them double chairlifts.

The new names to be added to the list of Colorado ski areas this winter are Copper Mountain, Telluride and Sunshine Peak.

Copper Mountain, less than two hours drive west of Denver, is a large new area with a 2,350-foot vertical drop, four chairlifts (including an enclosed double chairlift) and a poma.

Telluride is an equally promising area. Although a little more off the beaten track, it will open with five double chairlifts in operation. It is located in southwestern Colorado, five miles from the sleepy mining town of the same name where Butch Cassidy robbed his first bank.

Sunshine Peak is a new expansion area with two chairlifts located immediately next to the existing Steamboat ski area in northwestern Colorado.

Other areas which have added one or more new chairlifts over the summer are Vail Lionshead, Ski Cooper, Keystone, Steamboat, Crested Butte, Breckenridge and Purgatory.

Keystone, which was forced to close early last year because of bare spots at the base, also has invested in $350,000 worth of snowmaking equipment on the lower third of the mountain.

Thanksgiving is Colorado's traditional season opening, and eight areas are aiming for the Nov. 23 date again this year.

13 Hansertic Cruises

NEW YORK German Atlantic Line has announced that it will be hosting the biggest series of parties ever to hit the Caribbean on the 13 West Indies cruises of the t.s. Hanseatic sailing from Port Everglades now through March 17, 1973.

On these cruises an "open bar" policy has been instituted with all drinks and wines being served to passengers free of charge at any time of day throughout each cruise and at no increase in fares. In addition, the company will host a series of parties every night that the Hanseatic is at sea during each cruise.

Each of the cruises, with the exception of the one on December 17, will be 12 days long and feature identical itineraries. The ports of call will include Curacao, La Guaira (for Caracas), Grenada, Barbados, Mar-

They are Arapahoe Basin, Aspen Highlands, Mountain and Snowmass, Breckenridge, Purgatory, Steamboat and Winter Park.

Areas opening earlier or later than that are Aspen Buttermilk Dec. 16, Copper Mountain Nov. 13, Crested Butte Nov. 22, Keystone Nov. 10, Vail Nov. 17, Telluride Dec. 16, and Lake Eldora Nov. 11.

Rondout Valley Students Really 'Dig' Local History

PROTECTING THE FINDINGS

HIGH FALLS
Social studies students from Rondout Valley High School are delving into history in a number of interesting ways this fall.

Although they are currently back at the books an earlier excursion took them to the Delaware and Hudson Canal bed in High Falls for a literal "dig" into local history. Future plans call for more personal contact with local heritage through exploration of folk tales and legends.

Under the direction of teachers, Donald Rothman and Richard Rydant, the diggers unearthed items of recent history which are displayed at the school. Earlier dated finds were turned over to the D and H Canal Historical Society museum at the old High Falls Schoolhouse. Rydant is a member of the canal society board of trustees.

In preparation for the archaeological experience, students were briefed on procedures, assigned to duties and sites. It was stressed that the experience was "not a treasure hunt but a scientific way of finding the past."

Finds were recorded, identified and displays were set up at the school. The purpose of the study Rydant said, was to enable students to experience at first hand the nature of the study of history to motivate student interest in history and to make better use of the local environment as a teaching tool.

Onteora Gets Vote

BOICEVILLE
Elections are over including the shouting. During the pre-election furor, students at Onteora High School became actively involved in the issues and in getting out the vote.

A recent assembly program saw 650 ninth through 12th grade students on hand to hear Democratic and Republican parties discuss respective platform planks.

Vanessa Steen, was student chairman for the program which was arranged through the cooperation of Carole Rhodes and members of the Woodstock League of Women Voters. Melvin Mones, county legislator, spoke on the Republican position on issues while John Bonilla of Woodstock presented the Democratic view.

Student questions indicated concern over violation of personal liberties through bugging of telephones of persons and party headquarters. Concern was expressed also about possible future wars involving the United States and specified aid to Israel as an example.

Strong feeling for stern treatment of draft dodgers in the present Vietnam War was expressed through questions involving attitudes of candidates toward amnesty.

In connection with election awareness the Onteora Chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America not only arranged the assembly but also staged a motor caravan. Decorated automobiles featured Uncle Sam as the theme of the Get Out the Vote campaign. Posters and signs were placed throughout the school district urging eligible voters to go to the polls.

Members of DECA also performed voter service on Election Day by providing free coffee, free transportation and babysitting.

In a mock election, just prior to Election Day, students and faculty of the Junior and Senior High School reflected the outcome of the real thing. Junior high school students polled 210 for Nixon and 105 for McGovern. The senior high school vote was 360 for Nixon to 147 for McGovern. Faculty vote was 30 for Nixon and 28 for McGovern.

Poll Results—Some Surprises

POUGHKEEPSIE
Students at the Krissler Business Institute failed to follow any predictable voting pattern in a recent straw poll on the issues.

For example, students favored imposition of the death penalty in some cases, by a vote of 32 to 20. In addition, they favored the execution of major drug pushers. The vote on that question was 33 to 25.

On the other hand, a more liberal stand was taken on the abortion issue. KBI students favor retaining the present liberal law on abortion, by a tally of 43 to 11. They were more evenly divided on a second question which proposed that the time limit on abortion be reduced to less than the present 24-week maximum.

By a 30 to 31 ballot, students decided against aid to parochial schools, but favored more aid to public schools by a wide margin. They voted 30 to 20 in favor of the legalization of gambling.

Perhaps, surprisingly, they voted in favor of expansion of Stewart Field. When asked whether the Legislature should try again to block the jetport, the vote was 23 to 21 against such a move.

Governor Rockefeller is not popular with KBI students. They were asked if they would vote for him if he were running again this year against an unspecified candidate. The vote against the Governor was 37 to 12.

Other questions and votes: Should public schools conduct classes all year round? Yes, 15; no 43.

Should County Board of Representatives terms be increased from 2 to 4 years? Yes, 14; no 37. Should members of the Board be given a raise? Yes, 6; no 37.

Students voted in favor of overhauling the welfare system and reducing costs, and were strongly opposed to a guaranteed minimum income. They were split evenly on lowering the age for Social Security benefits.

The Krissler Students expressed the belief that the state is not wasting its money on the narcotics rehabilitation program, and ought to be spending more money fixing up the prisons.

Students opposed busing to integrate schools, but on the other hand expressed the opinion that there should be more public housing in Dutchess County, and that it should be spread throughout the County.

The final question dealt with community involvement. A total of 27 students said they intended to become active in the community on leaving school, while 15 said they would not, and 25 were undecided.

'Normal' Abnormalities

By LEI

"We don't care if it's a boy or a girl," says the mother-to-be, "just as long as it's normal." If she is fortunate, one of the first things she will hear after the birth of her baby is that it is normal. And then, for the next 20 years she—and her husband—will continue to ask each other, and everyone else if their baby is normal. If you happen to be their "baby," that can be tough. It is very difficult for parents, teenagers, teachers, and many others to grasp exactly what "normality" consists of.

The problem starts early. A new mother boasts that her child is gobbling down cereal while the neighbor's kid is still guzzling formula. Already, she is proud because her baby is showing an acceptable abnormality—it is eating solids sooner than is normal. She is glad if the child walks early, reads early, is the first one on the block to master a two-wheeler. Fathers, too are very happy that their children are abnormal—as long as they show this abnormality by unusual smartness, performance, and good behavior.

Thirteen years after the girl was the first one on the block to drink from a cup or the boy was the youngest child in nursery school, a strange thing happens. The girl wants to be the first one in class to bleach her hair or the boy wants the first motorcycle on the block. Or maybe the girl is the first one in her class to get pregnant, or the boy is arrested for smoking weed with a group of fellows five years older than he is. The parents ask each other why their kid can't be like that quiet, dependable, respectful one up the block—the same one, perhaps, who didn't learn to read until second grade and insisted on drinking from a bottle until he was two.

Everybody develops at their own rate, and the only standard that can be used for normality is an average—and yet very few parents and teachers are entirely satisfied to accept what an "average" teenager actually is like. A government survey recently showed that over 40 per cent of the 18-21-year-olds had tried grass at least once. Far more than that have had gotten drunk at least once. In one graduating class, a health check showed that 75 per cent of the students had some venereal disease. A third of all teen marriages are somewhat less than voluntary. According to one group of statistics, over half of all teenage mothers are unmarried. The average school grade is a C. Needless to say, though, when parents and teachers want a child to conform to a "normal average" they don't mean they want their child out breaking the law, doing poorly in school, being promiscuous, having automobile accidents, and being—well, too normal in the wrong ways.

Under some adult pressure, too many teens feel that they are failing somehow because they can't measure up to Superteen standards — some even suffer emotional problems because they can't live up to everything everyone expects them to be. Yet it is logical that the fellow who enjoys school and makes good grades may not be dating as early as some of his classmates, and the popular girl doing volunteer work may not study long enough to make top grades. The athlete may not particularly enjoy his studies, and the talented young artist or poet may find school, and many of his classmates, quite boring.

The sense of adventure that made Johnny walk six months early may also tempt him into an automobile accident sixteen years later. Dorothy may have been eating solids when she was a year old, but she might drop acid when she was sixteen, too. The aggressive energy that makes Paul a winner on the football field could, in an off-moment, lead to an assault charge, and pretty, popular Debby may find herself popular with people she is not emotionally old enough to handle. One manifestation of "abnormality" is regarded as normal, and the other isn't.

The only statement that can be made about the human race in general is that we are all different. Each one of us has our own individual normality and no two of us—not even identical twins—develops the same way. Just as we all have our individual physical appearance, we're all individuals inside, too.

Fortunately, most adults are into these realizations about their teenagers—but some parents (who may excel in other ways) still want their kids to fit into the American Teen mold. Believe it or not, discussion will help—if they see this article in the paper it may start one. Channel your individual talents into the most constructive channels—oh, and one other little thing.

Don't be too perfect. Or that kid in the next building will be urged to be more like you.

Weekend Events

KYSERIKE
Next weekend will be a busy one for Rondout Valley High School students on several fronts.

A three act comedy, The Stuck Pot, by Roger Garis, will be the 1972 dramatic presentation of the senior class.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium on the evenings of Nov. 16, 17 and 18 under the direction of Edward Kalish of the English Department. Senior Debbie Dunn is assistant director.

Appearing in principal parts will be Trudy Hall as Alice Ann Sedgewick; Billy Wilkins as Edward Mott; Valerie Burns as Dean Taggart; Jill Ryder, Grace Sedgewick; Jim Reins, Willard Sedgewick; Diana Siemer, Gail Treat; and Diane Eldridge as Mary Jane Thompson. Several other class members will be seen in supporting roles.

Many seniors not involved in the actual dramatics are working on such committees, as set, programs, publicity lights, etc. The seniors are hard at work doing all the jobs necessary for a successful production. The Class of 1973 invites area residents to enjoy their efforts by attending any year as their Senior Play coincides with the festival.

And while the dramatic doings are on stage at Rondout Valley, music students will be on the road.

Eleven Rondout Valley High School music students, all juniors have been accepted for the All-State Sectional Choir at Walker, and David LaVoie.

The following selections will be sung by the Sectional Choir and 18. The Sectional Concert will be presented at 8 p.m. on (Mount of Olives) — Beethoven; Saturday, Nov. 18 and tickets will be available at the door. Silence — Holst; Choose

This year there were so many something — Like a Star — choir applicants that only Thompson; Cry Out and Shout juniors and seniors were — Nysted; Brothers — selected. Rondout Seniors did Steubing; Simple Gifts — not apply for the Sectionals this McKuen.

College Plans

Centenary College for Women representative Ralph W. Mickelson will be in the area next week to talk with interested secondary school students.

His Wednesday itinerary will include Ellenville High School 8:15 a.m.; New Paltz, 9:45 a.m.; Kingston High School, 11 a.m. and Rhinebeck High School 1:15 p.m.

The case of the disappearing paycheck and what to do about it.

Some people learn the hard way. Paychecks disappear fast.

Day-to-day living expenses eat up a lot. And maybe part goes in the savings account for this year's vacation or another immediate goal.

A good chunk of that money seems to disappear by itself.

So it's no wonder that when it comes to long-term goals, or when an emergency comes up, there simply aren't funds to meet the need.

Unless there was a nest egg building up all that time.

A good way to build that nest egg is with U.S. Savings Bonds. The easy way to buy them is to sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. An amount you specify will be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

And while you're going through grocery bills, car repairs, vacation weekends, kids' toys and nights out on the town, you'll know you're saving money too.

That's good to know.

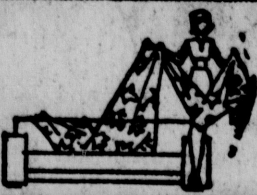

Now U.S. Bonds pay 5 1/2% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

The Notaug

Answers the Major Needs

By JACK McEENEY
PROVIDENCE, R.I.

There are many kinds of homes to suit all tastes and needs. One that is bound to yield all-around satisfaction, and answer major needs of newlyweds or the elderly couple for a retirement home is today's two-bedroom, elongated Colonial style ranch house, called "The Notaug."

"The Notaug" has the built-in economy advantage inasmuch as it could be built on a lot with less frontage than required by other types of homes. Also, the floor plan is designed in a pattern that allows the dinette area to become the third bedroom with a wardrobe by simply reversing the vestibule closet door.

The kitchen cabinets which are L-shape leave good wall space for family dining. The 12 foot x 20 foot long living room with modern fireplace embraces the entire front.

Economical construction is further enhanced by the use of common double-hung windows and wood shingles throughout the front, sides and rear.

"The Notaug" contains 1,006 square feet of living space, and house dimensions are 26 feet wide by 42 feet deep.

Complete working blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

Heating System...Key Point

BERKELEY HEIGHTS, N. J. The largest single investment of a lifetime, and most people make it casually, notes the National Better Heating-Cooling Council about the American home buyer. Especially in selecting heating systems.

It is generally accepted that the most important feature in a home with respect to comfort is its heating system, and unless it is functioning properly, the homeowner is letting himself and his family in for a lot of unhappiness, not to mention expense.

To give prospective homeowners an insight into what to look for when shopping for a new home, the Council has prepared a quick and simple checklist. Here are some of the things to look for:

Know the type of system. Is it hydronic (hot water or steam), warm air, or electric resistance? In modern hydronics, water is heated in a boiler and pumped through small tubing to baseboard panels. In warm air systems, a furnace heats air which is circulated by fans or blowers through ducts to registers. In electric resistance systems, heat is created in various types of outlets the same way your toaster works.

Look for stamp of approval. The nameplate on your boiler should bear the emblem of either the Institute of Boiler and Radiator Manufacturers (IBR) or the Steel Boiler Institute (SBI). If gas fired, the furnace should have its rating approved by the American Gas Association. These organizations have established criteria of performance to assure the consumer that the equipment will produce its rated output.

Listen for noises. A good heating system should be relatively quiet. Ask to hear it in operation.

Ask about expandability. Remember that your family needs will increase in later years. Make sure the system is designed to handle extra loads if you plan to enlarge the house or add air conditioning.

A word of caution. A ducted warm air system does not automatically imply that you can add air conditioning quickly and inexpensively. The ducts, the fan, and the registers must all be larger to accommodate a comfortable cooling system.

Check the heating distributors. For optimum comfort, all distributors — baseboard panels, convectors, and registers — should be near the floor on outside walls, especially under windows.

Find the thermostat. Make sure the thermostat is located on an inside wall away from sunlight, hot pipes or drafts. If the house has more than one level, you will be better off to have a thermostat for each level.

Compare operating costs. Check with a heating contractor for estimated costs when moving into a new house. In older houses, inspect the heating bills and try to compare them with neighbors who have similar houses and heating systems. In older houses, have a contractor inspect the heating system to ascertain that it is in good condition.

How to Get Yourself a Choice Seat

By MR. FIX

Too many wooden chairs are relegated to the attic, tossed on the rubbish heap or broken up for kindling wood.

Chairs that groan and squeak may be ready to give out but that's no reason for tossing them away.

Like anything else, catching the problem right away keeps it from being a serious problem. You're ahead if you take the trouble to disassemble the chairs and reglue all the pieces.

Most people make the mistake of trying to repair a chair with nails or screws. Not only is the result unsightly but you have set up a situation where the repaired joint may crack.

Remove the loose rung and clean off all the old glue, using sandpaper to get it all off. The hole in the leg must be cleaned out also. A round file or a knife can be used to scrape out hardened glue.

A good trick to help remove hardened glue is pouring a little vinegar in the hole.

Sanding and scraping will make the fit even looser than before. To tighten the point, cut a notch in the end of the rung and force a wooden wedge into the cut. This will expand the rung.

You also can make the fit tight by thickening the glue with a little sawdust. Do this if the rung is still loose.

Spread glue on both rungs and the inner surface of the hole in the leg. Force the rung into place. Wipe off the excess glue that oozes out. Clamp or tie as tight as you can with rope or strong twine.

A seat frame that comes loose can be reinforced with metal corner braces or wood blocks. Just screw in place.

Blocks are neater. Just cut a triangular piece of wood and fasten in the corners with screws and wood glue.

Chairs that seem to be loose all over should be taken completely apart and reassembled. Don't mix up parts from different chairs. They look alike but they've worn differently over the years.

Mark the parts from each chair with a number tape or other device so you can get the same chair back together again.

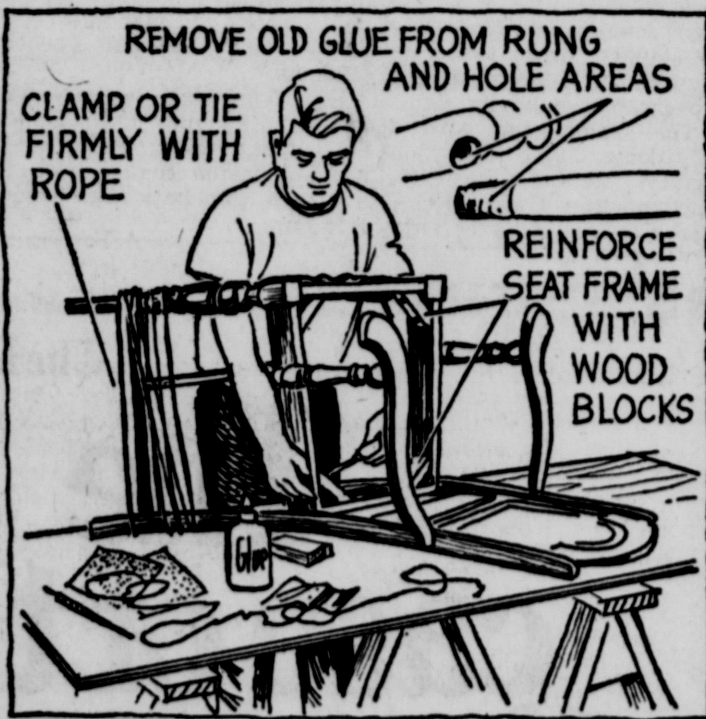

Seats are fastened with screws through glue blocks in the corners. Take the seat off first. It's easiest. The rest of a good chair is assembled with dowels.

If the chair is old and pretty well dried out. You can force the chair apart with your hands. Keep the chair in a warm, dry room a few days before you begin work.

If it won't come apart by hand, use a mallet to tap the pieces apart. Broken parts that are left in holes should be drilled out.

With the chair apart, clean and sand off all old glue. Replace broken dowels. Apply fresh glue and tap the pieces together with a mallet if force is needed.

Use a rope and a dowel tourniquet fashion for drawing the pieces together and holding them tight while the glue dries.

Stop saving for a new home!

You probably have more than you need to build your dream home now.

You've been saving up for the kind of down payment you think you'll need for a new home. But you really don't need it!

Stop saving — because you can get started building your Ridge home right now!

You'll find the whole exciting story in the new Ridge Homes Magazine, "How You Can Own a Home of Your Own" ... It's 84 colorful pages of pure inspiration ... the only magazine of its kind. In it you'll read a feature article written by a typical Ridge customer named Francis Reers who tells how he built his own Ridge home with hardly any out-of-pocket cash at all!

Just think! One month's rent could be the only cash you need to build your own home. Like Francis Reers, if you own a building lot or can get one, you can probably build and own the Ridge home of your choice for what you pay in rent.

And that's not just any home! Mr. Reers and his wife custom-designed the Ridge home they chose for their lot. And the Reers explain in the article how they actually saved $4,000 on their house by doing some interior finishing work themselves. And how Ridge even made the financing easy for them.

You can make the home you choose suit your family ... exactly. With Ridge, you get the exact home you want! The Ridge magazine shows you all 37 basic models ... decorator ideas ... Ridge Homes "Wonderful World of Choice" for exterior design, floor plans, kitchens, bathrooms, color schemes, and options galore!

And Ridge Homes has mortgage money, too!

As the largest builder in the East, we have our own financial resources to help people like you build new homes. So mortgages are never a problem for Ridge customers. Ridge also offers you a choice of two financing plans, and one of them is just right for your family.

You don't have to postpone your dream of a new home another day. Stop saving for it ... and start living in it. Get a free copy of the Ridge Homes Magazine at your Ridge dealer's. Or mail the coupon today.

Your Horoscope - - Today and Monday

Sunday, November 12

GENERAL TENDENCIES: First think out the new ways that you can put in effect your highest spiritual ideas, then you are able to get out in the world of people to gain their support for your personal wishes. You can have a good time as well as adding to the enjoyment of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you get together with your friends, you find that they have fine ideas you can profit by later on, and become a buoyant, happy person. Think more clearly where your ambitions are concerned. Adopt the best of the modern.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to improve your position within the community in which you live. Improve your image considerably. Enjoy public affairs and make an excellent impression on others. Try to get at the bottom of some puzzling situation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss those ideas you have with wise people and get their reactions before you put them in operation. Do some corresponding with out-of-towners. Ask their views, which can be very helpful to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to the voice of your intuition and use your hunches where most needed, then you can get ahead. Show much affection to mate for right results. Avoid one who likes to gossip a great deal.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have a habit of wanting to change and convert others to your way of thinking, but if you accept them for their differences, you get along better. Listen to their ideas for your advancement. Fundamental changes with approval of kin are fine.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show appreciation to those who have done you many favors. Get busy rearranging your wardrobe so it is more attractive. Do not waste time on whatever is of a worthless nature. Think logically.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you are truly devoted to the one you love, you can renew faith and make the future brighter. Get into the religious studies necessary. You can enjoy fascinating fun after that with congenials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do whatever will please kin and they will willingly cooperate in some plan you have for mutual good. Investigate new outlets via brochures that will bring you an added income. Show others how much you like them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can accomplish more via the religious ladder now, since this is really your forte, although you appear to be very practical only. After meditation, get together with persons you like for constructive purposes. Retire early in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you study your newspaper well, you can find just the right advertisement that will give you added income, which you need now. Consult with financial experts you know, also. Stop worrying so much—get to work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you talk over with a prominent person you know just how to handle that personal or financial matter best that is vital to you, you get right results. Attend a group meeting that can be helpful. Avoid one you do not particularly like.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meditation will help you gain your fondest aims now, then you can contact the right persons who can be of assistance. The information you need must come from the right source. Do not take anything for granted.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those idealistic young people who requires a fine education if the great promise in this chart is to be realized properly for leadership in community or country. There is the ability here to make many, many friendships and keep them. Give good religious training early that will permit your offspring to get on the right road of life early and continue steadfastly on it. Sports are important here.

Monday, November 13

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for interesting new ideas and courses of action whereby your influence can be felt far beyond present boundaries. The evening brings some confusion in trying to gain the goodwill of others, especially friends. Keep objective.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to good friends for the favors you want now and start an upturn in your life. Group affairs are fine during the day. Later take health treatments. Evening is best spent at home.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A higher-up has the answer to many of your problematical affairs so see this person early in the day. Show your fine ability at carrying through with important tasks. Take care of a credit matter.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study those ideas you have for making a more abundant life for yourself and then put the most practical ones in operation quickly. Correspondence can bring the right viewpoints you seek.

South might have doubled the four-spade opening and taken a small but welcome profit, but South was not going to be shut out of his fine heart suit.

He bid five hearts, but wished he hadn't when he saw the dummy.
East won the spade lead and continued the suit. Strangely enough, a club or diamond shift would kill any chance to make the contract, but no one can fault the spade continuation.

South ruffed; drew trumps with two leads; stopped to ask himself the $64,000 question: How can I make this hand?
The simple way would be to play the ace of clubs and drop an honor from the East hand so South played the ace of clubs and all that showed up were low cards.

This left him with two chances: "Slim and none."
The slim chance involved the risk of a two-trick set but South was willing to take it. He led a diamond toward dummy and finessed the jack. When that held the slim chance had become a pretty good one.

He ruffed dummy's next to last spade; got back to dummy with the king of diamonds. Ruffed the last spade; cashed the ace of diamonds and led a low club.

East was in with the king and had to lead a spade, allowing South to discard his last club and ruff in dummy.

Camera Angles

By IRVING DESFOR

COLOGNE, Germany (AP)—Photokina 1972, the colossus of international photo fairs, recently concluded its nine-day assemblage of what's what and who's who in world photography by setting new records. It had more exhibitors, attracted more visitors, did more business and got more press attention than at any of its previous 11 mammoth gatherings.

Held every two years in this medieval cathedral city on the Rhine River, this year's happening drew more than 250,000 people with a amateur, professional or trade interest in photography. They came from 116 nations to see the displays exhibited by 770 firms from 24 countries. These were spread around in 12 huge interconnected halls — many of them with two levels — over a total floor space of more than one million square feet.

As might be expected, American firms exhibiting or represented at Photokina formed one of the major participating foreign groups along with Great Britain, France and Japan. There were 55 direct exhibitors and another 34 represented firms offering optical, cinegraphic audiovisual and photographic equipment, accessories, chemicals, films, papers and publications with the "Made in U.S.A." label.

In fact, the star attraction and big news of this year's show was Kodak's introduction of the Pocket Instamatic camera series to the European market. This revolutionary camera miniaturization format made its debut in the U.S. in March and has become a sensational success.

The innovation of this practical system for 16mm film cameras involves more, than merely the debut of tinier cameras which are handier to carry in pocket or purse. Their success is possible because of the simultaneous development and introduction of new, finer-grained films and special processing equipment and handling. Eventually, of course, the finer-grained films should become available in film formats for other cameras. That will be an added dividend for all photographers.

On all sides, there's photographic hardware... the latest in cameras, equipment and accessories in every size, shape and make. They are all available for demonstration, examination and explanation. There isn't a photo gadget too small or a machine too big that can't be found somewhere in the vast area of the Messe (the fairgrounds). To find the needles in the haystack, a complete catalog listed all items, companies and their locations.

This year outside of the Pocket Instamatic, there were no headline-making innovations. There were, instead, refinements and advancements in well-defined trends in: —automatic 35mm SLR cameras with electronic shutters; —computerized electronic flash units with automatic control of light output and from remote sensors; —more compact Super 8mm movie cameras with greater zoom lens ratios and with lip-synch sound recording; —computer-designed, multi-layer-coated lenses from rare-earth glasses which are more compact, lightweight and faster; —and processing procedures and machines designed to reduce pollution problems.

'Cautious Optimism'

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The Episcopal Church, hard hit during the past five years by losses of membership and financial support, seems now to be coming out of its slump.

That is the "cautiously optimistic" appraisal of its presiding bishop, the Rt. Rev. John E. Hines.

Hines, who recently announced his intention to retire in May, 1974, is stumping the country like a presidential candidate, trying to reopen lines of communication with laymen and clergy who are perplexed or angry about some of the new directions the Episcopal Church has taken under his leadership.

In a recent talk with this reporter, he said the main bone of contention is the so-called "special program" under which his denomination provides funds, with few if any strings attached, to non-church organizations seeking a better break for Blacks, Indians, Chicanos and other "oppressed minorities."

Helps Some Militants

"There has been polarization of the church over this," Hines conceded. "Some Episcopalians feel the church at the national level has become a social work agency instead of proclaiming the gospel."

He said he also has been accused of funneling church money into "avowedly revolutionary" organizations.

"That's not true," he said. "We do finance some quite militant groups, but our policy forbids funding any group that preaches violence as a method of social change."

Although Hines describes his cross-country tour of Episcopal dioceses as part of a "listening program" intended to inform church leaders about rank-and-file thinking, a typical session consists of an hour-long talk by Hines, expounding and defending national church policies, followed by a much briefer period in which clergy and laity in the audience are invited to submit questions in writing.

No Verbal Feedback

No provision is made for verbal feedback, argument or exposition of opposing viewpoints from the floor. This causes some laity and clergy to go away feeling they've been talked at rather than listened to.

Hines believes, however, that the "listening" program already has resulted in "some reduction of hostility" toward church social action.

"The loss of members and money seems to have stabilized," he said. "Financial support of the national church so far this year is running about 1 1/2 per cent above last year, and we seem to be headed for the lowest deficit in five years."

"More important, I detect much more vitality in parish life in all parts of the country. We still have internal divisions, but I'm hopeful we're over the worst of it."

Redeemer Honors Staff

KINGSTON The congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers streets honored two of its staff members for long and faithful service at its 75th anniversary banquet, last week.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. David Gaise and Mrs. Gaise were surprised with tributes from James T. Owens, president and Henry O. Wickman who presented gifts to the Gaises on the completion of 25 years of service to Redeemer Church.

Dr. Gaise, in turn, spoke of the loyal and devoted service of Mr. and Mrs. Karlis Saulitis and presented them with a gift and plaque which said they had been "good and faithful stewards of the house of God" for 20 years. Other staff members who were recognized were Mrs. Lester Decker, organist emeritus, Mrs. Alva Bruce, church secretary and J. Anthony Hummel, choir director.

The weekend activities brought to a conclusion a series of anniversary events during the year for the downtown church which was founded in 1897 to bring the Lutheran faith to a new generation in the English language. The Rev. Dr. Russell S. Gaenzle of Allentown, Pa., a former pastor, spoke at the banquet recalling the lean depression years when he was Redeemer's pastor and the achievements that came in spite of the difficulties.

Dr. Gaenzle also preached Sunday morning at Redeemer Church to nearly 500 people and challenged them to be aware anew of the mission of the church.

The banquet program, given a humorous touch by John F. Crews and Grant W. Housewright who presented a skit about Dr. Gaise and his years at the church, closed on a serious note with Dr. Arthur O. Davidson, president of Wagner College, giving an address on the Church and Education; new challenge in a new day.

LeRoy Stoothoff who was toastmaster praised the work of the 75th anniversary committee consisting of William M. Daum, chairman, Mrs. Robert Evory, Miss Kathi Schoonmaker, LeRoy Stoothoff Jr., Chester Fox, George Schmidt, Walter Reif, James T. Owens, as well as David Rylance, Mrs. Robert Van Buren and Mrs. Richard Dillon who arranged the banquet.

GIFTS FOR TANZANIA — The Rev. and Mrs. Alvin F. Messersmith present gifts and money for Kiomboi Hospital, Tanzania, to the Rev. William E. Mwakagali (L) and Nathaniel B. Lucas of Tanzania. The East African church leaders were special guests at the recent fall assembly of Hudson District Lutheran Church Women at Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone Streets. Approximately 100 women attended the event. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Registrations are now due for the 30th Annual Mid-Hudson Festival of Youth Chorus, to be held Sunday, April 1 in the First Reformed Church, Catskill.

The festival is open to junior choirs of all churches in the Mid-Hudson area.

Information and registration blanks are available from Mrs. Vernon O. Nagel, chairman of the Membership Committee, Athens Road, RD 3 Box 47-17, Catskill.

New Religion—Join God's Club

NEW YORK (AP) — "The repercussions on others—shoplifting, drugs, pollution, financial fudging. Millions of dollars worth of broadcast time and advertising space is contributed in the campaign, which last year amounted to more than $2 million worth of media exposure.

Television spots, accompanied by soul-type music, show a sequence of hands clapping—black and white hands, young and old hands, delicate and work-hardened hands.

"His hand in your hand, your hand in my hand," the lyrics go. "Brother to brother, helping each other... we're gonna make a better day."

A radio spot focuses on personal self-abuse, saying: "When you're having one drink too many, did you ever hear yourself say, 'OK, it's my health to abuse if I want to.' Kidding yourself. Nobody is an island. The life we abuse is part of all life. Part of the community of man. God's club. Be an active member."

The campaign materials were prepared by the Lieberman-Harrison, Inc. advertising agency.

Ian MacGregor, a business executive announced as the new national chairman of the campaign, said it is particularly urgent nowadays because "we in the United States stem have lost the deep abiding faith" so vital to individual and national integrity.

But he said there are signs for revitalized religious values in the decade ahead.

That's the key slogan of a new Religion in American Life advertising campaign unveiled this week, stressing the interdependence and mutual responsibility of people for society and each other.

It will be conveyed by newspaper ads, radio and television spots, roadside signs and posters from now until late next year throughout the country, as part of an annual drive to bolster the nation's religious values.

"It's one of the best campaigns we've had in 24 years of existence," says the Rev. Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, a United Presbyterian official and president of the interfaith effort.

Backed by the advertising industry and 40 national religious groups, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish, the campaign this time hits at some touchy spots in modern society. Says one ad: "You've probably heard people say, 'I'm all for open housing. I just don't want it in our lovely, peaceful neighborhood.' This is pretty much the same thing as saying I'm for righting social injustice as long as it won't cost me anything. Has it ever worked out that way?"

"This planet is our neighborhood. And all people are its neighbors in the community of man."

The campaign hits at various individual behavior, often justified in isolation, but which is portrayed as having harmful

Kenya Reports Growth

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Will success spoil Christianity in Africa? A forthcoming report on churches in Kenya suggests that the problem is more acute than many clerics have believed.

Figures compiled for the first time in the Kenya Churches Handbook for 1972, to be published in a few weeks, are expected to show twice as many church members as had been estimated and an unexpectedly deep church involvement in social development projects.

David B. Barrett, an Anglican missionary who helped prepare the handbook, says it's like that nearly everywhere in black Africa.

He estimates that the more than 100 million Christians on the continent are increasing at the rate of 5 per cent a year — double the population growth. By the year 2000, he says, African Christians could total 350 million and exceed the number of African Moslems for the first time.

The demand for thousands of additional churches, ministers and lay personnel, and church-aided agencies is overwhelming.

Some in the Roman Catholic church, the biggest Christian group in Africa, foresee a complete administrative breakdown within a generation, with the hierarchy becoming hopelessly decentralized.

"We had thought that the crisis lay between Christianity and anti-Christian forces, like communism, but now we have an entirely unexpected crisis," Barrett said in an interview. "It's the exact opposite of the crisis of faith in the West. Growth is almost out of control."

"Africans are the most religious people in the world. Christianity is a religion of development and human rights and Africa was ripe for it."

Much of the growth has been within independent or separatist movements outside the historical church organizations. There are more than 5,000 such movements, including some 3,000 in South Africa, with a total membership of about 15 million.

African church leaders see the boom as foreshadowing the development of Christianity from a largely white-and-Western-centered religion into a religion dominated numerically, at least, by non-white, Third World peoples. Some predict that Western Christians will double during the 20th century to 800 million but Third World Christians will increase from 67 million in 1900 to more than 1 billion.

"Is our generation given the task of preparing a new millennium of world Christianity? I believe so," said Canon Burgess Carr, general secretary of the All Africa Conference of Churches, recently.

Holy Land Sojourn

MILAN The tour will be 15 days with emphasis on seeing and hearing about the land that is sacred to three faiths — Christian, Jew, and Muslim.

Places visited will include Athens, Corinth, Lebanon, and Egypt. The major part of the tour will be in the Holy Land including Jerusalem, the Garden of Gethsemane, Mt. of Olives, Bethlehem, Jericho, Jordan River, Dead Sea, Samaria, Galilee, Capernaum, Nazareth, and Haifa.

There will be professional English-speaking guides at each place that is visited to provide historical and contemporary perspective of the sites visited.

Many interested people from the area will make the tour.

The Rev. Mr. Bergers assumed the position of director of Camp Taconic in January, 1971. The camp, near the Taconic Parkway, is owned and operated by the New York District Church of the Nazarene.

He spent 13 years pastoring and establishing new churches for the Church of the Nazarene. Prior to coming to Camp Taconic, the Rev. Mr. Bergers served as development representative for Owosso College in Owosso, Mich.

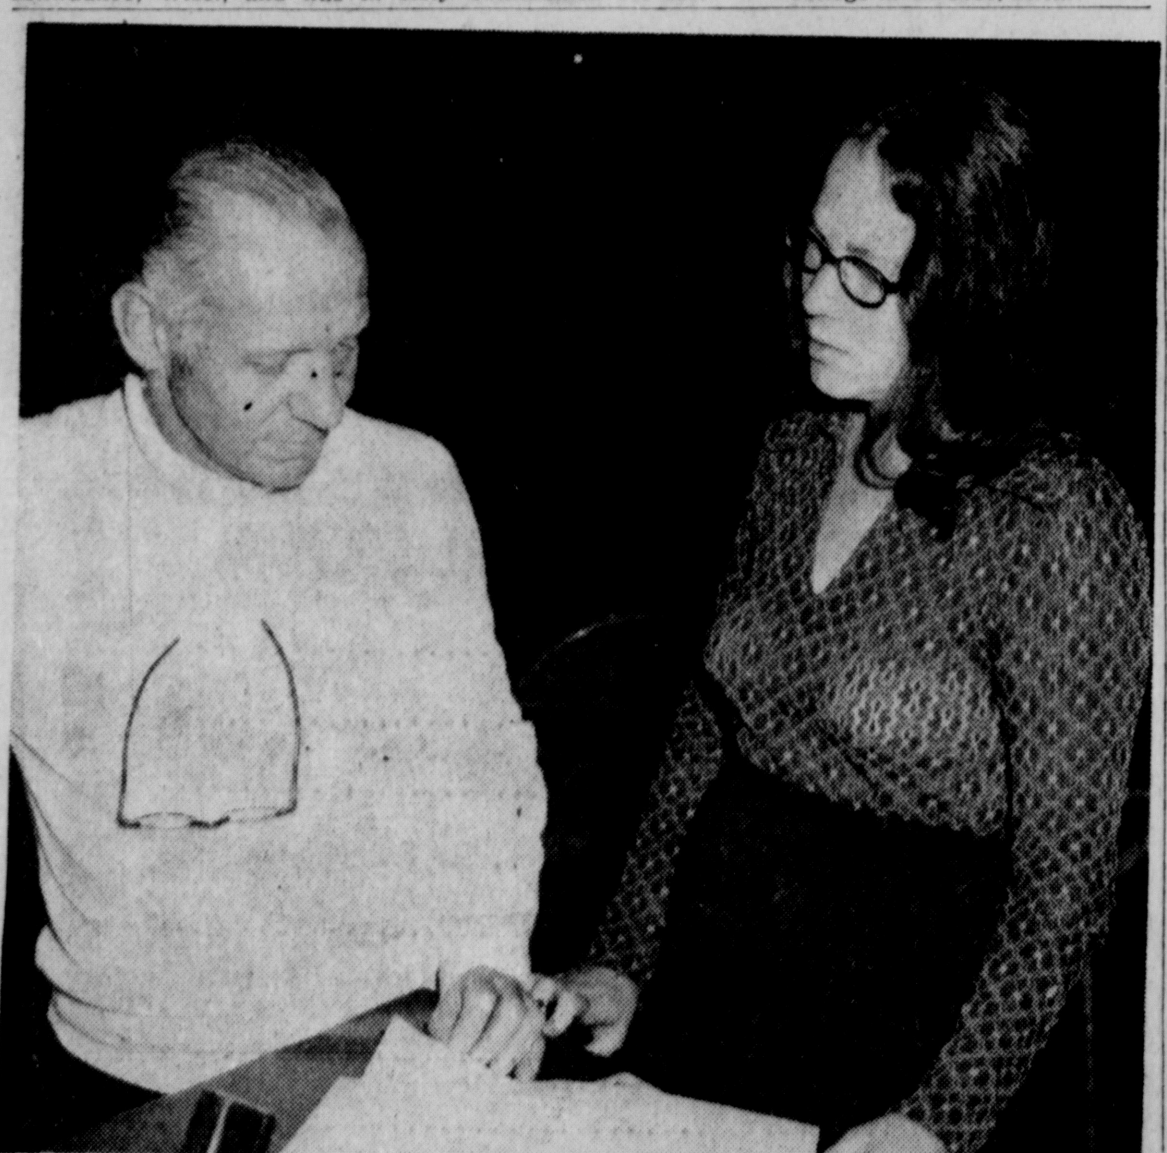

Launch 'Key 73'

KINGSTON The Ponckhockie Union Congregational Church will officially launch its program of commitment and service to the Kingston area, Wednesday, Nov. 22 at 7 p.m.

The program in which the church is participating is an interdenominational, nationwide evangelistic effort to reach the unchurched of North America with the Gospel.

Ponckhockie Church is a member of the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches of Mr. Mackey and a dedicatory Holy Communion service.

The service of Wednesday Nov. 22 will include special choral music, with solo voices. A Bible message by the Rev. Mr. Mackey and a dedicatory Holy Communion service.

MASSSED CHOIR PROGRAM — Percy Gazlay, conductor and Gloria Jean Clark, organist, go over program for tonight's presentation by the Masssed Choir of the Kingston Area Council of Churches. The concert will be presented 7:30 p.m. at the Fair Street Reformed Church and is open to the public. (Freeman photo by Powell)

LADIES'

2-DIAMOND Pierrette

With graceful lines and trim styling, it's the latest design in women's watches . . . set off elegantly by two glistening diamonds. And though it may look delicate, it's sturdy enough to wear for sports and everyday use, as well as dress-up occasions. Select either 10-karat white or yellow rolled gold plate top, each with stainless steel back, matching expansion bracelet.

Nobody puts more care, patience and craftsmanship into watchmaking than the renowned Gruen master Swiss technicians. Now, they've unveiled two more classics to add to the Gruen heritage—the Ladies' Diamond Pierrette and the Men's Continental Calendar Watch. Both are traditionally Gruen in every respect. And that means a unique combination of attractiveness and accuracy you'll be proud to give, pleased to get. Official Watch of the National Hockey League

YOUR GRUEN HAS INCABLOC SHOCK RESISTANT PROTECTION
. . . protects the heart of your watch

Plus these exceptional advantages: 17 working jewels at the most critical points of action. Unbreakable mainspring. Antimagnetic to resist electrical charges. Dust resistant. Electronically tested and certified for superior quality.

*Withstands water pressure to 50 lbs. p.s.i. (equals submersion to 80 feet).

MEN'S DAY AND DATE

Continental Calendar Watch

A watch for the active man—a complete calendar, as well as a rugged keeper of time. Modern luminous hands stand out in the dark. Meets U.S. Government standards for shock* and water* resistance while case, crown and crystal remain intact. Select either chrome or yellow, each with stainless steel back. Matching expansion band.

Peter Graves in Action-packed Drama

Peter Graves, of "Mission: Impossible," and James Daly, of "Medical Center," both series on the CBS Television Network, star in "The 5-Man Army," tough suspense drama in color, to be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, Nov. 13 (starting at 11:30 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

In the barren hills of northern Mexico, in 1914, soldiers of the country's dictator comb peasant villages for suspected revolutionaries. A steel-jawed American known as "The Dutchman" (Graves) joins the peon revolutionaries after his Mexican wife is killed by soldiers. Along with four other recruits, Augustus (Daly), Mesito (But Spencer), Luis (Nino Castelnuovo) and Samurai (Tetsuro Tamba), "The Dutchman" is challenged by a series of adventures climaxed by the daring diversion of an important cargo.

"The Waltons" to be seen
after enthusiastic reception

"The Waltons," highly acclaimed family drama series, has been extended on the CBS Television Network for the full 1972-73 season, it was announced recently by Fred Silverman, Vice President, Programs for the Network.

The weekly hour-long series, starring Richard Thomas and based on novelist Earl Hamner's heartwarming reminiscences of growing up in the bosom of his large and affectionate family in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia during the Depression days of the 1930s, made its debut in September of this year (Thursdays, 8:00-9:00 PM, ET).

The program received glowing review from most of the nation's critics, who applauded its superb production qualities and the believability of its scripts and characters. In recent weeks the audiences have built steadily and, as a result, the Network made its decision for a full season's presentation.

Television viewers first met the Waltons in Hamner's "THE HOMECOMING A Christmas Story," a two-hour special presented on the Network in December 1971.

Richard Thomas, who created the role in "THE HOMECOMING," stars, as John-Boy Walton, oldest of the seven children of John and Olivia Walton, played by Ralph Waite and Miss Michael Learned. Also co-starred are Will Geer and Ellen Corby as the grandparents. The younger Walton children are played by Jon Walmsley, Judy Norton, Mary Elizabeth McDonough, David S. Harper, Eric Scott and Kami Cotler.

BEGINS 'AMERICA' SERIES

Col. Blake fears for his safety on "M*A*S*H"

A strange series of accidents befalls Lt. Col. Blake, and suspicion at first falls on Trapper John because the commanding officer had refused him permission to use the company jeep for an evening date, on "M*A*S*H" Sunday, Nov. 12 (8:00-8:30 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network. Don Weiss directed from a script by Bob Klane.

Hawkeye and Trapper suggest that Blake had best leave the area for a few days to avoid risk, but as the colonel is flying out by helicopter he has the sinking feeling that its pistol-packing pilot, Cowboy, is the man with the grudge who is responsible for his near-fatal accidents.

Craig Stevens on "Here's Lucy"

Craig Stevens guest stars as one of the places he visits during his "America" series, which premieres on the NBC Television Network Tuesday, Nov. 14 (10-11 p.m., NYT).

an undercover policeman who plots to trap a hood with the help of Lucy in the guise of an old apple peddler, on "Here's Lucy" Monday, Nov. 13 (9:00-9:30 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network. Coby Ruskin directed from a script by Bob O'Brien.

Lucy falls into her cloak-and-dagger role when she is mistaken for the Apple Annie-type while wearing house-cleaning gear.

Yul Brynner Plays Dual Role

In the palace, Louis meets a strange old man who is making beautiful glass wind chimes, and to win a set of them the youngster is lured into a dangerous game with himself as the prize, on "Anna and the King" Sunday, Nov. 12 (7:30-8:00 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network. Yul Brynner, who stars as the King, also plays the old man, Uncle Patra. E. Swackhamer directed from a script by Jerry Mayer.

While Chulalongkorn, the Crown Prince, claims that Louis only dreamed about the old man, the King warns Anna her son is in danger, and they go to the royal astrologer, who gives confusing advice.

'The CBS Late Movie' November 13-17

Peter Graves, Paul Newman, Jim Brown, Julie Harris, Diahann Carroll, James Daly, Ernest Borgnine, Gene Hackman, Christopher George, Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni are among the stars who will be seen on "The CBS Late Movie" during the week of November 13-17. (Starting time for all films is 11:30 PM, EST).

Peter Graves, star of "Mission: Impossible", and James Daly, who stars on "Medical Center", both on the CBS Television Network, head the cast of "The 5-Man Army," hard-hitting drama based on the activities of a Mexican dictator in 1914, on Monday, Nov. 13, in the first television presentation of this color film.

Paul Newman portrays Billy Bonney, better known as Billy the Kid, in "The Left-Handed Gun," exciting Western drama, on Tuesday, Nov. 14. John Dehner, who portrays Doris

Jim Brown, Julie Harris, Diahann Carroll, Ernest Borgnine, Gene Hackman, Jack Klugman and Warren Oates star in "The Split," color thriller to be seen for the first time on television on Wednesday, Nov. 15.

On Thursday, Nov. 16, Christopher George stars as a former policeman working as a Government undercover agent, and William Schallert portrays a Presidential adviser, in "Man on a String." Jack Warden and Joel Grey also appear in this color presentation.

Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni star in "The Priest's Wife," color comedy about the tribulations of a beautiful young woman in love with a priest, on Friday, Nov. 17. (This film was originally presented on this series on February 21, 1972.)

'The CBS Children's Film Festival'

"Elephant River," a motion picture produced in Ceylon which offers an insight into that country's customs and culture while following the adventures of a Eurasian boy, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Nov. 18 (1:00-2:00 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

When his widowed mother dies, the young boy feels there is no one left to care for him and flees into the jungle with his pet elephant to live forever off the land. He comes upon poachers who are trying to trap trained elephants to sell as work animals to wealthy estate owners.

The boy tries to set one of the animals free but is discovered, wounded and left for dead. It is only through the aid of his elephant pet that the boy is saved and later discovers he is a hero.

Andy Griffith, who stars with Ida Lupino in the tense drama "The Strangers in 7A" on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" Tuesday, Nov. 14 (9:30-11:00 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network, says he never really had any formal dramatic training. "Although I was involved in theatre in college," Griffith explains, "I never paid serious attention to my acting. You see, I was planning on becoming a singer."

Barry Livingston, who played Ernie on "My Three Sons," guest stars as a boy genius who, Sandy believes, has amorous intentions in the upcoming episode of "The Sandy Duncan Show" on the CBS Television Network. Ezra Stone, who was radio's Henry Aldrich, directs.

Andrew Duggan, formerly star of "Lancer," portrays a boat builder and old friend of Cannon who is charged in the hunting-accident death of his son in a "Cannon" episode filming for future broadcast on the CBS Television Network. Carl Betz plays the high-powered attorney who handles the case, and Katherine Justice appears as a court reporter who was a friend of the victim. Other guest roles are played by Billy Green Bush and Neva Patterson.

Cosby Comments on his Comic Idols

"I was impressed with his simplicity and observation and his fantastic sense of humor in establishing a picture with words."

Mark Twain, famous American humorist, is the subject of this statement by another famous American comic Bill Cosby, the star of "The New Bill Cosby Show" seen Mondays (10:00-11:00 PM, ET) on the CBS Television Network.

Cosby credits Twain with being one of the strong influences on his own style. "When I was a boy my mother used to read Mark Twain to me, and I read all of his works for myself when I was in high school," he says.

Another man who has influenced Cosby is nightclub comic turned television personality, Redd Foxx.

"I first bought some of his records when I was in high school," Cosby says of Foxx. "What impressed me was his ability to get a laugh without delivering a line, also his ability to deliver a word and make it mean something special through sound and inflections. That's where he really shines."

About the effect Charlie Chaplin has had on him, Cosby says: "Some years ago there was a Chaplin film festival in New York City. I went three times a day. I saw him do things that I've seen modern comedians do on the screen. They probably lifted them from Chaplin, and I can't say I blame them. I can't think of a better clown for any comic to emulate."

At his home Cosby has a copy of the film "Steamboat Bill," starring Buster Keaton another favorite from the annals of comic history.

"Every once in a while I thread it on the projector and run it off, waiting for the routine in which he gets into a limousine, makes a U-turn on the street and then gets out of the car on the other side. That bit is a whole education in comic acting."

"He was always known as a dashing leading man, both on the screen and off," she says, "but few people realize what great wit he had. There was never more laughter in my life than when Errol Flynn was my friend." Miss Lupino stars with Andy Griffith in the tense drama "The Strangers in 7A" on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" Tuesday, Nov. 14 (9:30-11:00 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

Paul Newman stars in 'The Left Handed Gun'

Paul Newman stars in "The Left Handed Gun," exciting drama of Billy Bonney, better known as Billy the Kid, on "The CBS Late Movie" Tuesday, Nov. 14 (starting at 11:30 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network. John Dehner, who portrays Doris Day's employer on "The Doris Day Show" on the Network, plays the role of Pat Garrett in this black-and-white film.

In the West of the 1880s, Brooklyn-born BILLY THE KID (Newman) vows to kill a sheriff and three other men responsible for the murder of rancher Turnstall (Colin Keith-Johnston) who had befriended him. Enlisting the aid of two trail companions, Charlie (James Congdon) and Tom (James Best), he takes revenge on two of the four murderers. Billy then escapes to Mexico, where he becomes romantically involved with Celsa (Lita Milan), the wife of a gunsmith. When the romance is discovered, he is forced to flee Mexico. With his buddies, Billy then resumes his original plan of vengeance.

After successful appearances on Broadway and in films, Michael Brandon decided to take a year's sabbatical from acting to study Gestalt psychology in a northern California commune. His first acting role since leaving the commune is that of the leader of a gang of young thieves who hold Andy Griffith and Ida Lupino, as a Manhattan building superintendent and his wife, hostage in "The Strangers in 7A", to be seen on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" Tuesday, Nov. 14 (9:30-11:00 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

Weight Watcher's Potato Salad Made From Washington State Potatoes

Here's potato salad that is low in calories yet very tasty. This "Weight Watcher's Potato Salad" is your answer, seasoned with a tangy, cooked buttermilk dressing. Sounds unusual? It is, and an easy recipe besides! You may also like it because it may be served in both low-fat and low-calorie diets. Be sure you choose Washington State Potatoes grown in the fertile valleys of Washington where the soil is high in nutrients. Their texture and flavor is ideal, an essential for a good potato salad.

Potatoes have many health-giving nutrients and should not be eliminated from the diet as actually they are not high in calories. It's what you put on them—butter, sour cream, gravy, etc. So if you're calorie counting, this "Weight Watcher's Potato Salad" is for you!

WEIGHT WATCHER'S POTATO SALAD

DRESSING

2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
freshly ground pepper
1/8 teaspoon paprika
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 tablespoons salad oil
1/2 cup buttermilk

SALAD

6 cups cooked, hot sliced
Washington State Potatoes
Washington State Potatoes
(5 or 6)
1 cup dressing
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1 cup sliced celery
1/2 cup sliced green onions
1/4 cup chopped parsley

DRESSING: Blend sugar, cornstarch, mustard, salt, pepper, paprika and water. Cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in vinegar, then oil. Gradually beat in buttermilk until dressing is smooth and creamy. Use as dressing over "Weight Watcher's Potato Salad". Can be stored in refrigerator and used as needed. Makes one cup.

SALAD: Combine hot potatoes with dressing, salt, pepper. Toss gently. Add remaining ingredients, toss gently again. Chill and serve. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

MEN FACE STYLE CHOICE

Straight-leg, flare, bell-bottom or traditional, with cuff or without — these are some of the fashion choices confronting men buying pants today. It's similar to the mini, midi or maxi decisions faced by women. There are belt and beltless pants with a variety of pocket treatments, too. Never before have the makers of men's pants provided so many choices in style. For example, the company best known for its Levi's blue jeans now has 198 models and fabrics in its current men's line.

BLUE DENIM CARPET

To give some idea of the size of the U. S. Garment industry, last year enough material was used just in making Levi's blue jeans to lay a 28-inch-wide denim carpet around the world 3.3 times.

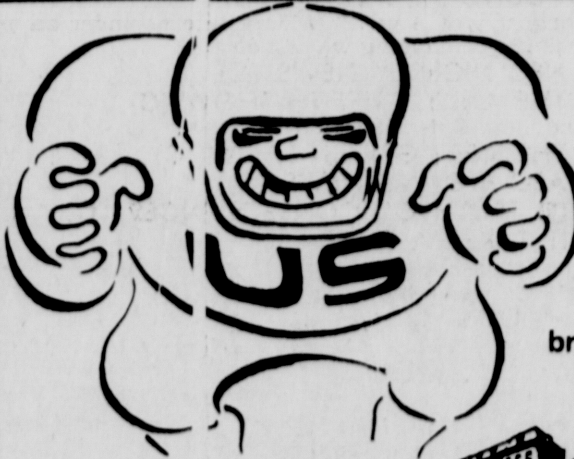

ASSEMBLY LINE FASHIONS

Few realize that production of popularly-priced clothing has now become an assembly line business. For example, to produce a pair of Levi's blue denim jeans takes 26 major and four preparatory operations. Seventeen special threads are used.

'Carol Burnett Show'

Comedienne Ruth Buzzi and recording star John Davidson are on hand to help Carol Burnett and the cast give a musical-comedy salute to some of the great Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer movies of the past on "The Carol Burnett Show." Wednesday, Nov. 15 (8:00-9:00 PM, EST) on the CBS Television Network.

Among the films given the satirical salute by Miss Burnett, her guest stars, and regulars Harvey Korman, Vicki Lawrence and Lyle Waggoner are "Lust For Life," "National Velvet" and "Camille."

In another comedy highlight, Miss Burnett and Miss Buzzi are seen as "Zelda" and "Gladys" in the studio audience watching a ravishingly beautiful Carol Burnett and Ruth Buzzi dancing on the screen with John Davidson and a group of handsome male dancers.

Davidson sings "A Song for Eric," dedicated to his young son, and "I Concentrate on You."

of-ceremonies, played by Korman. Miss Burnett appears with Korman and Miss Lawrence in a comedy sketch as a former great actress with a weight problem trying to make a comeback.

The Ernie Flatt Dancers join Miss Burnett and the entire cast in a musical finale featuring great songs introduced in MGM films.

November's Winds and Rains Have Stripped the Bright Fall Foliage from the Once Flaming Trees Along the Zena Reservoir's Shores and Only the Stately Pines Remain Forever Green

The "ULSTER" slowly paddles her way up Saugerties Creek to her dock. The steamboat just barely visible in the background is the "Saugerties," running mate of the "Ulster" until 1906.

AFTER SHE WAS REBUILT at Connelly in 1922, the "Ulster" was renamed "Robert A. Snyder." As the "Snyder" in this photo, she's at her New York pier.

The Steamboat Named for Ulster County

By CAPT. WM. O. BENSON

Of all the passenger carrying steamboats that plied the waters of the Hudson River, the one that was to have the longest life as a passenger and freight carrier was one named in honor of Ulster County. She was the "Ulster" of the Saugerties and New York Steamboat Company.

The "Ulster" actually had four different names during her long career. She was originally built with the name "Ansonia" painted on her paddle boxes in 1848. During the Civil War her name was changed to "William Kent," after which she resumed her original name. From 1892 until 1922 she was named "Ulster" and it was during this 30 year period she was probably best known in the Hudson Valley. In 1922 she was rebuilt and renamed "Robert A. Snyder," her name for her last nine years of service. Finally, after 83 years of continuous service, she was laid up in 1931.

The "Ulster" had a varied and interesting career. Originally built in 1848 to run on Long Island Sound between New York and Derby, Conn., she was named for Derby's neighboring community of Ansonia. In 1860, she was purchased by a group of Hudson River businessmen for the run between Fishkill Landing, now Beacon, and New York. This group changed her name to "William Kent."

A Troop Carrier

During the Civil War, the "William Kent" was chartered by the federal government to carry troops for a charter fee of $700 a day.

After 77 days in government employment, she was discharged from federal service, and during 1862 ran on the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Cape May.

At about the time she finished her stint of government duty, the steamboat also resumed her old name of "Ansonia." The reversion to her original name was caused by a law passed by Congress — a sort of consumer protection measure enacted 110 years ago. The new law, in effect, said that unless a steamboat was entirely rebuilt, her name could not be changed. The avowed purpose of the law was to protect the public which might be led to believe travel was being booked on a new steamboat when actually the only thing new would be the name.

After her short period of service on the Delaware River, the "Ansonia" came back to the Hudson River to operate again on the run between Fishkill Landing and New York. A short time later, she was purchased by the Saugerties Steamboat Line and began her long period of service between Saugerties and New York. On this run, she was to have many adventures along the Hudson's shores.

75 Years Ago

In 1892, the "Ansonia" was rebuilt and lengthened by some 15 feet. It was at this point her name was changed to "Ulster." As the "Ulster," her most notable misadventure occurred five years later when on Nov. 11, 1897 — 75 years ago yesterday — she ran aground and sank at the foot of Storm King Mountain south of Cornwall.

On that long ago Nov. 11, the "Ulster" left her New York pier for up river points with a full load of freight and some 15 passengers.

It was the kind of November night that was marked by strong westerly winds and clouds scudding swiftly through the sky, at times obliterating the moon. When she reached the wide expanses of Tappan Zee and Haverstraw Bay, the wind increased in intensity, kicking up waves about four feet in height.

At times there were periods of mixed snow and rain making for very poor visibility. When the waves splashed up under her guards, the "Ulster" would shake all over, even the rods to her masts would shake and vibrate. When they reached Stony Point and entered the lee of the Hudson Highlands, everybody on board relaxed, since the pounding from the waves lessened considerably.

Holding Too Close

Passing through the Highlands, the moon at times could be seen. After rounding West Point, and when off Crows Nest Mountain, a snow squall set in. The force of the wind again increased, coming down off Newburgh Bay and howling down the northern gate of the Highlands. The pilot on watch was holding the "Ulster" close to the west shore to keep her out of the brunt of the wind's fury. But the pilot held her too close to the foot of Storm King and in the snow squall the "Ulster's" port bow quarter hit the shore's sharp rocks.

A hole opened up in her port bow and the "Ulster" started to settle. Lucky she was in what was known as "Mother Cronk's folly," where there was only about 25 feet of water. A short distance out, the river bottom fell off rapidly to very deep water. All of the passengers and crew were able to get off onto the West Shore railroad tracks.

I have heard that on the next high tide she drifted off the shore and floated around in the river with just her hurricane deck out of water for two days before she could be secured and pumped out. After being pumped out, she was towed to Marvel's Shipyard at Newburgh where she was hauled out and repaired.

During the winter of 1921-22, the "Ulster" was taken to the C. Hiltebrant Shipyard at Connelly where she was again rebuilt and a new boiler installed. After her rebuilding, her name was changed to "Robert A. Snyder" in honor of the long time president and superintendent of the Saugerties and New York Steamboat Company.

(Please turn to Page 11)

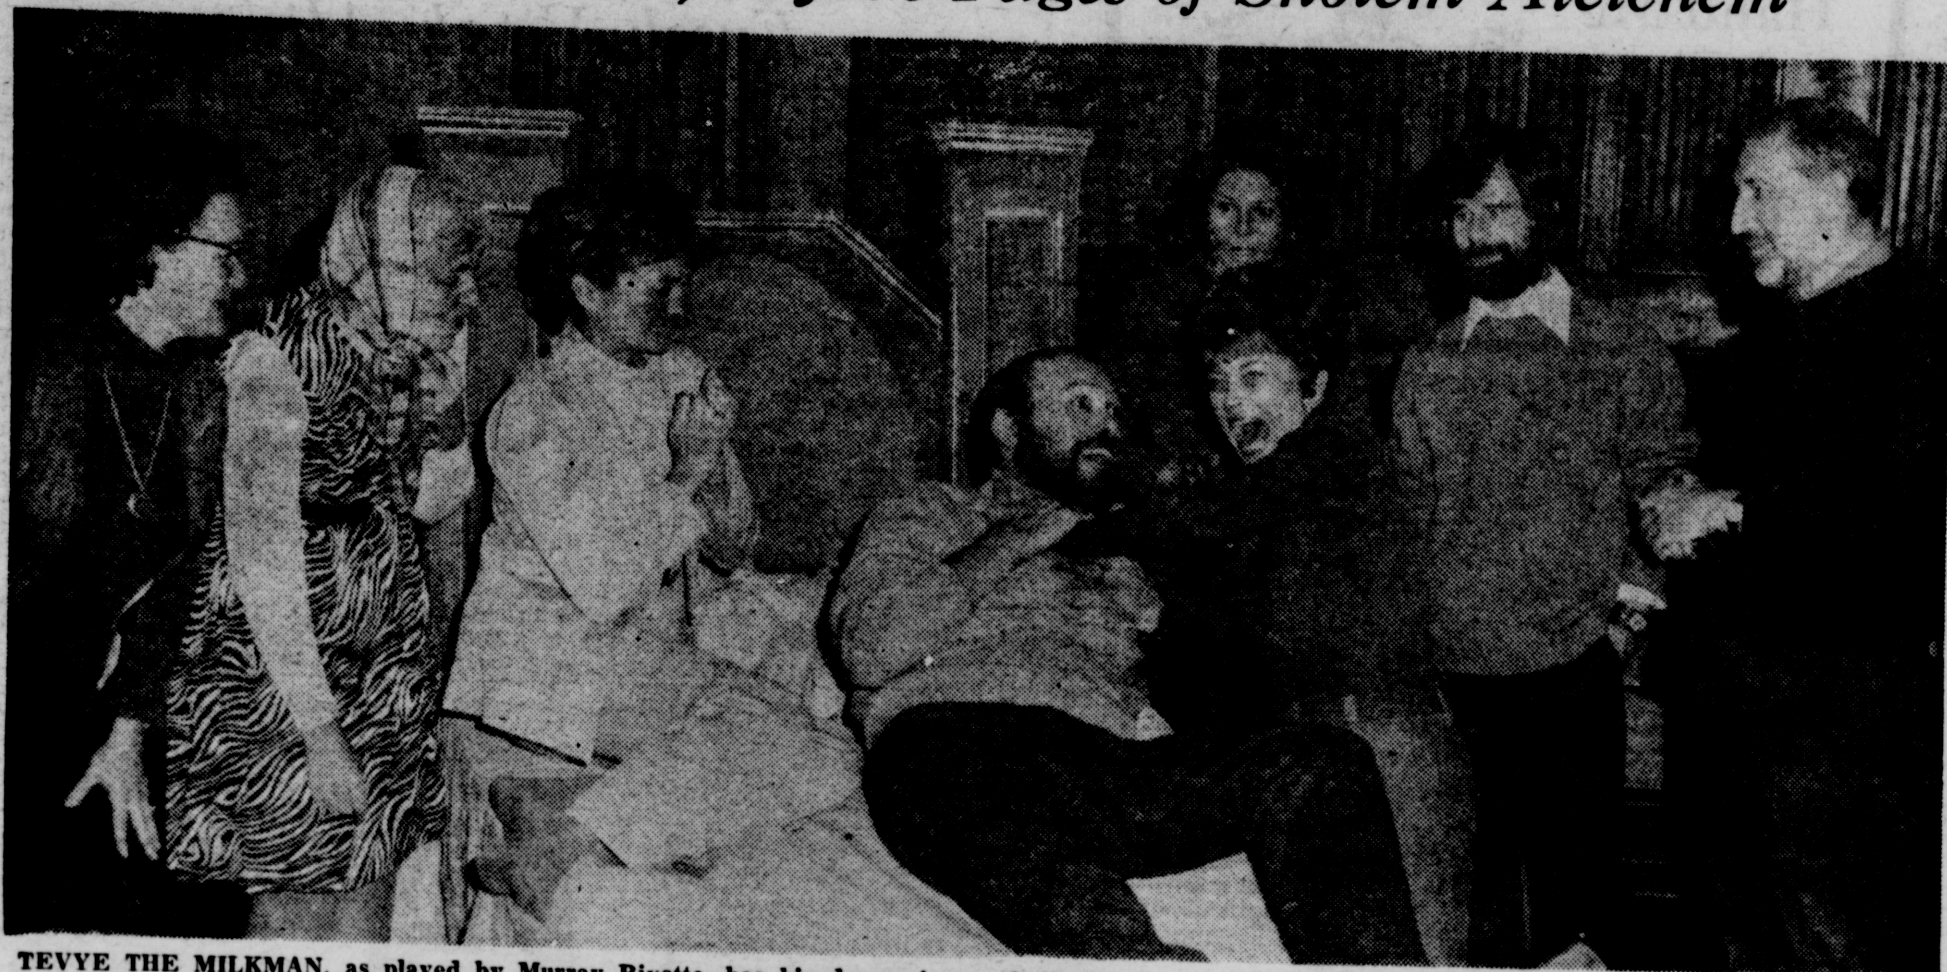

AFTER SPRINGING A LEAK in the ice at her Saugerties dock in 1936, the "Robert A. Snyder" sank. Here's how she looked to the late Woodstock artist Charles Rosen, who painted the final days of the fine old steamboat in 1938, just before she was towed away and sunk permanently in the Atlantic Ocean.

DURING HER EARLY YEARS on the Hudson, the steamboat "Ulster" carried the name "Ansonia." In this ancient photo, the "Ansonia" is at her berth on the south side of Saugerties Creek in a picture probably taken during the 1870's or 1880's.

TEVYE THE MILKMAN, as played by Murray Rivette, has his dream interpreted in rehearsal scene from that longest-running stage fantasy of them all, "Fiddler on the Roof." The musical will shine from the stage of Kingston's J. Watson Bailey School Auditorium on the nights of Nov.

16, 17 and 18, at 8:30, courtesy of Coach House Players. In the first-rate cast (L-R) are Betty Lindsay, Nancy Sack, Nina Werbalowsky, Rivette, Connie McCarthy, Carol Casper, Wendell Scherer and Dick Becker.

A TIMID TAILOR adds interest to "Fiddler" and in scene around his new sewing machine are (L-R) Coach House cast members Phil Luxemburg, Terri Dwyer, Richard Neiman, Dottie Lindner and Al Curl. Audiences will get their money's worth when this charming musical comes to town with week, so go get your tickets at the door.

"FIDDLER" RAN SEVEN YEARS ON Broadway and, every night of those seven years, the Hora number brought down the house. Recreating that scene in rehearsal at Coach House (L-R) are Marlene Goldfarb, John Alecca, Valerie Denis, Bob Lindner, Dorothy Scholl, Jack Hill, Joan Cirrito and Bill Cirrito.

Hand Me Down Things

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

POST ELECTION THOUGHTS—now that the rhetoric has stilled:

Why was it always Dr. Kissinger this and Dr. Kissinger that, and never, never Dr. McGovern? Speaking personally, if we'd spent all those years slaving for a PhD—and considering the state of affairs in the Senate today—we'd insist on equal billing with the swinger from Yale.

And, speaking of doctors, when one area sixth grade class counted up the votes in its straw poll, Dr. Spock had won by a landslide over both Nixon and McG. Must have been either a case of puppy love or a case of fleas.

Sitting through one serious speech about the responsibility of government during the campaign, our somberness turned to hilarity when we overheard a little boy who heard someone ask why the candidate had so much security round him. "To keep him from running away," suggested the lad. . . And, now that we've thought about it for awhile—if the bulk of pols did run away, things couldn't be any worse than they are.

It never occurred to us before in all the many years we've watched him orate—but, give or take a foot, or two or three, and Hubert H. Humphrey looks exactly like a Munchkin out of the movie version of "The Wizard of Oz."

Now that Nixon has withdrawn the mining of Hai-phong Harbor order, Agnew will probably insist that he mine the sewers in liberal neighborhoods.

* * *

NOT THAT WE EVER REALLY LOSE sleep over such things—but:

It must be strange indeed to be a nostalgia piece when you're just 30 or so. But that's exactly what's happened to all those fuzzy-cheeked rock'n' roll idols of the '50s like Rick Nelson and Paul Anka.

Now that TV has given us the Dating Game, followed by the Newlywed Game, followed by the Parent Game, there is only one logical road to follow. We're willing to wager a few bucks that the near future holds a Divorce Game.

With a blizzard like the 1888 granddaddy of them all predicted by Farmer's Almanac for the Northeast this winter, we've been thinking seriously of pulling up stakes for California or Florida. But with our lazybones inclinations, we're sure we'd blow it financially. All that endless sunshine would make it awful hard for us to get to the office with any regularity. We'd keep thinking we were on vacation all the time.

We don't know how you feel about it . . . but we think Mark Spitz makes Superman look like Don Knotts.

If Sophia Loren (you can substitute Raquel Welch, if you prefer) can be said to have an hour-glass figure, then cannot British model-actress Twiggy be said to have a figure closely resembling six o'clock?

If there is anyone in the world who has done more for middle-aged fat men than William (TV's Cannon) Conrad, we'd like to know who he is.

According to our calendar, Nov. 23 is "Pivot Tooth Day," so—he our guest and make an appointment with your dentist.

* * *

WE WERE DEEPLY MOVED by fashion designer Alex Colman's recent statement: "Women are no longer spending one-thousand dollars on one gown. They're putting their money into sportswear."

That's a perfect description of us, all right. Now that the supermarket gets our weekly pay check almost in its entirety, we've given up those $1,000 black lace loungers for eyecatching sportswear. Like heavy hiking boots in which we search for nature's free mushrooms and wild asparagus; long woolen socks we expect Santa to fill with canned goods; an ammunition belt to beat the butcher over the head with in hamburger bargaining sessions; a golf club to crown the neighboring farmer's chickens with when he's not looking; a ski pole to spear an apple or two from a roadside orchard.

* * *

IF WE WERE MOVED by designer Colman's masculine words, we were similarly smitten by a lady named Clarissa Stuart, who has just authored a book called "Meditations for Today's Woman." On getting organized, she says, there is nothing like moving to another home to provide the blueprint. "There's tremendous therapy in cleaning out shelves and stripping yourself to bare essentials," is the way she phrases it.

Only trouble with that is, food costing what it does today, our shelves have long since been stripped to their bare essentials—and since we're still paying off the mortgage on the house, we see no chance of moving to another home just to treat ourselves to a little therapy.

Batik Art at Lewis: Fresh, Vital, Alive

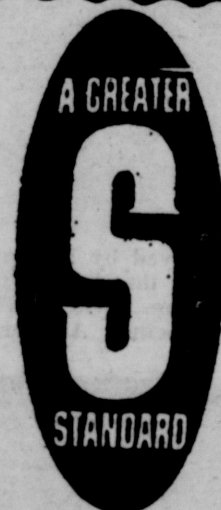

WOODSTOCK LEWIS GALLERY in Woodstock features unusual and decorative art in the group exhibition on view now through Nov. 21. The ancient art of batik as portrayed by Suzanne Seaver is on display to delight the gift giver and those who wish to brighten their homes with colorful, exotic designs. If you saw her excellent show at Woodstock Artists Association this summer you will be looking forward to seeing her new work.

UNUSUAL and decorative is this work of batik art, one of many such "wax writing" works by artist Suzanne Seaver now on view in the current group exhibition at Woodstock's Lewis Gallery. For anyone looking for an exquisite gift or a colorful addition to their own home, the show (now through Nov. 21) is a "must." Open hours at the Lewis (opposite Woodstock's Playhouse) are 1-5 p.m. daily.

Batik originated in the Far East and was introduced in Europe in the 16th Century by the Dutch. The word translated from Japanese is "wax writing." It is a process of alternate waxing and dyeing of silk with the dyes penetrating only the areas not waxed. The dyes used are mineral, vegetable and aniline. The vegetable dyes are made by the artist, primarily from materials gathered in the fields and gardens around Woodstock.

Batiking is a laborious process and makes great demands on the artist because of the difficulty in controlling the variables of humidity and wax thickness as well as problems with the dyes and types of cloth used. Once an error appears, the batik must be discarded. The artist must have a good working knowledge of color chemistry and have a mental conception of each step. Suzanne Seaver's batiks belie the arduous work involved. They are fresh, vital and alive. She give credit for her training in color and design to her only teacher, Robert Angeloch, with whom she studied at Woodstock School of Art and the Art Students League. In the past four years she has evolved her batiks in a self-taught manner and has gained recognition for her work in juried shows in this area as well as Albany. Her work is also exhibited in Baltimore, Maryland. LEWIS GALLERY is located opposite the Woodstock Playhouse; gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily.

Dolly G. Levi Saying Hello

NEWBURGH
"Hello, Dolly!", the long-running Broadway musical by Michael Stewart and Jerry Herman will be presented by Mount Saint Mary College on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 17, 18 and 19. The production, directed by Louis Fletcher and Irene Walsh, will feature college students and local talent. Members of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic will accompany the show with an 18 piece orchestra. Over 100 college and area students are involved in the production and many local merchants have donated special scenery and costumes.

The Mount Saint Mary College Student Government Association is funding "Hello, Dolly!" in cooperation with Mount Saint Mary College Cultural Centre. The orchestra is made available through the Cooperative Area Music Program of Hudson Valley Philharmonic.

"Hello, Dolly!" is based on "The Matchmaker" by Thornton Wilder. The leading role of Dolly Gallagher Levi is a coveted one, sought after by some of the world's most famous actresses. Miss Susan Wynne, a senior at Mount Saint Mary College, who played the leading role in last years' production of "Anything Goes" will play Dolly. Edward Mulligan of Newburgh is Horace Vandergelder.

"Hello, Dolly!" will be staged in Aquinas Hall, the Mount Saint Mary College Theatre. Tickets may be obtained by calling cultural centre or at the Highland National Bank main branch in Newburgh. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Works on Paper At Bard Center

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON
An exhibition of 38 Works on Paper has just opened at Procter Art Center on the Bard College campus to run through Nov. 16, with gallery hours from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Included in the show are works by 38 contemporary American artists, most of whom live and exhibit currently in New York. Five of those represented are members of Bard's Art Department faculty: Jake Grossberg, Matt Phillips, Murray Reich, Garry Rich, and Jim Sullivan.

The exhibit is highly interesting; reveals a wide variety of styles. Following the closing of the Paper Show, the college Art Center will be the scene of the annual Handcraft Exposition and Sale on Nov. 17, 18 and 19. Hours for that show will be 1 to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. It's open to the public at no admission charge.

Green Catherine Rocks at Andes

ANDES
From San Francisco, Calif., will come the rock group Green Catherine to appear at Catskill Ski Center in Andes. They'll offer their swinging band sounds and a full evening of exciting entertainment at the Andes ski slope on Thursday, Nov. 16, beginning at 8 p.m.

Green Catherine has played just about everywhere in the San Francisco Bay area for the past five years; is presently appearing in the Albany area. Six member musicians make up the band, making music with lead and second lead guitars, bass guitar, harmonica, drums and organ. Five of the six sing, as well, and Green Catherine's material consists of album cuts, old and new hit songs, and their own originals.

At Andes this Thursday night, they promise danceable rock and roll music with a touch of country and a touch of blues added.

THE DIMINUTIVE "Eltinge Anderson" had a name far too long and lengthy for her nameboards—but not for the large name flag at the stern. Her striped awnings made her one of the more colorfully charming crafts sailing in area waters, a fact that's obvious in this photo from "The Mary Powell," the just published book by Donald Ringwald.

THIS STRIKING VIEW of the "Mary Powell" southbound off the Palisades was copyrighted in 1906 by the Detroit Publishing Company, manufacturers of some of the most attractive postcards of the era. The "Queen of the Hudson" was the subject of innumerable post cards, several of which are reproduced in the Ringwald book.

212 Pages About the Most Beloved Of All Steamboats, and—Riches Of Riches—251 Nostalgic Photos!

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Water and air pollution and the joyless, nerve-racking strain of commuting are the twin nightmares of the 1970s. But a century ago, there were no such problems locally. The Hudson River was clear and sparkling — and the Hudson River day boats could carry as many as 3,000 passengers with high speed and higher style.

For those of us who cabin cruise the Hudson today (and this writer is one who does), the river is still beautiful. Somehow, we never cease to be excited by the scenery or by the play of light on the shimmering surface.

Perhaps that's the main reason the publication of a stunning new book has cast its spell over us. For long before we tripped up and down the Hudson, the steamboats preceded us — and the queen of these steamboats was the Mary Powell.

And that's the title of a burgeoning — with — illustrations, written-to-intrigue book just published by Howell-North Books and authored by Donald C. Ringwald, who some years back gave readers that fascinating and interesting tome, "Hudson River Day Line."

A Lasting Impression

The river and the Mary Powell will make a lasting impression on anyone who reads this book — and the historical picture gallery of 251 nostalgic photos and fabulous illustrations alone is worth the $9.50 purchase price.

Anything anyone would ever want to know about the history of the beautiful side-wheel steamer that was called Queen of the Hudson, appears within the 212 pages of Ringwald's "The Mary Powell." Built in 1861 by the Anderson family of our own Rondout Creek, she was the fastest day boat on the river, absolutely unbeatable until the sleek Herreshoff steam yachts eventually appeared on the scene.

Majestically appointed with all the accoutrements of a king's palace, and with an orchestra aboard, she was an incomparable match for all other steamboats, and both she and her prideful Captain Abalom Lent Anderson generated a fierce loyalty in her passengers.

Reliving Old Days

Ringwald is a native of Kingston and a former steamboatman. And Kingston and the Rondout Creek are at the heart and center of his book, for this city was the Mary Powell's former terminus for 56 long years. All the fascination of steamboating is captured on the pages of "The Mary Powell," and whether you ever traveled on a day boat or not, you'll find yourself caught up in reliving the days when the Hudson was the great scenic highway of the U.S.A. and "floating palaces" had licked the problem of interurban travel.

Ringwald has presented the Hudson as a living heritage; caught the beauty of its idyllic countryside, and the drama of its steamboats and their owners — from the time the fastest and prettiest steamboat of her era was built, to the time she was dismantled and her hulk was left to settle in the mud along Rondout Creek, from where — ironically — she had first been launched.

Interest in the Hudson River's past has revived in the last few years, and Ringwald has done a service by bringing some of the best memories of the past together in his book.

ON A COLD WINTER'S DAY in 1920, the "Mary Powell" lies at the Sunflower Dock, still looking trim despite her age. And her age was considerable by then—for in this photo she is quietly awaiting her fate while the scrap dealers negotiate over the dismantling of her stacks, boiler, paddle-box, woodwork and wheel . . . and everything else.

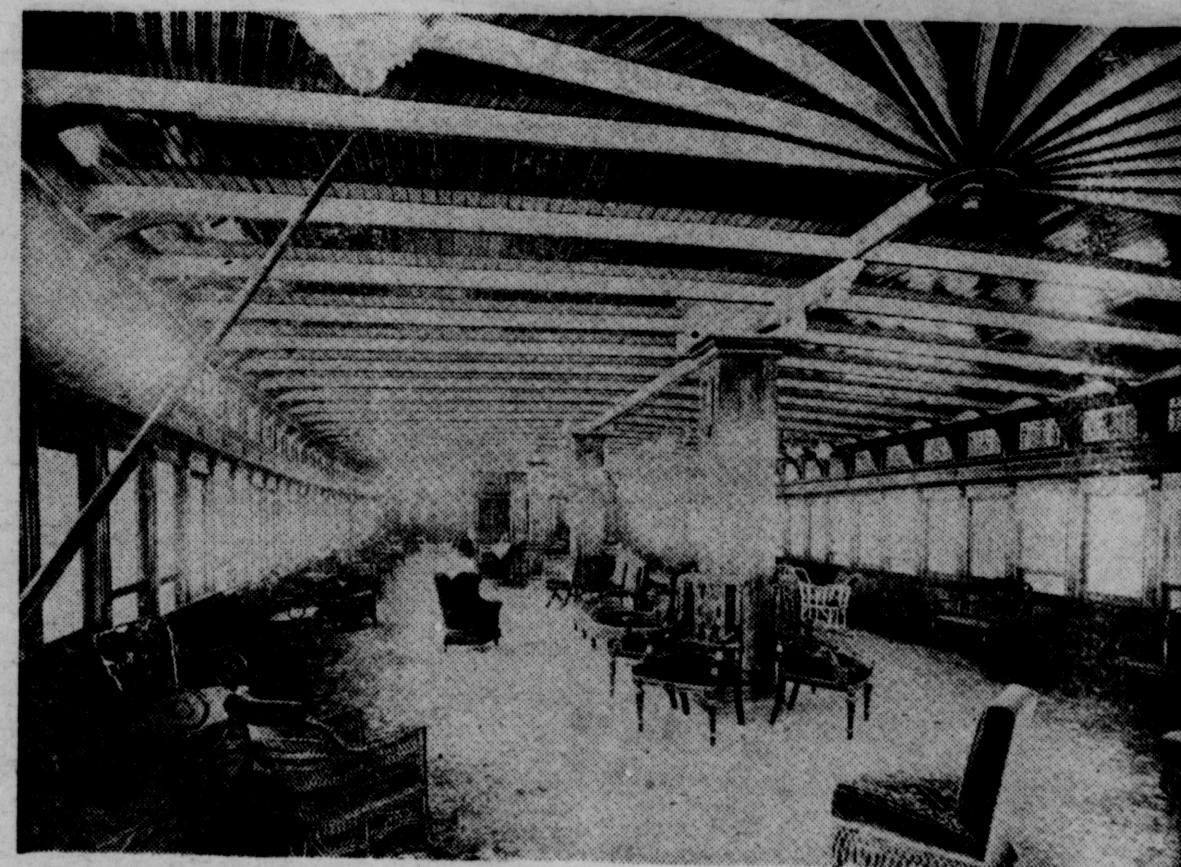

HORSES AND BUGGIES and their owners get to the other side aboard the diminutive "Riverside" in this old photo. The little chain ferry boat plied between Rondout and Sleightsburg for decades, was nicknamed "Skillypot" by its riders. The "Riverside" is recalled fondly in author Ringwald's history of the "Queen of the Hudson."

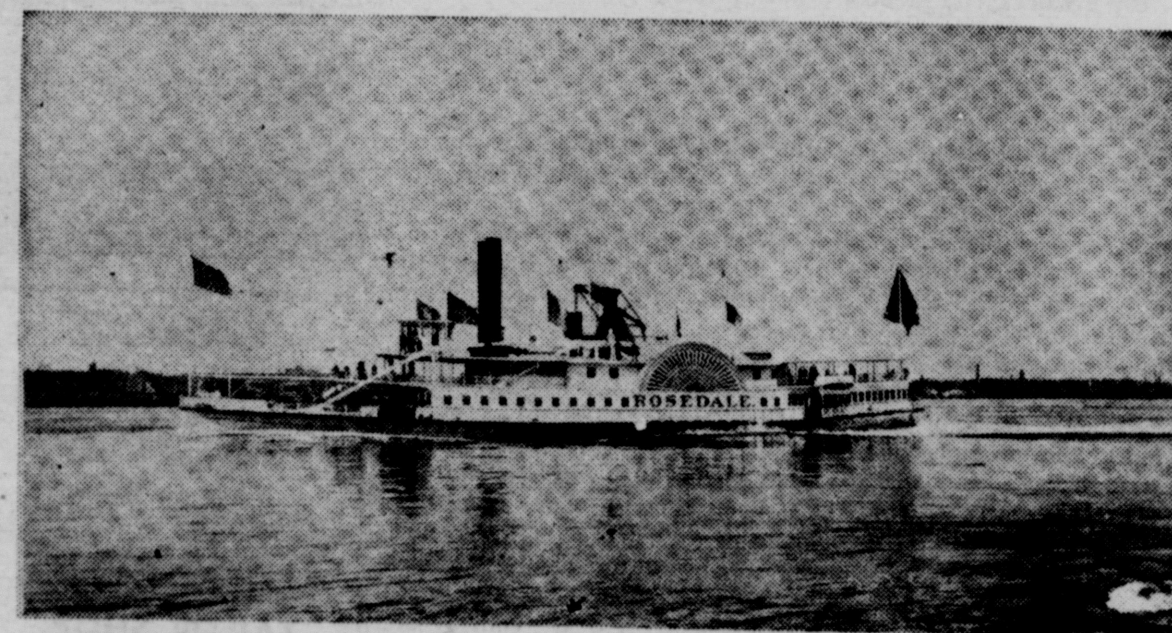

MALE PASSENGERS used their umbrellas as parasols on those hot and sunny days of long ago on the Hudson, and they did so without fear of being considered effeminate.

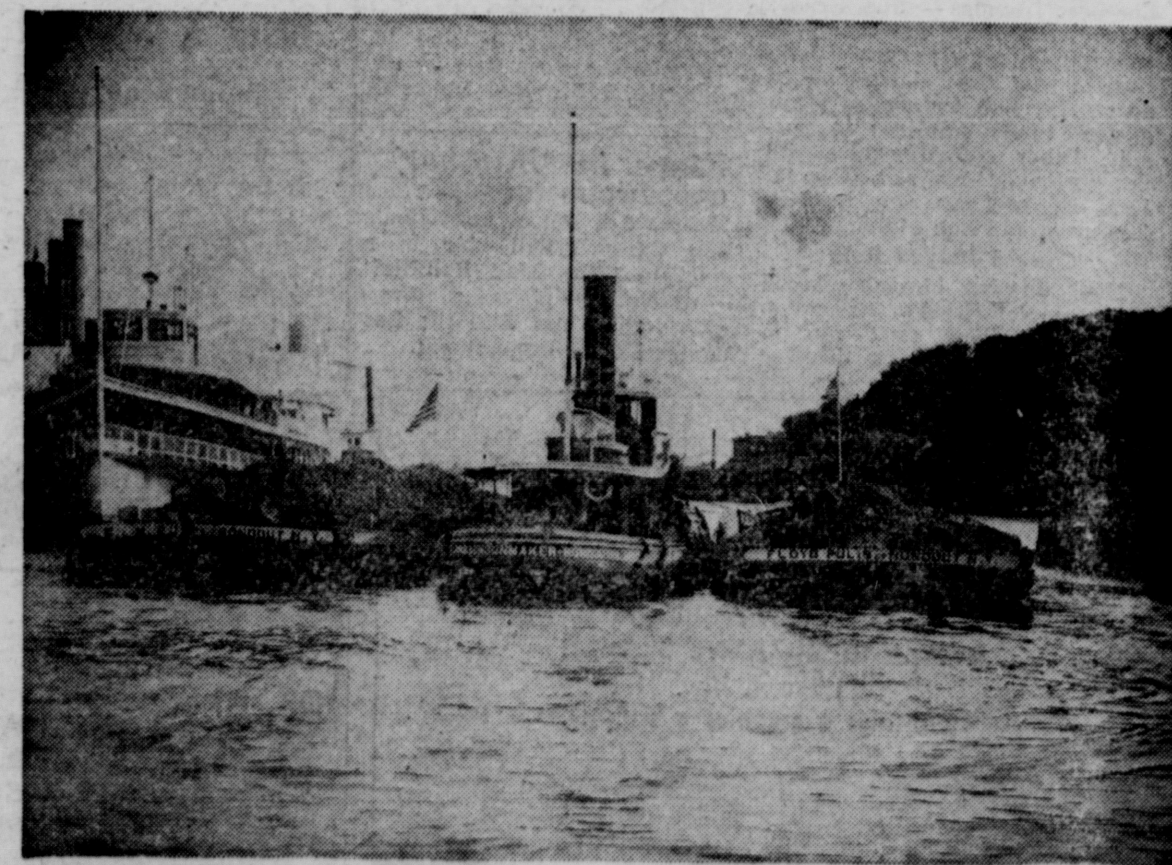

This photograph from the memorable book by Donald C. Ringwald looks aft along the hurricane deck as the "Mary Powell" proceeds northward through the Highlands.

THE MAIN SALOON of the "Mary Powell" was enlarged in 1887-88. The square columns down center enclosed the spars; the trim was mahogany, olive and whitewood; and the closely set drop windows of plate glass offered superlative views of the passing shoreline. Through forward windows, passengers could watch the operation of the engine without going to the main deck. This photo is one of the many illustrations in the Ringwald book.

PASSENGERS WHO WENT to New York on the "Mary Powell" back in 1878, might very well have sailed on to Coney Island aboard the "Rosedale," shown here in as steamboat a picture as one could want—and one of the nostalgic reproductions in the Ringwald history just published by Howell-North Books.

THE "JOHN D. SCHOONMAKER" was on harbor duty on Rondout Creek when this photo was snapped about 1910; is the tugboat in the center shown towing two loaded coal boats out of the slip adjacent to West Strand. That's the eastern tip of Island Dock at right and the steamboat "Mary Powell" head up at her landing on the Creek in the background. The photo is one of many Rondout scenes in the new book, "The Mary Powell."

The Not-So-Private Life of an 'Actor'

CHARLES SCOTT as actor Garry Essendine goes down on his knees for Maureen Gillick as a hero-worshipping girl in scene from "Present Laughter," the light comedy by Noel Coward to be staged Thursday through Saturday by 90 Miles Off Broadway. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

JIM CORREA as Hugo Lyplatt gets a smile from Nancy Groshans (C) as the understanding Liz Essendine, and an incredulous look from Leah Stigel as Lady Saltburn in rehearsal scene from "Present Laughter," the three act comedy first presented in 1946 and being revived for staging this week at New Paltz. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

NEW PALTZ "Present Laughter" — Noel Coward's comedy success of the late 40's about the not-so-private life of a celebrated actor — will be Ninety Miles Off Broadway's next presentation. Scheduled to open on Nov. 16 at 8:30 p.m. at New Paltz High School auditorium, the play will continue through Nov. 18.

Charles Scott plays Garry Essendine, the actor whose chief fan is himself, and who is never so happy as when he's surrounded by his many friends and admirers. The play's comic complications evolve from his relationship with the women, both young and old, who chase after him. His annoyance at their never ending activity and confusion in his studio is merely another act, for Garry thrives in the midst of such wholesale disorder.

Among Essendine's assorted satellites are his understanding ex-wife played by Nancy Groshans; the wife of one of his best friends — Sue Kraat; Maureen Gillick as the hero worshipping girl; and Judy Kudzin as the sharp-tongued secretary. Bob Crescenzo plays another daffy admirer in pursuit. Other comedy roles will be portrayed by Jim Correa, Leni Heroy Leah Stigel, Gary Leahman and Bob Mahoney.

Coward Played Role

Noel Coward himself played the role of Garry Essendine when the show first ran in London. Ninety Miles director John Price feels that Coward represents the pinnacle of sophisticated satire — especially in this play.

And Price should know, since his background in theatre has been extensive. Praised as a competent and stimulating director by 90 Miles members, he's a M.A. graduate in Theatre Arts from Penn State; a member of the national theatre honorary society; has worked previously with New Jersey's Old Mill Playhouse and Quarterdeck Theatre, and with Pennsylvania's Green Hills Playhouse as actor, technical director and designer in all types of dramatic, comedy and musical production. He has also written, produced and directed radio dramas; has taught Theatre Arts at the University of Rhode Island; completed his Ph. D.; is now on the staff at SUNY in New Paltz.

Under Price's able and talented direction, "Present Laughter" will delight audiences Nov. 16, 17 and 18. Tickets are now on sale at the box office, Little Red House of Gifts.

Vince in 'Bomber'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vince Edwards, once television's "Ben Casey," will star in a sequel to "The Mad Bomber" in which he plays a tough Italian-Indian cop with the Los Angeles Police Department.

It's 'Selection 71' In an Excellent Show

STONE RIDGE "Selection 71," drawings and prints selected from the art collections of 16 campuses of the State University, will be presented by the Department of Visual Arts at Ulster County Community College from now through Dec. 6.

The 35 prints and drawings will be on view in the College Visual Arts Gallery in Vanderlyn Hall at the Stone Ridge campus. The Gallery will be open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on Sunday, Nov. 12, and Sunday, Nov. 26, from 2 to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

The pieces in the exhibit were chosen not only for their own intrinsic artistic excellence but as a sampling of prints and drawings held in State University collections. Throughout the University, many campuses concentrate on collecting contemporary works as well as works of historical significance.

"Selection 71" represents the first inter-campus exchange of art works drawn from the growing art collections of many of the University's campuses.

In recent years, an increasing number of colleges have sought to enrich their campuses with original works of art. The campus collections are as individual as the campuses themselves. They include drawings, paintings, sculpture, prints, pottery, furniture and archaeological artifacts. The collections are an essential part of the educational environment and foster a cultural and academic climate on the campus.

Because many campuses concentrate on contemporary works of art the pieces included in "Selection 71" were all chosen from the post World War II period. They are international in origin, including such well-known European artists as Karl Appel, Corneille, Jean Dubuffet, Rene Magritte and Giacomo Manzù.

Respected American artists whose works will be shown are Goro Antresian, Milton Avery, Leonard Baskin and Jack Levine.

UCCC is represented in this exhibit by the screenprint "Red & Black IX/XVI" by Victor Vasarely. This work, a part of the curriculum-oriented college art collection, was acquired in 1967. The acquisition of art works at the college aims to make available selected art works of artistic achievement for study and enrichment, and to set up standards for students to sharpen judgment and perception.

Plan to visit "Selection 71" this month since the exhibit is in keeping with the college's Visual Arts program to bring varied art experiences to students, faculty and the community-at-large.

ARTIST MILTON AVERY, the late, great painter who lived for some time in Woodstock and long considered one of the most respected artists in the U.S., is represented in the prints and drawings show at UCCC throughout November, in a show also featuring works by Corneille, Dubuffet, Na-gritte, Baskin and Levine.

Ustinov Comedy On Marist Stage

POUGHKEEPSIE

That great comedy hit, "ROMANOFF and JULIET," will be performed by Marist College Theatre Guild on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 16, 17, and 18 at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 19, at 2:30 p.m. "ROMANOFF and JULIET" is a wry retelling of Shakespeare's tragedy, "ROMEO and JULIET," written by British actor-playwright, Peter Ustinov. The play had a run of 11 months in the 1958 season in New York and a similarly long run in London.

Ustinov decided that the only truly contemporary version of rival Montagues and Capulets would be wary-eyed families from the United States and the Soviet Union in a neutral country, in the play "the smallest country in the world." The embassies face each other across a street, and the tale ends not in tragedy but in light-hearted, romantic fulfillment due to the wily match-making of the little country's ingenious busybody of a president.

Luci Squiciarini will be seen as the youthful heroine, while Gary Traub will play her suitor, not Romeo but Romanoff. The Montagues, renamed Moulsworth, now belong to the American diplomatic corps, while the Capulets share their son's surname of Romanoff and dwell in the Russian Embassy. The play will also feature Paul Tesoro, Stephen Iacobellis, Althea Seaver, and Lydia Trigali.

The production will be directed by James Britt of the Marist College English Department. For information regarding tickets, call the Box Office at the college.

BALLET STAR JACQUES d'AMBOISE

An Evening of Dance

MIDDLETOWN Jacques d'Amboise, the New York City Ballet star who has been called America's finest male dancer, will present "An Informal Evening of Dance" at Orange County Community College on Monday, Nov. 13.

In the 8 p.m. program in Orange Hall auditorium, d'Amboise will explain the art of ballet through excerpts from such well-known works as "Sylvia," "Four Temperaments," "Raymonda," "Jewels," and others. Audience questions will be answered in dance and discussion.

A product of the School of American Ballet, d'Amboise has been a permanent member of the New York City Ballet since age 15 and a principal dancer since 1953, originating roles in many Balanchine ballets. Walter Terry has called him, "the greatest balletic Apollo of our day."

Often on TV

In addition to dancing in a Broadway musical, in the films "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" and "Carousel," d'Amboise has also directed several musicals and has been a frequent guest on television. He has been a guest artist, dancing world-wide with many ballet companies and symphony orchestras.

A choreographer, his "Irish Fantasy" is a popular item in the repertory. NBC Television's "New York Illustrated" produced an award-winning feature, "Sandlot Ballet," based on the special boys' ballet class he established. His lecture-demonstrations have been adapted to film and television programs.

Admission to the OCCC Lyceum Series program is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

POTPOURRI By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Twenty lashes with a wet noodle on the Freeman compositor who cut off our realtors' column in mid-air last week just as we were about to tell you that: 1) Ken Hyatt was emcee, 2) Jim Norton's wife Gwen sounded sexy as Eartha Kitt, 3) Emma Aprea was loaded down with clam shells.

First things first: Ken is Multiple Listing Service (MLS) president and it's easy to see why he's in real estate. With such persuasive talents, Ken could talk a pauper out of welfare and could convince a determined bachelor that two can live as cheaply as one — even if it is for a much shorter time.

As for Emma Aprea: You've heard of doggie bags for bones. Emma needed one for shells. Bein' president of Ulster County Art Association, she's always on lookout for inexpensive props. And she makes no bones 'bout it either.

And poor Gwen Norton. She may've sounded sexy but Gwen had another name for it — laryngitis.

All in all, it was a great party. As Hallmark would say: "The ANTICIPATED was only exceeded by the ACTUAL EVENT." As we would say: Realtors . . . right on!

(And if that certain Freeman compositor EVER cuts us again . . .)

Searchin' for Mickey Duncan's home at Hidden Valley could become a career. But once found, well worth the effort.

The occasion was a cocktail party last Saturday in honor of State Senator Richard Schermerhorn and wife Connie. Host and hostess were Brendon and Irene Alexander.

For those who'd been there before, it was a breeze. If chauffeur-driven by Mickey's staff, it's only a mile from the highway; if you drive yourself, it's OODLES farther. First-timers who took one false turn were either in the lake or at Camp Unity.

Mickey's pink pantsuit with feathers took courage to wear. In fact, darn few gals could get away with it. Mickey did — beautifully. Her PR gal Evie Navy was the only KNOWN Democrat there. (probably came in backwards and they thought she was leaving.) Mickey took no chances; she made Evie promise to behave. With Evie, that's hard!

Larry Quilty's daughter Margie was helpin' out. Evie remembered years back when Margie was just a tot. Seems she was all dressed up in ribbons and bows, lookin' like an "angel." Evie was passin' by and Margie ran up to her: "Hey, will you tie this d—bow?"

Wanda and Ray Armater were there, then headed for Plattekill for the SEVENTH political "coffee" of the day. Tony Sinagra escorted wife Joan who was tellin' us she's afraid to attend the next PTA meeting. Seems she had to make candied apples for her daughter to take to school. Joan ran out of wooden sticks so she used COCKTAILS mixers.

Ingrid and Lester Legg were havin' such a good time, they had trouble breakin' away for Mannerchor Concert at Walnut Grove. We're partly to blame; mea culpa . . . but we loved listening to Ingrid's German accent.

The Duncan home's as big as Texas. Good thing, too, 'cause crowd included: Doris Stang, Tony and Ann Erena, Harry Kapreilian, George and Betty Erbsstein, Jo Dunham, Sally Brinnier, Jmr Rapp, Marguerite Derringer, Ellen Donovan, the Frank Thompsons, Tom Gallagher, Roger and Betty Blatter, Steve Boutelle, and like that.

The party had class with a capital C. But then, with Brendon and Irene Alexander as hosts, that's not surprising. Yummy food, limitless cocktails, stunning gowns, handsome gents, it was enuf to make Liberace gnash his teeth with envy and smash his candelabra.

MOVIES

ROBERT REDFORD is a "new politics" Senatorial aspirant in "THE CANDIDATE," topical and authentic film about politics currently featured at both Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema, and Rosendale Theatre. Delving into behind-the-scenes workings that go into making a winning campaign, the movie treats audiences to more than a few political insights.

THERE'S TERROR and peril for Patty Duke (dining none too happily with her mother-in-law, Rosemary Murphy) in "YOU'LL LIKE MY MOTHER," suspense chiller held over for a second week at Kingston's Mayfair. "Mother" combines with a second feature, Alfred Hitchcock's superlative thriller "FRENZY" — all about a suspected strangler — to make up the double bill at the Mayfair.

FAYE DUNAWAY and Warren Beatty hide from the law in a seedy motel in scene from "BONNIE AND CLYDE," the movie that makes folk heroes out of the Depression era gangsters. It's back for a rerun at the Community here. Teamed with this "B&C" on the Community's double bill is "BULLITT," also a rerun — but a crackling good cops and robbers tale starring Steve McQueen.

The Steamboat Named 'Ulster'

of the automobile and motor truck forced her into permanent retirement. Layed up at Saugerties, the "Snyder's" old wooden hull sprung a leak in the ice on Feb. 20, 1936 and she sank at her dock. What was left of the old "Ulster" was raised in 1938, towed down the river, and sunk permanently in the depths of the Atlantic Ocean off Sandy Hook — an honorable end to a fine old steamboat.

The "Robert A. Snyder's" last captain was Richard "Dick" Heffernan of Kingston. Among the Saugerties and area boatmen who commanded the "Ulster" and "Snyder" at various times prior to Captain Heffernan were John Osterhoudt, Henry Finger, Ben Freleigh, John Burlingham and Harry Grough.

Rodgers Surprises

NEW YORK (UPI)—Every one knows Richard Rodgers wrote "Some Enchanted Evening," "Younger Than Springtime," "Mountain Greenery" and "My Favorite Things."

But an exhibition at New York's Hallmark Gallery honoring the composer's legendary 55-year career listed some other, less familiar Rodgers melodies. Among them: "Fan Tan Fannie," "My Pal Bumper," "How's Your Health?," "When They Rub Noses In Alaska," "Lido Lady" and "Out Of A Job."

Pop Art Expert On Earthworks For UCCC Talk

STONE RIDGE

In conjunction with the very excellent "Selection 71" art exhibit now on view through Dec. 6 in the campus gallery at Ulster County Community College, art critic Lawrence Alloway will lecture this week.

A major figure in the field of art history and criticism both in England and the U.S., Alloway will lecture on "Earthworks, Conceptual Art and Performance;" will speak Tuesday, Nov. 14 at 1:40 p.m. in the Visual Arts Gallery at UCCC.

Alloway is art critic for the "Nation," and a contributing editor of "Artforum" and "Arts International." He is considered the leading authority in Pop Art and is currently art historian and Gallery Director at the SUNY University Center at Stony Brook.

Has Authored Books

He formerly was deputy director of the Institute of Contemporary Art in London and curator of the Guggenheim Museum. He is author of numerous books, articles and exhibition catalogs, and recently published "The Venice Biennale 1895-1968" and "Violent America: The Movies 1946-1964."

This exhibition and lecture are in keeping with the College's Department of Visual Arts programs to bring varied art experiences to students, faculty and the community, and the public is welcome.

Spanish Tragedy By Garcia Lorca On Campus Stage

MILLBROOK

The Performing Arts Department of Bennett College will present a production of "Yerma," by Federico Garcia Lorca, Nov. 15, 16, 17, at 8 p.m. in Harkaway Theatre on campus.

The Spanish tragedy will combine dance, drama and music with slide projection to create a unique theatre experience. It will be staged at different leveled playing areas in order to permit more than one action at the same time. Also the essences of the play and its characters will be emphasized rather than merely presenting a literal interpretation.

Garcia Lorca, Spain's best-known modern dramatist, combined elements of poetry and surrealism in his new poetic theatre. "Yerma" (which means barren) is the name of the central character in the play, a Spanish peasant woman frustrated by her childless state.

Madonna Cult

The Bennett production will explore the influence of the Madonna cult in relation to the theme of the play. Members of the cast will be Bennett College students in the Performing Arts Department.

The production is directed by Frank Ford, chairman of the Performing Arts Department. Jane McLaughlin, associate professor of dance, is director of ensemble staging; Joseph Clark, teaching associate in dance, is director of sound composition; Timothy Vernon, instructor of music, is director of music for the production; Newton White, is director of set design; and Robert Harlow director of lighting design.

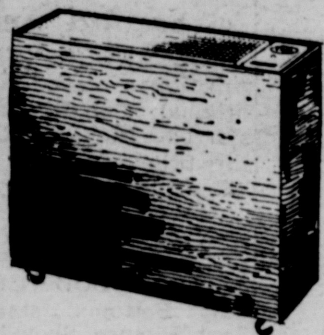

Debuts in 'Badge'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tina Christiani, of the famed Christiani circus family, will make her motion picture debut in Paramount's "Badge 373," filming in New York City.

Read About Winners During Children's Book Week!

Children's Book Week

Two men were responsible for starting National Children's Book Week. They were Frederick G. Melcher, a publisher and editor, and Franklin K. Mathiews, the librarian for the Boy Scouts who was also a writer of children's books. The first Book Week was celebrated in 1919.

The purpose of National Children's Book Week is to call attention to the need for good children's books.

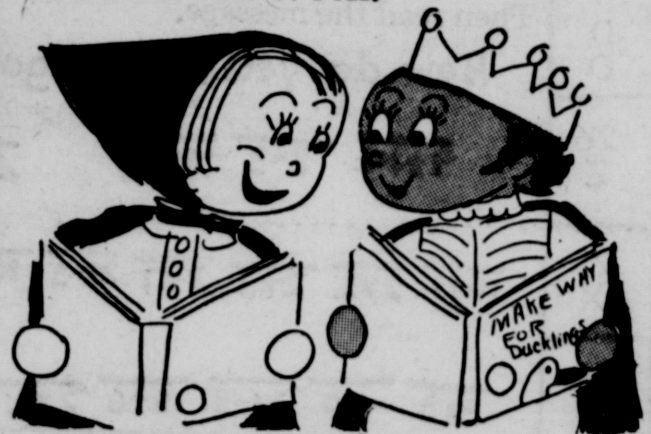

Several different groups sponsored Book Week until 1945. At that time the Children's Book Council was set up in New York to handle the job of promoting the week. The Council also gives out information about children's books.

Each year since 1921 there has been a Children's Book Week poster designed by a well-known children's illustrator. This year's poster was illustrated by William Steig, the author of the 1970 Caldecott Medal winner, Sylvester and the Magic Pebble.

The Caldecott and Newberry Medals

Each year the Children's Services Division of the American Library Association awards the Caldecott and the Newberry Medals. These medals are presented for books published the year before. The winners are announced in January and the awards are presented in June. Both awards were started by Frederick G. Melcher who helped start Children's Book Week.

The Caldecott Medal

The Caldecott Medal is awarded to the American artist who did the most outstanding illustrations for a children's book. It has been awarded since 1938.

The medal is named for Randolph Caldecott, the famous English illustrator.

Meet the 1972 Caldecott Medal Winner

Nonny Hogrogian won this year's medal for the book One Fine Day. She also won the 1965 Caldecott Medal for Always Room For One More.

Miss Hogrogian's married name is Mrs. David Kherdain. Her husband is a poet. They live in Lyme Center, New Hampshire. She loves to paint and has illustrated many books. She is a native of New York.

The Newberry Medal

This medal is given to the American author of the most outstanding children's book. It was first presented in 1922. In most cases these books are best for older elementary students.

The medal was named for the Englishman, John Newberry. He was the first publisher to print and sell children's books.

Meet the 1972 Newberry Medal Winner

Robert O'Brien, the author of Mrs. Frisby and the Rats of NIMH is this year's winner of the Newberry Medal.

Mr. O'Brien has an office in Washington, D.C., but he does his writing at his home in Morgan County, West Virginia. He is married and has three daughters. He enjoys playing the piano, fishing and canoeing. He has been a newspaper and magazine writer and editor.

A Book Report on the Caldecott Winner

report by Terry Percival

One Fine Day, by Nonny Hogrogian, published by The Macmillan Company.

I think One Fine Day is a great book. It is a folk tale about a fox who drank some milk that belonged to an old woman. Then she chopped off his tail and would not give it back unless he got her some more milk. He had to go see a cow, a field, a stream, a maiden, a peddler, a chicken and a miller before he got the milk. Then the old woman sewed the fox's tail back on.

Terry Percival, our book reviewer, is nine years old. He is in the fourth grade.

A Book Report on the Newberry Winner

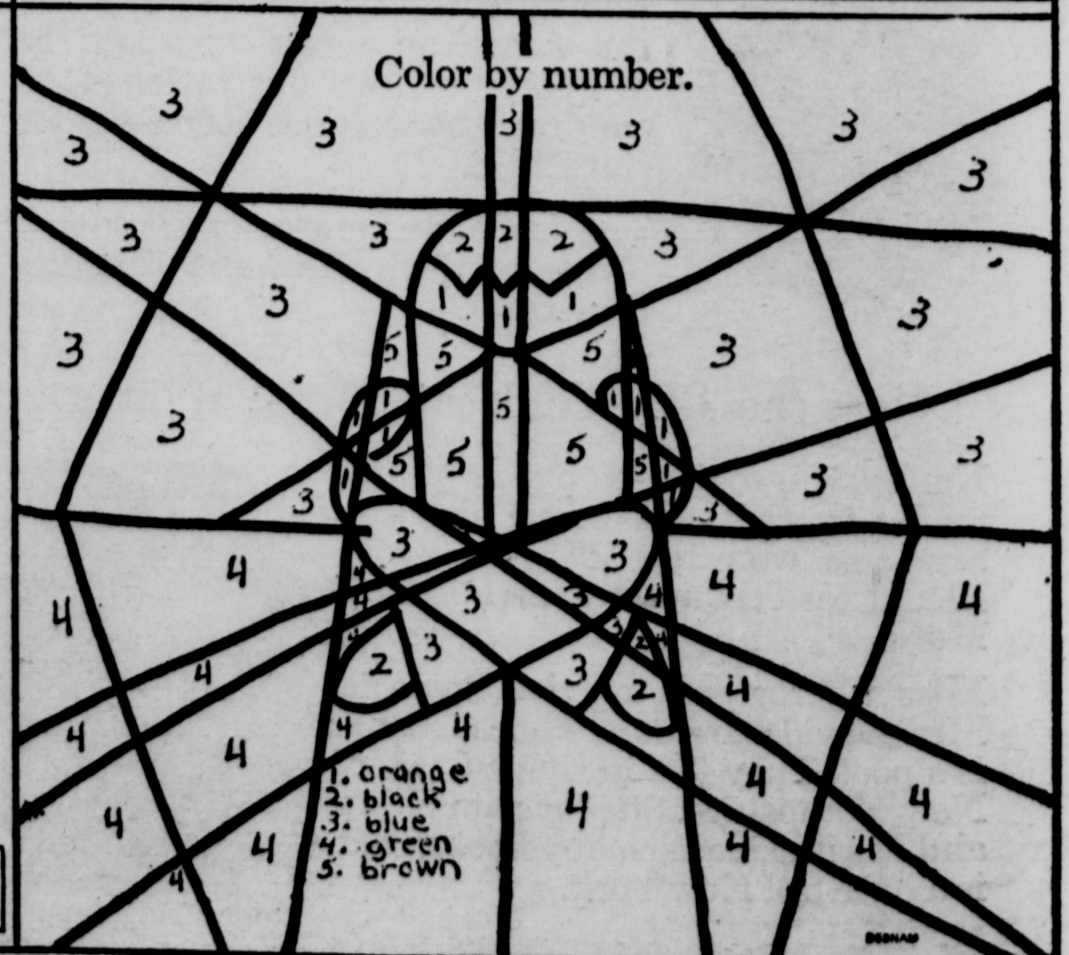

report by Steven Shaffer

Mrs. Frisby and the Rats of NIMH, by Robert O'Brien, published by Atheneum, 233 pages.

Mrs. Frisby is a mouse who lives in a timber block with four children in a garden. She went to a rosebush where more rats lived and worked. She wanted them to move her house. The leader told her a story that a long time ago the rats were caught at a Farmer's Market for eating fruit. The people that caught them took them to a place called NIMH. (National Institute of Mental Health). The rat said he was taught to read, write and speak. That night they escaped. I think the book is great.

Steven Shaffer, our book reviewer, is eleven years old. He is in the sixth grade.

Super Sport: Evonne Goolagong

One of the best tennis players in the world today is Evonne Goolagong. In 1971, when she was just 19 years old, she became the youngest woman in history to win the championship at Wimbledon. This is just about the highest honor in tennis. She was also named the Female Athlete of the Year in 1971. Miss Goolagong is from Australia. In fact, she is a descendant of the aborigines, the first inhabitants of Australia.

Bird of the Week: The Penguin

The penguin is a bird that cannot fly, but it is a very good swimmer. Penguins are hard to keep in zoos because they get sick easily. There are several kinds of penguins. Penguins spend much of their time in water hunting for fish to eat. The babies are born and raised on land. The emperor penguin is most interesting. The mother lays one egg and then the father takes over. He sits on the egg for two months and doesn't eat a bite of food during this time. After the baby hatches, the mother comes back and looks after the baby while the father goes into the water and gets food for himself and the chick.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THE TAVERN DOOR IS FLUNG OPEN AND A NOISY GROUP OF TIPSY YOUNG NOBLES ENTERS. THE PLACE IS CROWDED, BUT THEY TAKE THE BEST TABLE AND PUSH ASIDE ITS OCCUPANTS.

USUALLY, WHEN JOAN SINGS, THERE IS SILENCE, BUT THESE YOUNG GALLANTS LAUGH AND JOKE ALL THROUGH HER PERFORMANCE. HER TWO STALWART BROTHERS FROWN.

ONE OF THE PARTY DRAGS JOAN ONTO HIS LAP: "YOU ARE A COMELY WENCH. YOUR REWARD WILL BE A KISS FROM EACH OF US!" HER BROTHERS RUSH TO HER DEFENSE AND KNOCK HER ANNOYER DOWN.

"HOW DARE YOU, YOU FILTHY COMMONER," SHRIEKS THE LAD AND DRAWS HIS SWORD. HIS FRIENDS RUSH TO HIS ASSISTANCE, WEAPONS GLEAMING, AND PANIC SWEEPS THE TAVERN AND THE CUSTOMERS DASH FOR THE DOOR.

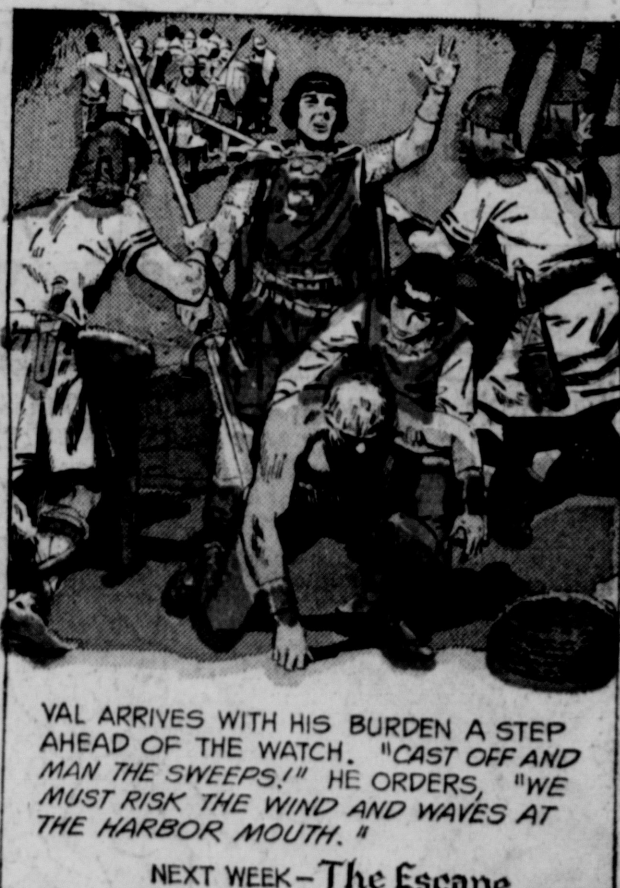

ONE OF THE UNARMED BROTHERS GOES DOWN AND JACQUES TAKES HIS PLACE, FIGHTING LIKE A MADMAN. ARN FORCES HIS WAY THROUGH THE MILLING CROWD AND DRAGS JOAN AWAY.

"FALL BACK TO THE DOOR!" SHOUTS PRINCE VALIANT AS HE DRAWS THE 'SINGING SWORD,' AND AT THE MENACE OF THE BRIGHT BLADE A PATHWAY IS CLEARED.

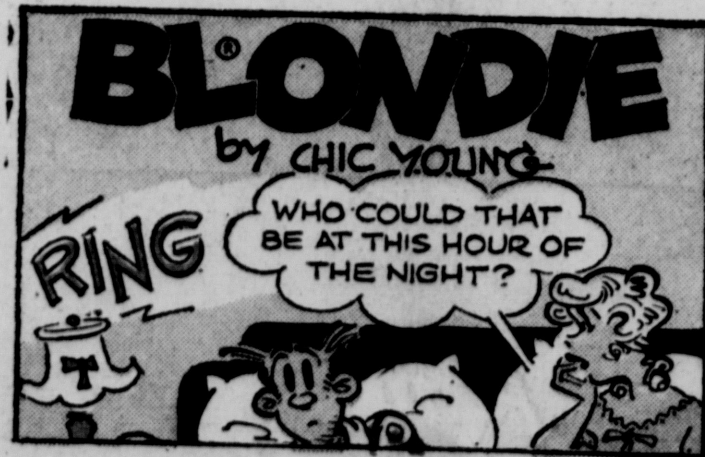

"TO THE SHIP. TELL THE CREW TO ARM AND STAND READY." THE SURVIVING BROTHER IS STAGGERING AND MUST BE HELPED, AND TO MAKE MATTERS WORSE THE MEASURED TREAD OF THE NIGHT WATCH CAN BE HEARD.

VAL ARRIVES WITH HIS BURDEN A STEP AHEAD OF THE WATCH. "CAST OFF AND MAN THE SWEEPS!" HE ORDERS. "WE MUST RISK THE WIND AND WAVES AT THE HARBOR MOUTH."

YEAH... I WONDER WHAT IT MEANS?

I DUNNO... BUT LET'S ASK MR. WILSON.

YEAH... HE KNOWS A LOT OF STUFF!

HOW OLD ARE YOU, MR. WILSON?

GEORGE... FOR SHAME!

TO TELL THE TRUTH, DENNIS, I'M THE SAME AGE AS MRS. WILSON?

HOW OLD ARE YOU, MRS. WILSON?

YES, MARTHA... HOW OLD ARE YOU?

THAT WOULD BE TELLING.

I GUESS MAYBE IT'S ANOTHER ONE OF THOSE THINGS WE'LL UNDERSTAND WHEN WE GET OLDER!
